GET READY FOR

LEE IS HAVING A RESTLESS NIGHT,

...sure he's fast asleep, but that won't stop him taking one of his nocturnal journeys! Fortunately, our sleepwalker has a courageous canine companion who will try his utmost to protect his master from coming to any harm - Lee's faithful mutt, Ralph. Lee's four legged friend is zapped, bashed, clobbered, pummeled, singed and squashed, but nothing will stop him from performing his dedicated duty, (although the odd fire hydrant may distract him)... it's all par for the course of a night errand. These midnight meanderings take him to the most hazardous of places... the creepy graveyard, the gooky zoo, precarious construction sites and the traffic strewn city streets, but Lee's loyal rover steadfastly guards his master from all impending dangers - with painful consequences!

Featuring sound effects and speech created by LENNY HENRY, and superb cartoon style animation.

10 TRUE STORIES

News of the Amiga Live show, (fairly) gratuitous Winona Ryder pictures, Virgin's latest and more! Much more!

14 THE GALLUP CHARTS

Three guesses for what's number one. Clue - It sounds quite a bit like 'Pete Bligher Noo.'

16 THE SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME

The console smash hit Desert Strike is nearly upon us, and Chuck Rock II, Cyberspace and Goal are getting there too.

42 BACK ISSUES/MAIL ORDER

We've started adding 'Sold Out' flashes to some of our issues now, so Buy! Buy! Buy!

45 COMPLETE CONTROL

The Indiana Jones solutions continue, while Enchantia and Kyrandia are wrapped up, and Jonathan Davies continues to dish out helping hints.

60 LEMMINGS COMPO WINNERS

Do you people have no shame? Once more we manage to get our readers to make complete fools of themselves.

80 THE A-Z OF ARCADE GAMES

Okay, so this second half of the feature is actually the 1 to W, but you never see the 1-W of London, do you?

86 DO THE WRITE THING

Not a mis-spelling of the celebrated Spike Lee film, more a sort of collection from this month's mail bag - which comprises hate mail and letters about The Prisoner.

91 THE BOTTOM LINE

What to buy, and why. It's all here, matey and no mistake - 12 whole months of the stuff to choose from.

96 SUBSCRIBE TO AMIGA POWER

Get AP the easy way, and sleep easy. Hell, you'll even get yourself a free game into the bargain.

98 THE RIGHT PROFILE

It's the turn of Bullfrog's Peter Molyneux to go under the spotlight and talk about life, Populous, and everything (including the one and only Elvis Presley).

80 ARCADES

Standing in a cold, dark, smoke-filled room pumping coins into a throbbing arcade machine is so much fun. And arcade machines have the distinction of being the best games around. It's inevitable, then, that they find their way to the Amiga, where you can enjoy them in your cold, dark, smoke-filled bedroom. This second half of our A to Z of coin-op conversions is as close to investigative journalism as we ever get.

NEXT MONTH...

Full reviews of Desert Strike, Flashback and maybe, just maybe, the lowdown on Lemmings 2, Walker and Hired Guns. There's also bound to be a more expensive prize than this month's, and that A1200 feature. It's out on Thursday March 11th.

There's something for everyone this month, from ardent pacifists to the most deranged and disturbed violent mind. If your idea of a good time is helping a small child across the road, or kneeling a total stranger in the kidneys, then we can help. Details below.

AND THIS IS DISK 23

SLEEPWALKER

Never before have small, cute kids been so utterly exasperating. It's time to play the part of the helpful but long suffering pet of one such brat in this playable demo of the game that's not only going to raise masses of cash for charity, but is also one of the most original games we've seen in ages.

BODY BLOWS

Every so often, it's good to snap a mate's arm, shatter his leg, or maybe push his nose bone into his skull, killing him instantly. Unfortunately, murder's still a crime in most parts of the world, but thanks to Team 17's spine-crunching demo, you can safely indulge in needless violence without being arrested.

GOT A FAULTY DISK?

● Oh no! Are you sure? Before you go any further try the procedures described in the panel over the page. If, after all that, you do have disk problems, simply place it in an envelope, along with an SAE and an explanatory letter, and return it NOT TO THE AP OFFICE but to: AMIGA POWER Disk Returns 23, Diskcopy Labs, Unit 2+3 Omega Technology Centre, Drayton Fields, Drayton, NN1 1FR.

YOUR DISK AND YOU

READ THIS BIT FIRST OR NO ONE WILL TAKE ANY NOTICE OF YOU WHEN YOU SAY THAT YOUR DISK DOESN'T WORK.

● Sleepwalker and Body Blows are one meg only. Um, sorry.

● To load any of the games, all you have to do is switch off your machine, insert the disk, and switch your machine back on again.

● An options menu will appear. Simply follow the instructions to load the game of your choice.

● Just to be on the safe side, though, the on-screen instructions say that you should press the appropriate function key to make your selection.

● It really is that simple.

● You'll have to reset your machine in order to play one of the other demos. When you do so, simply follow the instructions above.

● Remember to keep the disk you are playing your game from in the drive at all times. And remember – switching the machine off for 20 seconds or so before loading a new program will help prevent disks being infected by stray viruses.

● Have a good time.

OH NO! SOMETHING WENT WRONG!

● Are you sure?

● Try all that stuff again, making sure you've disconnected any peripherals the program might not 'like'.

● If your disk fails to load, then pop it in a padded envelope, along with a letter explaining the problem, to: AMIGA POWER Disk 23 Returns, Diskcopy Labs Unit 2+3 Omega Technology Centre Drayton Fields Drayton NN1 1FR

● We really hoping you're reading this bit, because it's quite important: please don't send your disks to us at the AMIGA POWER office. We really don't know how to fix dodgy disks. We've tried, we really have, but we're just crap at it. So send it Discopy Labs. Please.

Publisher: Ocean

The last pathetic but admirably charitable fund raiser was the so called 'novelty' record from questionably humorous comedians Hale and Pace, and the time before that it was Bananarama and Lananeeneenoonoo singing a pleasing little Lennon and McCartney number called 'Help!'

This year, to go along with bus drivers dressed as gorillas and neuro-surgeons in saucy French maid outfits, there's another addition to the well-oiled charity machine that Red Nose Day has become. And guess what? You've got part of it for free!

WELL, NOT QUITE...

For although you've got two thirds of a level on this groovy cover disk, there's absolutely no way that your conscience will let you play it without you first doing something good for mankind. Playing this without a donation will result in a little voice waking you up at 3am saying 'You're a bad person, a selfish person, go and get sponsored to lie in a vat of cold custard or something.' We know what a

The Big List of Impossible Acts lists juggling the the AP team one-handed as being easier than talking about Body Blows without mentioning Street Fighter II. See? We only just started and we've already done it. And since Lisa (who bruises easily) was dropped the last time anyone tried the other thing, it's been banned.

beat-'em-up. There'll be loads of exotic locations and characters to choose from, but in this pre-release version there's only hardened street fighter (tut, there I go again) Dan or the Ninja, fighting on his home turf of the Ninja Cavern. It's a two player only demo, so you've got to drag a friend, your gran or anyone else really to waggle joysticks against, otherwise you'll win every time.

WHAT ABOUT THE GAME?

Ah yes, Sleepwalker is about a dog, and a child who sleepwalks. Lee (the child) find the secret bonus noses. These are incredibly helpful in the finished game, but mere points of special interest in this version.

In the extremely likely event that you enjoy playing Sleepwalker, you might want to trot down to your local software emporium and donate some extra dosh to charity by buying yourself a copy. To find everything you ever wanted to know about Sleepwalker, check Stuart's fab full review later on in this ish. Right, now I'm off for a quick kip. ● heaps of moves and it's actually possible to choose them, unlike that other newly released fighting game. Rather than leaving you to work all the moves out, glance at these clear yet informative charts instead.

Directions only: You get all the usual ducks, jumps and blocks that you'd expect. We're not going to insult your intelligence to show you these.

Special Moves: Hold down the fire until the power bar reaches maximum, and then let go. Dan releases an Electro-bolt, where as Ninja goes into the spookily Predator-like 'Super Shadow' mode that renders him almost invisible.

With fire button pressed: You get all those wonderful goodies (over there in the diagrams). If you're in the air at the time you press fire, you get to do the moves in brackets. Simple isn't it?

To further confuse you, all these moves are reversed when you're facing to the left of the screen, but you would have imagined that and you'll find it much easier to play than read about it.

What are you waiting for? Get punching. You'll feel better for it. ●

The Ninja has the not inconsiderable advantage of having a sword and being able to go invisible.

He's not praying, he's about to become much less easy to see.

TRUE STORIES

GET READY FOR THE GREATEST AMIGA EVENT EVER!

The time: 7th to 9th May
The location: Wembley Exhibition Centre
The event: Amiga Format Live
The Price: £7 (or £5.95 in advance)

After the runaway success of the Future Entertainment Show, we're proud to announce Amiga Format Live – a show entirely dedicated to the Amiga machine. Sponsored by Amiga Format – our sister magazine, and endorsed by Commodore UK, will have an estimated 120 exhibitors, displaying hardware and software to suit every Amiga owner.

Amiga music, art, video and, of course, games will all be staples of the show. One major area will be the Sound And Vision Experience, providing an Amiga sound studio, a graphics studio and full scale video production facility for visitors. Even Amiga Format Live – set to emulate the success of the Future Entertainment Show.

Future Music and Camcorder Plus (some of our cousin magazines, if you like) will be there.

AMIGA POWER, meanwhile will have the Games Arcade. This area will feature row upon row of machines running the latest Amiga games, from the best software houses. Even GamesMaster magazine will be helping out the AP team on this one.

Finally, of course, Amiga Format themselves will be there, catering to the community of Amiga users who look beyond games. With products, people and software to set appeal to both dedicated Amiga owners and to music, video and graphics enthusiasts, the Amiga Format Live show promises to be the biggest event yet for owners of Commodore's ever-popular machine.

GREETINGS AND SALUTATIONS

It's interesting to see Watchmen artist Dave Gibbons getting involved with one of Virgin's upcoming releases (see the news item opposite). This, coupled with Renegade using actual musicians from real live groups to create computer music for their titles is an encouraging sign. Not only does it indicate that the Amiga market is maturing, but it also points to a new era where professionalism and originality work hand in hand. Maybe I've got my rose-tinted glasses on at the moment, but I feel that ideas from outside the industry are just what we need right now. Even the way that Psygnosis are slowly merging the movie industry with CD has to be a Good Thing. Who could have foreseen movie stars recording dialogue for a computer game? Even if CD in its present form proves to be too limited in the playability stakes, the possibilities for the future are damned exciting. What we now need is a real cut in CD prices – and an A1200-styled machine incorporating a CD drive. Pitching CD to the high street electronics buyer isn't working, that's for sure. For CD to succeed Commodore really are going to have to target existing Amiga owners. And they better do it quickly, before the PC or Sega CD formats become the winners of the race.

SPORTIN' A WOODY

After a successful stint in the world of PD, the successful authors of titles such as Microbes and the Defender-influenced Cybernetix, are about to go professional.

Under the Vision Software label, the top New Zealand programmers are putting the finishing touches to Woody's World. A platform romp spanning more than 60 levels, each 64 screens in size, Vision are really going to town on the technical side of things as well as the playability. Sporting over one hour of music, 50 frames a second scrolling, 20 graphic styles, and support for Sega two button controllers.

The game itself is a vaguely Mario-esque romp with plenty of neat touches and player-friendly level design. Woody's World will be scheduled for a March release.

LIONHEART DELAYED

Wouldn't you just know it. As we went to press last month, Lionheart was about to go into duplication – when, the German programming team at Thalion, on hearing our (very few) criticisms, decided to make some last minute changes. The most important changes are difficulty settings which alter the number of monsters and the actual layout of the levels, and the inclusion of a whole new level. The guys at Thalion also took heed of our Ed's comments regarding the hero's slightly suspect running motion, and have given the main sprite a more dynamic look, and added even more animation frames to the thing. We reckon all that's worth at least an extra percent, making it undoubtedly the king of its genre (the scrolling-flying-and-platform-hack'em-up arcade adventure, if you must know).

SILICA BREAK THE CD PRICE BARRIER

In an independent step to get Commodore's A570 CD drive established as a kosher piece of kit, Silica have chopped £100 off the retail price for a limited period, and thrown the mighty (though slightly ageing) Sim City CD into the bundle. That means you can now pick up the drive for only £249 (including VAT). Sim City on CD is essentially the same as its floppy disk counterpart, but with extra levels, time zones, and 10Mbs of sound data.

At the same time, Silica also have stocks of the old A500 Plus Cartoon Classics pack for £249, with Zool, Pinball Dreams, Striker and Transwrite (a word processor) thrown in free.

WINONA RYDER IN COMPUTER GAME SHOCK!

Moody lighting abounds in the CD interpretation of Dracula.

Well, sort of. Psygnosis are hard at work on a CD game based upon Coppola's new Dracula movie. Using over 15 minutes of footage from the movie, the creators are combining the movie scenes with computer-generated rooms based upon map layouts used in construction of the movie sets. Extra dialogue from some of the major players in the movie Bloodspurts for all, in Coppola's Dracula, starring Gary Oldman and Winona Ryder.

– including Gary Oldman as the Count – has also been recorded for the game. The scenes here are the moody computer-generated sets from the game – the characters have yet to be added. Rotoscoping is being used to obtain the best possible animation. Of course, we're not quite sure how interactive all this will be, and given the amount of work involved in creating such a complex CD Rom title, we don't advise holding your breath for a release date. The game will be released on Sega's Mega CD initially, with other CD formats to follow.

And speaking of CD titles with unknown release dates, does anybody remember Microcosm – Psygnosis' Fantastic Voyage-esque maiden journey into CD territory? Don't worry, it hasn't fallen by the wayside. And it really will be released this year. Probably. Meantime, here're a couple more images to drool over.

And here's another look at the long-awaited Microcosm.

Microcosm wears its Fantastic Voyage influence on its sleeve.

The player guides Jonathan Harker as he tiptoes through the lair of Dracula.

RUSHES

This month we offer a few more glimpses at the elusive Battletoads. Mindscape's conversion of the SNES hit has already hit a few snags, but things now look on course for a pretty faithful reproduction of the toad-tastic action.

Snow joke when your a toad – one of our heroes gets the big freeze.

One Battletoad, one animal foe, and one space invader. What's it mean?

Well if it isn't one of the platform-based levels of Battletoads.

WHO'S WATCHING THE WATCHMEN MAN?

Anybody who reads comics will recognise the name Dave Gibbons, winner of a Hugo award for his artwork on the acclaimed Watchmen strip. Now Gibbons has at last set his sights on the computer world, and teamed up with Lure Of The Temptress creators Revolution, for Beneath A Steel Sky, for Virgin Games.

Using a tweaked version of the 'Virtual Theatre' system premiered in Temptress, Revolution are aiming to create a complex futuristic tale which is nonetheless simple to play and, of course, very stylish. Where Dave Gibbons fits into this is in creating the digitised art within the game, and in writing and illustrating an accompanying comic book to be given with the game. The story follows a character called Robert Foster on a journey to discover his true identity in a computer-controlled cyberpunk-style world.

"Revolution had the basic story outline, and I made suggestions and came up with character designs, the environment and situations," says Gibbons. "It seems to be a logical evolution of storytelling."

The last time we remember comics on the computer scene was with Palace's Demoniak – a collaboration with Judge Dredd and Batman writer, Alan Grant. That game suffered from being mainly text-based and too rigid in control. The use of the very graphic Virtual Theatre system should ensure that Beneath A Steel Sky sidesteps these problems, and Revolution Director Charles Cecil is keen to stress that a lot of thought has gone into the project.

"We learned a lot from Temptress," reckons Cecil. "At the time we had no idea how far we could go with the Virtual Theatre system. With Beneath A Steel Sky we spent a year designing it before any coding was done. During that year Dave Gibbons taught us a lot... we believed that combining our skills could produce something really special, something ground breaking – and it has. Beneath A Steel Sky incorporates techniques and gameplay design that no-one has done before."

The game will be available this summer.

GAMES FOR ALL

Adrian Gowen has spent the last four years running an Amiga club at local hospitals, and now hopes to expand it nationally. Adrian found that computers can be a great boost for people with severe mental or physical handicaps. "Going out with their friends or participating in sport just isn't possible for many of these people," he says. "The Amiga provides an escape from their day-to-day environment. We've found that some games are better suited to people with different handicaps, and in one case we had the joystick on one boy's electric wheelchair adapted to dual function so he could play games with it."

He's very appreciative of the support he's been getting from many of the software companies, a trend that he hopes will continue. Sensible have already supplied him copies of Sensible Soccer with which Adrian's set up a fledgling Sensible Soccer league. Psygnosis, Flair and Gremlin have supplied software, and Mindscape donated two Miracle keyboards. MicroProse have offered a free flight as a competition prize. "The support I've had in the last few months has been incredible, I only hope that it'll continue," says Adrian. He's now looking to expand the club nationally and hopes eventually to be able to provide a newsletter for each member.

Adrian wants to hear from disabled schools and individuals interested in joining this club. "Computers can bring so many benefits to disabled users, and with this club I believe that the Amiga can fulfil a social role by bringing like-minded people in contact with each other." AMIGA POWER

RECOMMENDS

It's been a slow season so far, but thankfully last month saw a bit of a bumper crop of groovy games. Games, in fact, like these...

THE CHAOS ENGINE (RENEGADE)

After a very quiet 1992, the Bitmap Brothers have burst back onto the scene in big style, with what might just be their best game yet. Certainly the mighty Speedball 2's going to be looking over its shoulder as this glorious, innovative, action-packed but most of all enjoyable Gauntlet-ish shoot-'em-up rockets through the charts. It's crammed solid with things that make you go 'Wow! Why didn't anyone think of that before?', but mostly with things that make you go 'Hey! This is fun!' An absolute corker.

LIONHEART (THALION)

This is far and away the prettiest platformer we've seen for a goodly long time, but for once gameplay hasn't been sacrificed in the quest for brilliant visuals. Lionheart is an action-packed explosion of hacking and slashing in the style of the coin-op classic Rastan, except with a hero so well-endowed with athletic fighting moves he could have stepped straight out of Street Fighter II. Being tons of fun and gob-smacking to watch, Lionheart is an unlikely must-have, but a must-have it nonetheless is.

NICK FALDO'S GOLF (GRANDSLAM)

We thought everything there was to be said about computer golf had been said already by PGA Tour and MicroProse Golf, but then this came along and said it all again, except all in one sentence. Slotting sweetly in between the two previous games (and with graphics putting the much-touted Links to shame), Nick Faldo's is easy to get to grips with, beautiful to look at, an accurate simulation and, er, 35 quid. But if you want the best in computer golf and you can afford to pay for it, here it is.

HISTORY LINE (BLUE BYTE)

Blue Byte's previous attempt at a user-friendly arcade wargame (Battle Isle) was something of a flawed classic, but they've really got it right this time. Providing you've got at least two disk drives, this is a fast-moving, hugely accessible, painstakingly-designed and utterly gripping affair, with as much in common with most computer wargames as Bonnie Langford has in common with Australian Rules Football. (Doesn't she play for the West Coast Eagles now? - Ed) War is hell, but History Line is heavenly.

ALIEN³ (ACCLAIM)

We've developed an unfortunate tendency to groan loudly and pretend not to be listening whenever anyone announces a movie licence game, and if they also say it's going to be a multi-level platform shoot-'em-up, well, we just go on a long lunch and hope it's gone away by the time we get back. Alien³, though, while being generic and almost nothing whatsoever to do with the film, is a brilliantly entertaining game with a genuinely tense atmosphere and spooky feel. Scare yourself to death.

DARKSEED (CYBERDREAMS)

...and if Alien³ doesn't finish the job, this almost certainly will. An H R Giger-inspired nightmare of a graphic adventure, Darkseed is truly gruesome in parts, and quite alarming for adventure fans used to the slapstick humour or elves-and-fairies whimsy of most successful games in the genre. The graphics are great, the story line's totally engrossing, and there's characterisation of a level all too rarely seen in computer games of any sort. This one put the willies up us something rotten.

STREET FIGHTER II

It was kind of inevitable, but the conversion of the most popular arcade game of all time and the biggest game on the Super Nintendo has shot straight into the charts at number one. It's the best beat-'em-up on the Amiga, but it's about to face a real challenge with the imminent release of Team 17's Body Blows. And speaking of Team 17...

ALIEN BREED SPECIAL EDITION '92

To prove it was no fluke at number one last month, Alien Breed is still hovering menacingly at number two. Martyn Brown said "The most important aspect has been the feedback from players of the game – it's been absolutely brilliant. It also shows that there's no need to shower a product with hype and incredible ad-spend in order for it to succeed. As for the number one spot...well, we'll see about giving that some competition in the near future."

WING COMMANDER

Long considered the best game on the PC, Wing Commander's conversion to the humble Amiga is new in at number four. James Morris at Mindscape said "The fact that Wing Commander's sold so well proves that what many said couldn't be done is achievable. We're extremely pleased that the game has proven as popular with Amiga owners as it was originally on the PC."

PREMIER MANAGER

Perhaps a bit of a surprise to see a football management game at number six, but it's not for David Martin at Gremlin. "It took a little while to hit the consumer market in general, and now it has the game has taken off in a big way. Evidence once again that quality is the key to success."

THE SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME

Astrology can't possibly help you. What do the stars know about Amiga games? Only we can find out.

Game: Goal
Publisher: Virgin Games
Authors: Dino Dini (Design & Code), Design Systems (Visuals), Allister Brimble (Sound) ETA: Summer

Briefly: Dino Dini, the coder behind Kick Off, Kick Off 2 and Player Manager, was working on a Kick Off 3 for Anco. Now he's not. Now he's working for Virgin Games on a football simulation provisionally titled Goal. Why? Who won the war anyway? (Joke.) Oops...

The Creator Speaks: We don't like Kick Off. It's nothing like football. Oh, and so having a ball stuck to your foot is realistic is it? Get real. Do you really want to play for 90 minutes? With all the tedious staccato play? And so on?

"People want a result," says Goal author Dino Dini. "You need the elements of football but you also have to supply what people want from a computer game."

GOAL

The good news for those who found Kick Off unplayable is the player control has been improved no end for Goal. Each player's abilities are determined by eight attributes: pace (top speed), stamina (endurance), aggression (the likelihood of performing a foul), resilience (the likelihood of sustaining injury during a tackle), passing and shooting accuracy, and tackling and 'keeping skills.

You can still dribble the ball, trap and pass it, and perform headers, scissor kicks, and chips (only now you can determine the height) but, to make life easier, three new variables have been introduced: acceleration, deceleration and turning circles.

It's not as complicated as it sounds. The players don't immediately run at full pelt, and they don't all stop on a ha'penny. The faster a player's moving, the larger his turning circle. What it boils down to though is greater ball control at slower speeds. And because a player actually turns and defending players can't move through his back, you can keep them at bay.

"The philosophy behind the changes is that it's easier to play to start with but has greater depth," says Dino. "You can play straight away and as your confidence grows you can play faster and show more skill."

The behaviour of the computer-controlled players on your team has been improved, too. "They don't tackle and foul as they used to in Kick Off. That was a problem. Only the human player has that privilege now."

There's no offside rule. "I've never been a fan," says Dino. "Maybe you need it in real soccer, but you don't need it here."

What about new regulations, such as the backpass rule? "Goal is structured such that there won't be an opportunity to break the new backpass rule, it's as simple as that."

"A potential Sensible Soccer socker"

Goal sports two viewpoints: a close up one a la Kick Off and a more remote look. You can play with either or both – you decide whether to switch between them manually when necessary or leave the computer to display the more remote view for throws, corners and goal kicks.

"The players are larger but the scale is the same as Kick Off," says Dino. "The angle of the view to the pitch has changed – it's decreased from 70 degrees to 45 degrees, so it's less of a plan view."

"All the graphics have been redone. All the

There are four new pitches: muddy, which is the heaviest; normal, which is like Wembley; wet; and the stripy one, which is similar to the normal pitch. There's no icy pitch – no-one ever played it. There are six kit styles, too (the same as Kick Off 2 in fact)."

A large portion of memory has been allocated for atmospheric spot effects. As well as such essentials as whistles, player grunts and so on, the crowd sound features chants and grows louder as the ball nears a net.

"There'll be more sound than in Kick Off," says project manager Mike Meringue. "There are all sorts of possibilities, like the crowd chanting when a cack player's on the ball, and being more appreciative when a good player's in possession. And things like "OOOOAAH!" for near misses."

Dino's adopted a new approach to the execution of throws, corners and set-piece free kicks. Gone are the tedious icons and preset joystick movements. Now a line of dots is used to represent the strength, direction and height of the throw or kick. The position of the wall and the number of players in it is easy to determine.

Aftertouch can be used immediately after any throw or shot, be it a set-piece or the 'keeper. (Aftertouch is the football simulation equivalent of controlling a character slightly in mid-jump in a platformer, only here it's the path of the ball which is affected. It's impossible and hardly realistic but it is a real playability booster.)

The 'keeper automatically performs all the saves to the best of his ability, but you get to control a few steps and determine where he throws or kicks the ball, with aftertouch if need be. You do, of course, control the 'keeper's diving when on the receiving end of a penalty.

Penalties are less hassle. From the penalty spot, the player simply kicks the ball in the desired direction, affecting the elevation and applying aftertouch if desired. There's no arrow to watch as there was in Kick Off, and no fuss.

The replay feature is

And as far as options are concerned... "There'll be the standard cups and league systems, and you'll be able to edit them," says Mike

Meringue. "We're definitely having all the teams and players from the English, French, Italian and German Premier Leagues.

There are 22 teams in the English Premier League, 20 in the French and 18 in the Italian and German, so that's at least 78. We're looking at having some more teams, but we may leave it at that because there'll be a team editor so you can change the names."

A more remote view of the action in Goal.

More goal-mouth drama in Goal.

Perhaps one of the biggest additions to Kick... – Goal, sorry – is the option to play with the pitch view rotated through 90 degrees, ie, the goals are positioned to the left- and right-hand sides of the field. "People asked for it, it's as simple as that," says Mike Meringue. "The playability's the same. It's just a matter of taste."

But what does Dino think of the competition? "I've had little experience with other football simulations, so I wouldn't like to comment."

Will he spend the rest of his life writing soccer simulations? "I don't know. But I'd like to do a player management simulation with the Goal engine. There's a lot of potential there."

Verdict So Far: At the end of the day, I reckon the boy Dino's done good. Goal's a potential Sensible Soccer socker for sure.

Kilbaba's a bad boy, and his henchmen are heavily into macho posturing with large guns.

With intro screens like this, you just know things are going to explode with alarming regularity.

Hold on, why all the trees? Isn't this DESERT strike?

DESERT STR

Publisher: Electronic Arts
Authors: In house
ETA: Mid February

Briefly: There can't be many games that have a multi-billion dollar advertising budget, but that's what the Gulf War was for the the creators of Desert Strike. The setting, missions and weaponry are all shamelessly ripped off from the bang-shoot of '91 whose most memorable fact was that the Americans killed more allied soldiers than the Iraqis did. It's been kicking around on the consoles for about a year now, and been an enduring hit, but it's taken until now to get onto the Amiga.

Desert Strike's set in a mythical and unnamed gulf state ruled by the tyrannical dictator General Kilbaba, who bears more than a passing resemblance to a certain Mr S Hussein, 13 The Poplars, Baghdad. This evil ruler's been making nasty advances on his friendly neighbours, and purely for the sake of world peace (and nothing at all to do with the oil reserves, honest guv), the Yanks have decided to stick their nose into an escalating situation that's nothing to do with them. Rather than start a full-scale ground war, they've decided to send in small scale strikes to cripple the country. In the first wave, ground units have established forward supply bases and got shot up into the bargain, so it's up to you to go in as the second wave, save your buddies, blast the bad guys, win the war and generally be the kind of hero that John Wayne was in Sands Of Iwo Jima.

Thankfully you've got a

Speaking of explosions, check out this 'Wuumph' compared with the rather feeble SNES 'pop'.

More dense, green, lush and verdant foliage. Hmmm...

spanking new Apache ground attack helicopter and a co-pilot to help you in this task, and plenty of state-of-the-art firepower to throw at the bad guys. Flying at a steady height over the desert, you can move in any direction across an isometric 3D terrain. Essential to the game is the map screen, which shows you all your targets and supplies, and pinpoints allied soldiers that have been listed missing in action (MIA).

Initially, there are quite a few MIA's, but as the game progresses, they get killed off by roaming enemies. Apart from the obvious humanitarian aspect of chopping the enemy into meaty shreds to save the lives of your fellow countrymen, it's worth picking them up, as every time you transport them to a friendly base, your damaged helicopter is repaired.

Fuel and ammunition are limited (you get a realistic load of missiles and cannon shells) and once you've exhausted the base supplies, you've got to scrounge your enemies' dumps. These are hidden in buildings all over the place, and it's quite a skill to balance attacking objectives with resupplying at the right time.

The Creators speak:

I asked Gary Roberts from Electronic Arts why it had taken so long to get round to doing the Amiga version. "We didn't start it until we'd almost finished the original, and

"Thankfully you've got a spanking new Apache"

Your mother ship and main base. And before you ask, no, you can't shoot at it.

'It's the Turtle Wax, I tell you, it brings out the colour, mate.'

Stormin' Norm himself tells you what to blow up. Pretty much everything, really.

The war zone is littered with wreckage, and echoes to distant gunfire.

As part of the new graphics, the power station's had a total redesign, but that won't stop you reducing it to a pile of bricks.

it's taken us longer than we expected. Sure, we could have knocked it out in a shorter time, but we've put in all manner of new improvements. The basic game structure is the same as the Sega version, but we've totally redrawn or touched up ALL of the graphics." The Amiga version certainly looks wonderful, making the Sega version appear quite bland by comparison and Gary explained why. "We've redrawn them in 32 and 64 colours as we felt that the original Sega sprites (in 16 colours) just weren't good enough for an Amiga game. We've also made the desert background look more like a battle-field by putting in burning vehicle wrecks and smoking oil patches."

Apart from glaringly obvious differences such as a completely re-designed power station, the most noticeable additions to the graphics are the huge fireballing explosions that replace the rather weedy blips of the original. "We took the explosions from a video of real missiles hitting targets, and then hand drew them from this video reference. These pyrotechnic displays take up over 40K, but we've found that people like explosions in games, and the satisfaction of taking out an airfield is so much more with these new effects."

The other major improvement is the sound, which is just wonderful. Distant gunfire and explosions add to the feeling of being in a war zone, the soldiers scream when you blast them, and there are even voices that warn you that your armour is critically low. I thought that using a woman's voice was a bit out of place, but Gary set me right. "The US Air Force are now using women's speech to warn pilots of impending danger. They actually digitise the pilot's daughter or wife, as they've found these attract the pilot's attention in the heat of battle." I stand corrected, and can't argue with McDonnell Douglas (makers of the Apache) who have given the programmers advice and reference videos to get the feel of the game right. Most of the sound, in fact, has been digitised from US training videos.

The map screen. So you don't, er, get lost.

An unlucky US pilot loses his no-claims bonus.

Although the game structure is the same, Gary says that the gameplay is a lot more dynamic. "There're more private wars going on between American and gulf foot soldiers, and the enemy are more aggressive towards the Apache, they'll even destroy buildings to get at the chopper. Overall we feel that it's more than a straight conversion, and that it's far better than the Sega version, which is no mean feat!"

As far as questions about the sequel Jungle Strike, everyone at EA is being cagey. "I've seen a fair bit of it," admits Gary, "but I'm just going to sit back with a big grin on my face and tell you to watch out for it, it's awesome!"

Verdict so far:

Visually, Desert Strike's even more impressive than either the Sega or Nintendo versions, with bigger and better graphics and sound, and EA are even considering releasing data disks to expand the number of missions, though this is, of course, some way off. It's good to see that a software company has taken the time to do a proper conversion from one format to another, and although we've yet to see a finished copy, it looks as though this will run as smoothly and quickly as the original. This game's been a top 10 Mega Drive game ever since it was released, for the simple reason that it's incredibly good fun. And with this new version, it looks like Amiga owners are definitely going to get one better than those console types.

"We took the explosions from a video of real missiles"

There're groovy delta-wing jets and huge 'Badoosh!' fireballs on the Amiga version.

CHUCK ROCK II SON OF CHUCK

Game: Chuck Rock II - Son Of Chuck

Publisher: Core Design

Authors: Dan Scott (programming), Richard Morton (graphics)

ETA: April

Briefly: You've probably already worked out for yourself that this is the sequel to Chuck Rock, yes? In this latest prehistoric (er, if that's not a contradiction in terms) lark, Chuck and Ophelia Rock's son Chuck II sets out to rescue his kidnapped pop (now a successful car manufacturer) from the clutches of evil industrial rival Brick Jagger, head of the Datstone Car Company (oh please, etc). This he does with the aid of a big club (replacing Dad's belly-butt and rock-lobbing escapades from the first game) with which he maims and brutalizes his way through five levels (each divided into three stages) of Chuck Rock-style arcade platforming mayhem.

The creators speak: Dan and Richard are both 19 and between them have worked on games as diverse as Premiere, Heimdall, Wolfchild, and Scooby And Scrappy Doo. They're very proud of their new baby, pointing out an impressive list of technical achievements (3-layer parallax, 50 frames-a-second scrolling, hundreds of colours on screen, realistic ropes and slopes and so on), but also keen to emphasize that this is going to be a game first and foremost.

"We hope to have more variation than something like Sonic The Hedgehog," as

"We've actually had quite a lot of time for this, on and off, more than we had for the first game. We've needed it, because we had to think harder to come up with new ideas and characters that we didn't use in the first game, and producing different backgrounds for all the levels was a bit of a problem too. We've got as much freedom as we want in designing the game, but time is a constant bugbear."

Verdict so far: It's more of the same, certainly, but this is looking pretty impressive. The giant sprites are excellent, the sub-games add a little variation, and the slapstick humour of the first game is back in force. We loved the first game, and although we'd like to see this one speeded up a little bit from the early demo we looked at, I wouldn't be at all surprised if we ended up loving this one too.

● STUART CAMPBELL

Son of Chuck displays the fine athletic prowess inherited from its parent.

Left: Get a load of those graphics, Mrs McGinty. As you can see, Chuck II boasts slopes, curves and loads more of those wacky dinosaur dudes.

Fans of William Gibson's books will be instantly familiar with the concept of Cyberspace.

CYBERSPACE

Game: Cyberspace
Publisher: Empire
Authors: Oxford Digital Enterprises
ETA: July

Briefly: As Richard Yapp of ODE says, "It's impossible to describe Cyberspace briefly." Let's hand the mic over to him...

The creators speak: "Based on the tabletop role-playing from Iron Crown Enterprises, Cyberspace creates an entire city viewed in full-screen 3D perspective. An adjustable head-up-display is the player interface, there's no control panel as such."

It all sounds suspiciously like virtual reality.

"Yeah, it's such a misused term, but I really haven't seen another computer game which comes as close to virtual reality as this one. With the user-definable HUD the player can even define how the game is controlled."

Is all the action city-based?

"Yes, it's all indoors – though the player does get the occasional glimpse of the world outside. The city actually contains around one million people, all going about their work in 100,000 different buildings. We're really trying to create a living, breathing city – but we want to make sure that it doesn't result in a worthy but boring game."

The city's inhabitants all interact with each other, have places to live, work and so on. They even all look different – achieved using a combination of bitmaps and vectors. Different characters even have different walks – plus they'll be noticeably different when it comes to communicating with them."

How does the communication work?

"It's context sensitive, with characters responding to the player's questions (available from a list). It's also possible to show a character an object to prompt a different line of conversation. When replying to questions from the computer characters, the player isn't just limited to a yes or no, but can be sarcastic, aggressive etc. All these elements will affect how they, and their colleagues deal with you. The fact that computer characters relate opinions about you to other computer characters is an important point to remember. It's possible to build up alliances, enemies, different companies, gangs, agencies – which you can either alienate or befriend."

Where does the Cyberspace element fit into it?

"The game is set one hundred years in the future, in a massive American city. A mega corporation owns most of the buildings, with guards patrolling their corridors – cannon fodder if you like. Killing the average man on the street has more far reaching consequences. Although there's a heavy adventure element – the player doesn't initially know what the ultimate goal is – there's a fair bit of combat in the game. Hooking up to computers in the city takes the player into cyberspace itself – a computer generated world within the game world. Doing this will lead to countless sub-plots.

Although it's based around the tabletop game, we've decided to concentrate on just one character, with the computer acting as 'dungeon master' in an intelligent way – reacting to the player's performance, keeping interest up, and moving the plot along. If a player isn't making much progress, then it'll introduce something to guide the story one stage further.

So what is Cyberspace exactly? Is it action, role-playing, or strategy?

"Although we've implemented the tabletop game system completely there's the 3D aspect – giving everything a real time, action slant. The game works on several levels – it's not just walking around solving little puzzles. The Cyberspace game engine is such that it's like having a camera crew and cast – it's then up to us to design something around that. But whereas a film is completely linear, this is a game of almost infinite branches."

Verdict so far: Wow, it sure sounds like an epic in the making. ODE assure us that it won't be big but boring, but that's always hard to achieve when you've got an entire city and a million people roaming around inside your Amiga. This has the potential to play and feel like nothing else – time will tell.

● MARK RAMSHAW

Where the streets have no name, and the corridors aren't too sure of their identity either.

"It's like having a camera crew and cast"

The 3D effects look particularly impressive when characters walk around the place.

Right: Effectively a game within the game, cyberspace is an essential part of Cyberspace. Is it clear?

Entering the world of cyberspace, where computer programs are shown as polygons.

GAMES

The time has come, the Walrus said, to talk of many things: of shoes and ships and sealing wax, of Desert Strike and Sleepwalker, and why the sea is boiling hot and whether Legends Of Valour and Transarctica are any good.

JUST WHO DO WE THINK WE ARE?

JONATHAN DAVIES

This month, we decided that we'd try to improve our superstar images and tell you all about the famous people we'd met. We asked Jonathan if he'd ever said anything to anyone famous. "I said 'Just there, please' to Terry Pratchett. Is that the sort of thing you're looking for?" Yes, actually, it is.

RICHARD LONGHURST

And what about you, Rich? You must have had a few brushes with the great and the good. What have you ever said to a famous chap? "I once said 'Thank you very much' to the late Ted Croker who was then the Secretary of the FA. Nothing else springs to mind."

DAVE GOLDER

Dave had a dream come true this month when he interviewed Sylvester McCoy at the Theatre Royal in Bath, but that wasn't exciting enough for us. "While I was there, I said 'Ooh, sorry' to Rolf Harris, I suppose that's what you want."

GARY PENN

Being that much older and more worldly, we expected great things from our Gaz. "I met Lewis Collins in a lift and I wanted to say 'You're not as tall as I expected' but he still looked mean and hard so I didn't bother."

MARK RAMSHAW

Mark's something of a romantic at heart – this month he took his girlfriend to Paris. "We saw Geordie actor and top pop star Jimmy Nail at the airport," he said, "and I was so impressed that all I managed to say was '.....'. Meeting him was more important to me than being the editor of a computer magazine."

RONNIE RANDALL

Ronnie is just a sickening individual. He's met almost every famous person and he's said loads of things to all of them. So many, in fact, that we didn't think it would be worth our while telling you about them. Then, when we realised that he hasn't written anything for us this month, we decided that it wasn't worth using his photo. But it was too late.

TIM NORRIS

So, Tim just what exactly have you said to a famous person? "I do remember saying 'No, take it' to Derek Thompson who plays Charlie Fairhead in Casualty. I think I also smiled at Julia Watson who used to play Dr Baz in the same series." You've met all the real stars, then.

TIM TUCKER

Unlike the rest of us, Tim used to have an exciting job before he came to AP – he was a pop star. "I can't remember exactly where it happened, but I said 'They're over there, on the left' to Ray Davis, the chappie from the Kinks."

MARK WINSTANLEY

Mark's a bit of a film and TV guru-type, so we had high hopes for some great star-related quotes. "I was working on the special effects crew for a TV movie and I said 'Yes, I think it is' to Roy Scheider. What a great guy he is."

ADAM PETERS

We needed Adam this month to balance the pyramid (although not for any actual writing). Unfortunately, we didn't get time to ask him about his encounters with the rich and famous so that's that sketch knackered.

LISA NICHOLLS

Lisa's met so many famous people, she didn't know where to start. "I'm so lovely," she said, "that the stars are practically falling over themselves to talk to me. I think I once said 'Fancy another drink' to Violet Berlin from Bad Influence!"

STUART CAMPBELL

Our very own cunning little Celt (or something like that) has met the most famous Scot of them all. "It was a few years ago now, and I said 'Here, use mine' to Isla StClair." Frankly, Stu, there's no way any of us can top that. That's amazing.

JACQUIE SPANTON

According to Jacquie, our own Lisa qualifies as a famous person. "It's because she gets more fan mail than all the rest of us put together," she said, "and I hate her. I've said loads of things to her, though. I said 'That looks awful' several times. I've said 'Are you really going to make it that colour?'. Most often, though, I just say 'No.'"

How does our scoring system work, then?

1. We tell it like it is. We think very carefully about our reviews and games get the mark we think they deserve. Good game or bad, we'll make sure you know what we think.
2. Rating systems get confusing so we give a single percentage mark and a few summing-up sentences.
3. Apparently the third point isn't funny any more.

On entering the town this guy is on hand to give the first clue.

Loiter around for too long and the crooked king and his cronies will imprison you – or even worse – fine you.

Eek, it's a big brown bear. Just be thankful that he's behind bars – where all wild animals belong. Yeah, right.

A-ha, there's the vampire bat cage. But there seems to be a lack of bats in the area. Oh boy.

THERE SHE WAS JUST A-WALKING DOWN THE STREET

Game: Legends Of Valour
Publisher: US Gold
Price: £39.99
Authors: Synthetic Dimensions
Release: Out now

Now where did I put that first paragraph? It must be around here somewhere. Just a moment. Ah, here it is...

'Jacquie Colleen was a hard case, and she didn't care who knew it. Her latest collection was the talk of all Manhattan socialites, and the fashion chain just continued to expand. Sitting here, at the head of the expansive dinner table, she gazed at the four lithe young men one by one. "Which one will I be taking home tonight?" she asked herself.'

Mmm, that's not quite right, is it? Ah, just one moment. Here it is...

'Tolkizen slowly approached the town. Mounted on his sweating, panting steed, his shoulders were heavy and his sword clanked painfully against his thigh. Thoughts of a night of hearty drinking with his cousin Sven filled his mind, as he rode through the town gates.'

Sounds kind of clichéd doesn't it? And it's not just because I'm terrible at fiction either – the whole fantasy genre has been done to death – in fiction and in computer games. These days it takes some really fresh ideas and either a total belief in, or a healthy disrespect for, the subject matter to lift fantasy material out of the doldrums.

So where, you ask, in typical reader fashion, does Legends Of Valour fit into this homespun theory? Kind of almost in the fresh ideas and healthy disrespect department to be honest, but more of that later. First I ought to tell you a little bit about the game itself, complex

Legends Of Valour – a breakthrough in Money, gems and other valuables are kept here.

"A far cry from the blocky cell movement of EOTB"

This is the (empty) backpack, with space for six objects.

Nearly two years in development, Valour is only the second Amiga game to utilise texture-mapped graphics (Wing Commander being the first). Offering the player total freedom in a 3D environment, every wall is patterned, people and other creatures walk around, buildings rise into the air, and details abound. Even windows are a staple of the Valour world, giving glimpses inside buildings, and even out onto other streets. It's all a far cry from the blocky cell movement of Eye Of The Beholder, Dungeon Master and Black Crypt. That's the theory, anyway. The reality is pretty much the same, but quite slow unless it happens to be running on an A1200 or some other accelerated Amiga.

Because of this problem with speed, Valour offers three 3D window sizes. Remember, however, that the largest is only half a screen big, and the two smaller sizes – although offering huge improvements in speed – become less attractive propositions. Do bear in mind however, that even the slowest 3D movement is preferable to the blocky movement of Beholder and the like. Having a real, fleshed-out 3D world to move around in is a great improvement, even if (like most miracles) it does take a little longer. The only other real downside to the 3D system is a lack of upwards and downwards movement. It's possible to go up and down with the use of stairs, but the actual smooth movement only really occurs in two planes – it's not possible to jump, for instance. It's a minor niggle, but it leaves the game somewhat flat. (Ho ho. – Prod Ed)

But even the most advanced 3D techniques amount to little without decent scenarios, a well-mapped environment, a good control system, and a feeling of excitement. Valour starts off on the right foot, with the plot basing the entire game in, and below the town of Middelburg. Bard's Tale featured towns, but in Valour it actually looks and feels like a town. Every building serves a purpose, people go about their lives, different groups occupy different areas, and they all treat the player in different ways.

The King's guards are probably the most important group – with the power to imprison you for any crimes you've committed, or to frame you for ones you haven't. They serve the new king of Middelburg, though followers of the deposed king, or even the king of the far-off mainland can be found in the town.

Temples and guilds are the other main organisations to take note of. It's possible to join up to four guilds at once – though some guilds don't get along with others, so the choice isn't an entirely arbitrary one. Some guilds, such as the Men-At-Arms Guild, will teach the player fighting abilities. The Thieves' Guild (which is hidden, incidentally) teaches lock-picking skills, while other guilds teach the use of spells and suchlike. All the factions really do serve to flesh out the town, as well as help the player progress. Temples do likewise, with allegiance to a particular deity opening up a different route of progress through the game.

And while you're considering which faction to join, there's always rented accommodation to worry about, and a means to earn enough to pay for it. Reading notices in taverns is invariably a good way of picking up odd jobs, though trading is another way to raise capital. As to actual missions, there are far too many to mention here. Some are simply errands as posted on the notice boards, others are challenges set by a particular guild.

There is no set route through the game, with a choice of hundreds of challenges to take up at any one time. And of course completing one task will more often than not give way to another.

All this to-ing and fro-ing around the town serves to help the player map it out and to gain in experience. But things are never quite that simple. Loiter around doing →

As reapers go, this one isn't very grim. Still, he's got the scythe, so he is a reaper.

RPGs, or just a collection of clever graphic routines? Revealed – all this and more.

b) it isn't very good. A fight consists of throwing a weapon or swinging, slicing or jabbing a sword, axe or whatever using a couple of icons. It's not the most inspiring of events, and the lacklustre sound effects don't really serve to heighten the tension either.

But fighting isn't really what this game is all about. Interacting and exploring are where it's at, and it's in that area that Valour really makes the grade.

nothing for too long and you just could get thrown into an underground jail. This can lead to all sorts of underground adventures, where all kinds of monster await. And this is where fighting comes in...

The reason I haven't mentioned combat yet is because a) it isn't actually the most important element of the game, and

The programmers have obviously realised this, because they've given an option to leave fighting to the computer, and they've really emphasised the exploration-of-the-town aspect. The game comes with a mostly unlabelled map. A key at the side lists the major locations, but not where they are. By talking to other characters in the game, the player gradually becomes more familiar with location names, gets directions to them, finds them, marks them on his map, and so on. An on-screen map is also available to help clarify things, and a mock newspaper which also comes with the game, points the player in the right direction to a number of useful and key locations. Now this is the way to do a role-playing game - you can leave your graph paper and endless hack-and-slash behind.

The Valour programmers are no slackers when it comes to control methods and presentation either. Just about any function can be performed with the mouse and a bunch of icons, and three different movement options are available. Whether you prefer moving a compass, clicking on icons or having direct mouse control, Valour can help out. And - hey! - remember all those nasty things like hit points, and other statistics? Well, you can forget all about them, because Legends Of Valour does.

But, wait, in typical Ramshaw style, I've just remembered a whole bunch of stuff, and space is running out. There's the character creation bit where you get to change the face and kit out you new character, and you even get background on his/her father and family profession.

And there's the gambling element to the game, the digitised pictures of shop, guild, temple and pub characters. There's the gambling, the food. The underground stuff with all the different races of creatures. There's the way different characters have different heights, or the way choosing to play a dwarf gives a different eye level during the game. There's the layout of the town - with its docks, its dwarven district and other surprises. There's the way shops close on Sundays, and day turns to night. And there's the presence of werewolves and vampires - and the great way in which both afflictions affect the player. There's the big mission at the end of the game, the animation sequences, the clever way in which everyone in the game has their own beliefs, rather than there being any clear band of good guys or bad guys. And I really must tell you about...

● MARK RAMSHAW

NUDE CHARACTER CREATION SHOCKER!

Hey - I've created Charles Bronson!

Some weapons and armour are a real must.

Female heroes are also a possibility in this game of equality.

Below: Here we get a glimpse of the character's home village.

Adjustments to the visage of a guy (or gal) give some kind of artistic freedom.

▲ UPPERS Incredibly complex texture mapping, clever interwoven plot construction, and not a statistic or dice roll in sight. The Amiga RPG comes of age. This is the only Amiga role-playing game you need to remember.

▼ DOWNERS On a standard Amiga the texture mapping can be painfully slow (at anything other than postage stamp size), the sound is under-used, the fighting is a real disappointment, and - despite the graphic style - it still won't attract the arcade crowd. It's just one more reason to buy an A1200 (and a hard drive). And don't even bother playing it with just a single disk drive. Oh, and the price is well over the top. Since when did Amiga games cost forty quid? Eh?

THE BOTTOM LINE

Fact: This is the best role playing adventure game around on the Amiga. A few decidedly non-user friendly bits and a hefty price tag aside, Valour is a real success. Not all RPG fans are going to like its fresh approach, but this is just about as advanced as it gets on the Amiga.

88 PERCENT

VEKTOR STORM

You are the Commander of a small reconnaissance fleet sent to explore an anomaly in the space-time continuum, otherwise known as a "Black Hole". By way of an unexplained equipment malfunction, your fleet exits hyperspace too close to the vortex and is drawn into the void.

When you emerge from the worm hole, you find yourself in a universe fragmented from your own since the big-bang. Everything you knew as truth is now false. Even the very laws of physics have changed.

For countless eons, a sole entity has occupied this universe alone, waiting....

To return to your universe, you must first meet the challenge set before you by your captor: Beat him at his own game. Your four remaining ships must fight against an arsenal of intelligent weapons on a series of battlegrids.

The rules are simple. The stakes, Your very existence!

Experience graphics, animation and stereophonic sound like you've never felt before... Pick up a copy of Vektor Storm today, and prepare yourself for the fight of your life!

'Twas the night before... no that's something else. Anyway, Mr Moon's got his night cap on and the whole town is asleep, including Lee (The Stupid Kid)...

...but that doesn't stop him standing on the dog and setting off to try to destroy himself in a series of bizarre sleepwalking accidents.

SLEEPWALKER

In celebration of Red Nose Day, Ocean have a way of getting you to part with cash

Game: Sleepwalker
Publisher: Ocean
Authors: CTA Development
Price: £25.99
Release: Out now

Xerxes, king of Persia, once said on surveying his army, 'I am moved to pity, when I think of the brevity of human life, seeing that of all this host of men not one will still be alive in a hundred years' time.' And after a couple of days of playing Sleepwalker, I'm beginning to understand how he felt. Because if I had an army of Ralph The Dogs instead of the single more or less indestructible one you get here, I'd be cruising for an assassination myself in no time. Now I know what you're all thinking. You're thinking 'Oh bloody hell, what's the useless prat on about now?' Well, it's simple. What I'm on about is that this is a tricky, difficult and frustrating game to play, but I still can't put it down. Controlling Ralph The Dog on his near-impossible mission to save Lee (The Stupid Kid) from certain Death By Somnambulism, I've had poor Ralph falling under speeding cars, swimming into electric eels, colliding with swinging demolition balls, crushed by industrial steam hammers, getting bitten by poisonous snakes, beaten up by nightclub doormen, turned into a bat by Dracula lookalikes and all manner of other unfortunate mishaps, but every time that he just picks himself up, dusts himself down and sets off bravely again on his appointed task, I can't bring myself to leave him to manage on his own. 'Manage what?' I supernaturally hear you all cry. Well, it's like this. Lee, the Sleepwalker of the "Waking up a sleepwalker is an Extremely Bad Thing"

Sometimes, a dog's gotta do what a dog's gotta do.

'This way kid.' Ralph leads the way in best lollipop dog style.

Don't look behind you, Lee...

Looks like Lee looked behind him. Ralph feigns ignorance.

One can't help but feel that things would have been easier if this window hadn't been left open.

"It's been excellently put together and it plays dreamily"

Extremely Bad Thing. Looks like Lee's in trouble, then.

Ah, well, not necessarily. You see, Lee has a guardian angel. Ralph

The Dog, his devoted pet, takes it upon himself to shadow Lee on his nocturnal travels, taking out hazards in his path and gently guiding his sleeping charge in the direction of safety, while all the time taking the utmost care never to wake him up. Of course, this means that Ralph himself more often than not falls victim himself to the things which would otherwise get to little Lee, but hey – it's a dog's life, don't you know?

So there you go, that's the game plan. All this stuff takes place over five scrolling levels, filled with hazards both natural (like water which Ralph can swim through but Lee mustn't fall into) and not-so-natural (like weird monsters who'll scare the little poppet to death). There are actually very few enemies as such, most of the game's difficulty coming in guiding Lee through →

But there's no use worrying about that now, you'll just have to jump out and set off after the wretched little scamp.

LEEPER

(for a good cause).

title, is a little boy with a problem. His problem is his predilection for falling out of his bedroom window and wandering in a trance through the streets of his hometown. This is, of course, a Bad Thing, because the streets are, of course, filled with all manner of hazards.

THINGS THAT GO BUMP IN THE NIGHT

Bumping into one of the said hazards would almost certainly cause our, er, hero to awaken from his slumbers, and as we all know, waking up a sleepwalker is an

It's not just a puzzle game – you get to maim jungle animals too.

With Lee temporarily hiding in safety, Ralph was as happy as a cat with two dustbin lids.

Eegh. You don't want to know what's just happened here.

Below: I'm sure I've seen that bloke somewhere before, y'know. I think it was in a Bugs Bunny cartoon and he was a woman.

If Ralph doesn't get moving, he's going to have a monkey on his back.

After stopping to sample the contents of a bottle found in the litter bin, Ralph and Lee stop for a bit of a sit down.

'Don't walk in front of the car – you'll kill yourself!'

the mazes of platforms. There's plenty of that, though – even in level one you'll be cursing and swearing at the little bleeder as Ralph's increasingly-frantic efforts all come to nothing as Lee blindly walks straight into walls and sewers. You'll need plenty of arcade talent as well as map-reading ability if you're going to make any progress at all in this game, but at least you do

Ralph and Lee get in some quick foxtrot practice.

Great Scott! What on earth's going on here?

"You really begin to feel for the poor put-upon pooch"

Ooer missus, get a load of the size of that level.

get a training level (in the style of Wizkid and Putty) which prints helpful hints on the screen to guide you through a sample stage and let you get the hang of the controls.

Mind you, you're not going to need much else. There's no depth in the game at all, which means you might well get a bit discouraged by the time you get past the first couple of levels. Sleepwalker does its best to keep you interested by means of bonus levels, little cartoon sequences which you only get to see if you complete enough of the previous level, and lots of funny new bits in each new level, but the basic gameplay doesn't change all the way through, and the difficulty level might just be enough to put you off before then. Still, this is all a bit picky, and it doesn't detract from the enormous fun that you'll get out of Sleepwalker. It's been excellently put together and it plays dreamily, and the tone's just right too – you really begin to feel for the poor put-upon pooch, and the dream sequences where he imagines what he'd like to see happen to Lee if he wasn't there to stop it are really sweet. I like this game, and if it can help save a few people from starving to death, then so much the better.

● STUART CAMPBELL

UPPERS The central character (the dog, not the kid) is completely lovable, it's very easy to get into, and it's extremely addictive. It's technically spiffing too, with some lovely graphics and fast, smooth parallax scrolling.

DOWNERS The controls can be a bit of a pain in the bum at times, and it's a bit repetitive by the end. Despite all the celebrity sampling, it's a bit lacking on the sound front, too. But hey – it's all for chardee, right?

THE BOTTOM LINE

A smashing little game, and definitely one that's worth having in its own right regardless of the Good Cause. It's not really one for the easily-frustrated, though.

84 PERCENT

Taking a break from hectic action, Ralph and Lee chill out.

ALL FOR CHARITY?

All of this is, of course, very lovely and heart-warming stuff. But just out of sheer Ebenezer Scrooge-type nasty-mindedness, I've been wondering something. Not just me, either – we've had several letters on the subject, and the subject is this. Now it might seem a bit petty, but it strikes me that out of a £25.99 selling price, £4.32 going to Comic Relief seems a bit, well, small. I mean, I remember when Band Aid and all that sort of stuff happened, the big deal was that about 90% of your money went straight to the charity, but with Sleepwalker we're talking about just over 16%. Is someone making a killing out of starving babies? To set the record straight, we spoke to Ocean's Gary Bracey. 'The first thing to point out here is that things are happening this way at the insistence of Comic Relief themselves. The reasoning behind their attitude is that if people are doing something for nothing, they're unlikely to make their best efforts. If everyone who gets behind this is still making money from it, albeit at a heavily reduced rate, then the product will do a lot better. A percentage of the profit from a real effort will be at least as good as the total profit from a half-hearted one. We've never tried to pretend we were breaking even on Sleepwalker. People are still making some money from it, but why shouldn't they? Sleepwalker wasn't a game specifically designed for Comic Relief, it was a top-quality product that we'd already spent two years developing and had high expectations of making lots of cash from. We could have just re-released Shadow Warriors or come up with a compilation of old stuff, as happened before with Soft Aid, but we put up a really good game that we could have sold normally. The programmers have to eat, we have to pay for our company overheads (Incidentally, Ocean pay for ad space for Sleepwalker as normal, but all the money so received by Future is donated straight to Comic Relief. – Ed), the distributors and retailers take their cut, and of course there's £4 in VAT coming off straight away. Everyone's doing this in good faith – we're not releasing anything else at the same time to compete with it, we're not sticking plugs for ourselves all over the game, everyone's margins have really been hammered. And anyway, the more money we make, the more money Comic Relief makes. At the end of the day, we're hoping to raise at least half a million quid for Comic Relief. The reality of the question is, 'Is it better to do it than not to do it?'

and I think there's an A man who does a lot of work for charity but doesn't like to talk about it, yesterday.

Kolotov keeps track of your journey, and the gun's there to shoot yourself when you foul up.

To cross this ravine, you'll need to have bought enough tracks, and have the man-and-mammoth-power to build the bridge. If your tactics are good, you'll be okay, otherwise this route is blocked.

TRANS

It's trains, planes and

Darren wiped the heavy droplet from his nose with the sleeve of his anorak, and peered through the grime and thumb prints that covered his thick-lensed glasses. Rain fell intermittently across the deserted platform as he calculated that the next Inter City wasn't due for another twenty minutes and sat back to enjoy his packed lunch.

As he chomped on his spam sandwiches, Wagon Wheel and coffee from a tartan thermos, Darren was completely unaware of the strange twist his life was about to take. Which was just as well really, for since the most exciting thing he'd ever done in his life was listen to heavy metal tracks backwards in the mistaken belief that he'd receive instructions from Satan, he was entirely unprepared for it.

As he sat, the eerie blue light of a time-warp shrouded him, causing sparks to fly painfully off his dental bridgework and numerous fillings. In an instant, he was whisked through the millennia, propelled by forces far beyond the understanding of us mere mortals.

This, unfortunately, is the main game screen. Doesn't look too exciting, does it?

And then...
 (Something relevant to the game happens? - Ed)

...Then he was standing knee-deep in snow next to a rail line (far larger than a European standard gauge track, he noted) and in shocked amazement he stared as a massive train blurred past him, the ornate snow plough throwing snow off the track with such a force that it took minutes to drift back down again. On and on it went, sparks from the funnel glittering in the icy air above the carriages.

And what carriages! Ten storeys high, entire jails rumbled past. In massive stables, mammoths snorted and munched on hay, while in glass-covered carriages, gardeners tended to their crops. Finally, gun crews serviced massive cannons and machine gun posts, while bawdy ballads were sung heartily in garrison carriages, the shutters locked down to keep out the biting wind. 'Blimey,' thought Darren as silence returned, 'that was even more impressive than the 332 Devonshire Scot that I once saw at Paddington.'

On board, the captain of the train

Transarctica (Who, it should be noted, is the character you play in the game, this 'Darren' chappy being the invention of a staff writer's literary pretensions. - Ed) was lost in his own despairing thoughts, unaware that the acne-ridden, shivering figure he'd just swept past was in fact a time traveller from the far distant past. While his personal secretary Kolotov recorded the results of the latest mammoth hunt, the captain paced nervously, running over the events of the last few months.

He'd believed the ancient writings that others considered heretical. He'd believed that the ice-age was man made and could be reversed. He'd been driven onwards in the belief that he could unlock the secret of Project 'Restore' so that the clouds that had obscured the sky for centuries could be driven away, and for the first time in a thousand years, mankind would see the sun. Breaking the ice-age would break the Viking Union's hold over the world, so they'd fought him all the way.

Wandering down to the engine room,

WHERE DO YOU GO TO, MY LOVELY?

You trade your goods for others in these market settlements.

Industrial centres supply carriages for your growing train.

automobiles – except it hasn't got any planes or automobiles in it.

coal burned out, and when Kolotov went to question the captain, he discovered the body. Panic rippled through the train. They were without a leader, without a quest, without hope. They needed a miracle.

A solitary figure limped out of the fog and snow, its feet gnarled by frostbite, its eyelashes frozen together. The screams and babble faded as the Transarctica crew turned and stared at this person who'd appeared out of the desolate wastes, a thousand kilometres from the nearest town. One by one they bowed before him. Surely this must be the chosen one...

(So are you. Chosen for the sack, that is. – Ed)

● MARK WINSTANLEY

UPPERS Brilliant stills and impressive music create a fascinating retro-vision as you captain the Transarctica through this apocalyptic world. Being mouse driven, it's instantly accessible, and the sheer number of locations mean you'll need both strategy and planning to solve the adventure, promising weeks of exploration before you bring back the sun.

DOWNERS Nice pictures aside, the game element isn't at all interesting, being just a train icon heading to location after location. Having to manually add the coal is another needless hassle. The arcade combat sequence is slow and boring and there's a lot of aimless travelling before you can start planning ahead and progressing with your quest. Not enough happens, really.

THE BOTTOM LINE

It's pretty much like Storm Master (by the same people) but with trains, and although it's a novel idea, it's one that only partly works. The attempt at a strategy/adventure crossover scores top marks for creativity and atmosphere, but what's lacking is any true gameplay or addiction. If you're into making copious notes while you play then you'll like trading and building up your train, but you'll need a lot of patience to cope with all the travelling.

salt and caviar for the essentials of tracks, slaves and soldiers, buying in areas of plenty and selling them for a profit in towns where demand was high. They'd gone to the industrial Ruhr and bought new carriages which, along with the ones they'd captured in battle, meant that the train now stretched for nearly a hundred carriages. He'd sent out spies to report back from all over the continent, kept his coal supplies plentiful by mining, and even carefully checked his routes out by sending out scout carts.

And for what? It seemed that he'd run and fought, traded and run for months now, but never seemed to get anywhere. He'd picked up a few vague rumours about a sanctuary of warmth, on the existence of a huge lake monster and he'd read a few pages from the journal of an ancient scientist, but now he was out of ideas. What did it all mean? Where should he turn next? He didn't know.

Sadly, the captain returned to his carriage, accepting the fact that he'd brought all these people on a wild and futile quest. The guilt of all the wasted lives too massive, the boredom of travelling for days too great for him to handle. He'd failed, and there was only one thing left. He reached for his revolver.

Transarctica ground to a halt as the CHUFF CHUFF!

From the operations carriage, spies are sent out, and your icy odyssey is mapped.

he was shocked that the navvies were still shovelling coal into the cavernous boiler, even though the pressure was dangerously high. If the boiler blew in these Siberian wastes it would be disastrous, but his crew refused to make any independent decisions, and he had to tell them to stop. Such responsibility meant that he was forced to spend half his days checking on the speed, coal supplies and steam pressure.

(Sorry to break your flow Mark, but when are you going to say that the game element is just an action screen consisting of a train network, along which you wend your weary way? And shouldn't you mention that the pictures, although beautiful, have little to do with the game, or that the missiles, combat and trading seem like a good idea, but are in fact duller than a dull thing? Whenever you're ready, Mark. – Ed)

For months now they'd been crossing the entire European/Asian land mass in their stolen train, avoiding Viking Union bases and attacking and looting their trains. They'd traded goods like fur,

Many would question the validity of converting a board game into a computer game. They'd say that it doesn't use the capabilities of the computer to enhance the game, or that it doesn't provide any more than a set of pieces and a board's worth of entertainment but at a much higher price, or that you can't play it in the bath or something. The counter argument would retaliate that for a start you have a computer opponent, which provides a better challenge to those who keep whopping the butts of all their mates, or indeed for those who don't have any mates. They'd point to Battle Chess as an example of a board game which has been enhanced by the battle sequences and animation.

Another good excuse for doing a board game on the Amiga is that it's simply unavailable as a board game. This appears to be the case with Ragnarok. Ragnarok, as the manual so informatively points out, is based on an ancient European board game called King's Table, the roots of which can be traced back to the Vikings (it says here, although I find it hard to believe that a marauding group of international vandals, whose sole reason for living was that there were still civilisations around that they hadn't completely slaughtered, could come up with an intricate board game involving a heavy strategic element).

Have you ever heard of King's Table? I know I haven't. (Stuart has. - Ed) And I bet if you had heard of it, or even read an in-depth account of how it's played and thought to yourself 'Hmmm, sounds like an interesting way of exercising my intellect using strategy combined with a ruthless determination to go for the kill when my opponent is at his weakest', then you wouldn't be able to just pop down the corner shop and get it anyway.

So now you have the chance to buy it for £34.99 in a fascinating new variation called Ragnarok. Not only that, you also get King's Table itself bundled with it. Your search is over, your life-time struggle is at an end, your mission is complete. (I should be doing PR for a living, I'd be good at that.)

OK, there might be the odd person out there who's been dying to get hold of King's Table (or any derivatives) their whole life, but for the most of us it's really a case of 'Well, what's that then?' And we're really going to need some convincing if we're going to shell out thirty five quid for a game that wasn't interesting enough to survive beyond a time when human intelligence stretched to

"It's actually a rather intriguing game"

The battle sequences are entertaining. (Above) the dwarf is at a size disadvantage, so he elects to shoot the big guy. (Left) but the big guy only needs to give him a good smack in the face.

wearing helmets with horns sticking out of them as some sort of personal statement.

Happily I can tell you that Ragnarok is interesting enough. It's actually a rather intriguing game which offers a wide variety of ways to achieve your objective. I admit I was expecting a kind of poor man's chess (or perhaps a moronically violent man's chess, considering its Viking roots). Instead you get a game which has similarities, no doubt, but has a completely different structure to it. Just look at the board layout and you'll see that it works in a different way.

The two opponents play black versus white, but unlike chess you don't get the same pieces on both teams. The white team plays with eight "Einherirar", the Ragnarok equivalent of pawns, Odin himself, who is equivalent to a King in chess, and four special pieces which have their own unique powers. These thirteen pieces are arranged in the middle of the table with Odin at the centre.

The black pieces are made up of twenty pawns (the Giants) and again four special pieces, and these twenty four pieces are arranged around the four sides of the table. The objective of the white team is to get Odin from the centre of the board to one of the four corner squares, thus winning the game. The objective of the black team is to prevent this from happening, and the black team wins if it surrounds the Odin piece on all four sides.

The black team always starts the game. The pawns can move an unlimited number of squares horizontally or vertically as long as nothing blocks their way. The special pieces have varying qualities, such as being able to jump over other pieces like that horsey one in chess, and before the game each player can choose the four special pieces that he wishes to use out of a choice of six.

To take an opponent's piece you have to sandwich it between two of your own, with the exception of a couple of special pieces which require surrounding on three sides and of course Odin who has to be cut off on all four. And that's about it really, with a few other inevitable technicalities in the rules. It might be as clear as mud to you at the moment, but I can assure you that it's dead easy, and if you're still unclear of what to do during the game it will tell you how each piece can move and what options you currently have open to you. You can even get advice on what move to make next.

It's a good game which requires totally different tactics from chess (although the similarities are obvious – there must be some common ancestry here). You can play a human opponent or a computer one. In order to beat the computer and progress to a higher opponent you have to beat it twice, once as black and once as white. To enhance the game further there's an animation run whenever a piece is taken, which is fairly amusing in some cases (like when the dwarf takes a swipe at the giant who does a back somersault to avoid the blow, only for the little guy to pull out a gun and shoot him in the groin). The computer opponents also add the odd quip to wind you up.

The difficult part now is actually rating this thing. I face a similar problem to Mark W in his Chess Master 2100

The doggy one finishes off his opponent.

review, in that we're really looking at a board game here and if you don't like the board game then you're not going to want it are you? Having said that, it's well executed, the animations enhance the action and Ragnarok the board game is not only a lot of fun but a good intellectual challenge too. If you're looking for an original board game with an intelligent strategic element then you'll love it. Anyone else will know that they aren't going to like this, so you can go on to the next review if you like. Simple, isn't it?

● TIM TUCKER

UPPERS Adequate graphics, nice animations, helpful pointers if you're a bit stuck on the rules, and a good board game underneath it all.

DOWNERS It is just a board game after all, and at thirty five quid it's more than you'd pay for the, er, real version (if you could find it).

THE BOTTOM LINE

(I hate to say this because it's such a cliché and means very little quite often but...) Great if you like this kind of thing. An excellent board game that looks and plays well, and even manages to give you a bit of a taste of Norse legend too. A tad expensive, but it will last you your whole life as a two player game. The only shame is that you can't arrange the pieces on your shelf and impress your friends. I don't think the box will have quite the same effect somehow.

Game: Combat Air Patrol
Publisher: Psygnosis
Authors: Ed Scio, Geoff Bramfitt
Price: £29.99
Release: Early March

Having responsibility for the lives of thousands of allied soldiers might seem a terrible burden for a single person, but in Combat Air Patrol it's just one of the many options you have in your mission to get Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait or. CAP's one of those flight sim – and then some – games, where you not only have the option of flying around happily firing off SAMs, but also control the entire ground war as well. Eek, that sounds a bit complex, doesn't it?

Well yes, but thanks to Psygnosis, CAP is an easy-to-fly affair. There's nothing more horrible than searching through a manual the size of the Hampshire to find out where the ignition key is, but thankfully the programmers have realised that no one cares about the lack of such details.

In the Instant Flight mode, you can just skip all the complexities, and quickly start off on the flight deck of Notice how the wings sweep back as you get your speed up? I did. I was most impressed.

And here's another pic of a plane.

the aircraft carrier Theodore Roosevelt, which is sitting in the middle of a sizable fleet in the Persian Gulf. The manual recommends that you use the keyboard controls, but it isn't a flying game if you can't use a joystick is it? So switching to the joystick mode, I took off, waggled around a bit and...

...and crashed into the sea a mere few hundred feet from the ship. Suffering the indignity of being pulled out of the briny, I strapped into my second plane and tried the keyboard like they suggested, and it flies perfectly. This sensation provokes a mixed response. On one hand, the motion is smooth and wonderfully detailed, but on the other, it's a shame you've got to fall back on the keys to control the plane with any degree of precision, as it kind of detracts from the feeling of flying by the seat of your pants.

"It's so impressively fast that it's hard to believe"

But back to the look of the game. As well as the exterior views, there's the normal front view complete with dials and Head Up Display. You can even look around the skies and, by some bizarre, Exorcist-esque manoeuvre, swivel your head round 180 degrees and smile at your startled co-pilot. Switching to the trailing view, the control surfaces on your plane move in a pleasingly realistic way. I'll say it at the end again, but it's worth saying that CAP's just about the fastest flight sim I've seen on the Amiga, and as such it's one of the most playable ones.

Of course, the point of CAP is that it's not just a flight sim, it's a Gulf War flight sim. The campaign mode starts you off at day one of the war and presents you with a map of the Kuwait, with the ground forces of either side drawn up against each other. You can target enemy units for reconnaissance or air attack, and move infantry or armour up to attack opposing forces. Obviously it would be impossible to fly every sortie yourself, so the game takes your performance from each mission and uses this as an average. In this way, if you're disastrous in a few missions, your poor performance will be reflected across the entire battle field.

COMBAT AIR

All you need now is a Tom Cruise haircut, a pair

Considering it's based on a war where the allies had total air supremacy after the first few days, there are an awful lot of enemy planes in CAP, but I suppose there wouldn't be much of a game without them. For most of the game they're nothing more than a fast-moving blip across your gunsight, but once you've got a Sidewinder locked onto them, then they're generally history. Unfortunately, the same can be said for you, and quite a lot of the time you get that sinking feeling as your hydraulics and engines pack up and 36 million dollars of fighter goes into a steep dive. Thankfully there's an eject option so you can at least watch your plane crash from the safety of a parachute.

There are several difficulty levels, which is just as well really. On the hard level you come under the sort of ground and air fire that you'd expect a novice pilot would receive when he flies a straight, level course across a war zone. It may be fearsomely authentic, but once you've been downed several times, it's good to know that you can bomb airfields, convoys and bridges at an easier level where the defenders are squinting myopically down their gun-sights.

Air threats are the staple of flight sims, but with CAP your missions revolve around destroying the ground targets, and your arsenal reflects this. There are the usual free-fall bombs, but why should you bother with them when you've got a high-tech arsenal? Walleye AGM-62 are gliding bombs that you release from a high altitude and guide in using a nose mounted TV camera view, where as the laser-guided variety give you a close up view of the target that's eerily close to the real attacks viewed on the news. These 'stand off' weapons are displayed convincingly, save you the anguish of getting shot to pieces, and add greatly to that 'Gulf War' feeling.

It's a brilliant game, and even more impressive when you compare it to last month's release Harrier AV8B. It's so impressively fast that it's hard to believe unless you see it, but there are a few niggly points.

It's possible, for instance, to load up so many weapons that your plane just plummets into the sea. I really can't imagine US ground crew being so stupid as to let you render a plane unflyable, so why allow this overload?

Also, on the harder missions, your life expectancy is in single minutes, but maybe this says more about my lack of pilot skills than the murderous level of ground fire. Small grumbles indeed for such an impressive game.

● MARK WINSTANLEY

Quite frankly, the guys on the receiving end would rather be at Pontins, Krakatoa.

You can spin this map so fast, it makes you sick.

I CAN'T READ AND I CAN'T WRITE, BUT I CAN FLY A JET FIGHTER. OR CAN I?

No engines, no weapons, and full of holes. All in all, the end of a typical sortie.

Another bungled mission is a second away from ending due to a lack of wings.

Mayday, mayday, I'm hit and I'm going down. Oh dear, I can see why the Air Force laughed heartily at me when I applied to be a pilot.

And here's the same attack, from a different view. Clever, eh?

▲ UPPERS Fast, smooth and extremely playable. The ground attack scenarios and weapons systems offer a wide range of missions, and the campaign is easy enough to make you want to play it.

▼ DOWNERS Not precise enough control on a joystick, silly weapon loading system and, um, that's about it really.

THE BOTTOM LINE

With plenty of weapons to play about with, varying missions and an emphasis on playability rather than realism, this is the new bench-mark game in the genre of flight sims.

COMPLETE control

If you're stuck, confused, or just too lazy to play the game for yourself, Big Jonathan Davies has the tips you need.

LOTUS III (Gremlin)

Stephen Jaques of Newbiggin-by-the-Sea reckons he's found an extra course. Type GAMESMAST into the code box and you'll be able to play the special course designed for the programme.

A turbocharger is a device which forces more air into the cylinders.

BC KID (Ubi Soft)

Here's a little tip from Christopher Harker (aged 11) of Shephed. Jump up and turn on the autofire on your joystick, he suggests, and you'll glide through the air while spinning madly. This should help you dodge all those horrible dinosaurs and volcanoes, he adds.

Volcanoes are mountains with holes in the top which eject molten rock (lava).

FIREFORCE (ICE)

Take your roster disk and copy it. Then, if you die, place one of the roster disks in the drive and follow the prompts on screen. Once on the roster screen, reload the other disk and your commando will still be alive and kicking. You can do this as many times as you want – just keep using the same disk for failed missions. That's according to Richard Lambert (aged 14) of Chesterfield, anyway.

PLEASE WRITE!

If you've got any tips for Amiga games, send them in. The address is: Complete Control, AMIGA POWER, 30 Monmouth Street, Bath BA1 2BW.

STREET FIGHTER II (US Gold)

The thing about Street Fighter II is that people get very excited about it. And they get excited about the tiniest things. To the ordinary man in the street, the idea of playing 'same character vs same character' might not seem exactly revelatory. But to the Street Fighter II aficionado it's headline news. Presses were stopped across the globe when someone discovered how to do it on the Super Nintendo version, and now Amiga owners can do it too.

To play with Guile vs Guile, for example, what you've got to do is start the game and select a two-player game. Let Player 2 select his control method first. Then Player 2 should select Guile. (He must select his character and press fire first.) Then Player 1 selects any other character. You should let Guile win. Then do exactly the same, but with Player 1 selecting a different character, also letting Player 2 press his fire button first and win. Repeat this so Guile wins four consecutive matches over four characters. Player 2 should then select Zangief, pressing fire first, and Player 1 should select Guile. When the match begins you should both be Guile.

It seems like an awful lot of effort, but Adrian Harper and Charles Lindsay, both of Douglas on the Isle of Man, assure us it's worth the trouble.

PREMIER MANAGER (Gremlin)

A football management game that's actually quite good? We're still reeling...

Alan Welsh of London reckons that if you dial 753423 – Gremlin's phone number – on the telephone you'll activate a cheat mode. Your goalie, now called Gremlin, will have his handling and stamina skills raised to 99, making him really rather good.

CURSE OF E

Tim Tucker takes you on a magical journey to the snowy wastes, the graveyard and 1 Last month we left Brad back on the country road after successfully completing his quest for the fan. From here go back into town, and at the crossroads turn right. You will arrive at Mr Benn's costume shop. Give Mr Benn some money and he will offer you a dress. Take it, go to the changing room at the back of the shop and put it on. A door out of the changing room opens, so what are you waiting for?

THE SNOWY WASTE:

2 You're in the snowy waste. Take the plank that's beside you and go south. You come across a fish leaping out of a water hole. Throw the plank on the water hole and pick up the fish from the plank. Go right and you'll come across an Eskimo fishing. Unfortunately you seem to be a bit smelly, so much so that the poor blighter passes out. For now, go south until you come to a rather strange scene involving a walrus and an ice monster. Say "Hi" to the walrus. Go left to the ledge, then north where you'll find a creature trapped in a block of ice. Ignore him for now, go right and pick up the deodorant.

3 Come back to where you met the walrus and the ice monster – the walrus has gone. Pick up the snowballs by the ice monster and throw them at him. He will release the creature he swallowed earlier. Go back to the Eskimo, but this time wear the deodorant to stop him passing out. Give him the fish and he will whisk off, well chuffed, leaving his fishing rod. Take the fishing rod.

4 Go back to the trapped creature in the ice and attack with the fishing rod. Brad, like a true boy scout, uses the fishing rod to create a fire and melt the ice, thus freeing the creature. Pick up the ashes from the fire before you go.

the witches castle. After that it's all over, really, and you can get back to your life.

Keep going north until you reach a ledge where the walrus is now sleeping. Walk across the walrus to reach the other ledge and then shout "Help". The little beastie you saved earlier cuts a hole in the ice and pulls you through.

THE ICE PALACE:

5 You're by the Ice Lake. Forget the boat, it capsizes halfway across the lake. Throw the ashes on the lake and a giant sea monster will rise to the surface and take you across to the door of the Ice Palace. Push the icicles to the right of the door in this order - 2, 3, 1, 4. Enter the Ice Palace.

6 You're in the dice room. Take the broom from the right-hand wall. Go to the table, pick up the dice and throw them. On each throw a different door will open in the ice corridor through the top door, so you have to keep coming back to the dice room to open other doors. Go to all the rooms and collect a jack, loud-hailer, ice cube, magnifying glass, gun and stalactite end. For the gun and the stalactite, attack with the brush to get them down from the ledge.

7 Go back to the start of the ice corridor and you'll notice a pulley system. Insert the gun into the holster on the left hand side, then go to the right hand side to pick up the sun tan lotion and the glass shard from the tray. Go to the top of the corridor and pick up the whistle on the floor before the back window. Attach the whistle to the loud-hailer, then attack with this lethal combination (?) to break the glass. Jump the window and you're outta there.

8 There's a whole laser system in this room which you need to sort out before you can leave. Attach the magnifying glass directly under → the laser, then attach the rest on the other spots in the room in this order (anti-clockwise) – ice cube, stalactite and glass shard. The laser self destructs. Insert the jack in the door to open it and get out.

9 Now you're face to face with the Ice Queen herself and she is firing ice bolts at you with alarming regularity. Move forward and jump up when she fires at you (you have to get the timing right here). Keep jumping to avoid the bolts and move up the steps to the springy seat where you'll be boinged out of harm's way.

10 In the next room you'll be grabbed by a gigantic hand. Wear the sun tan lotion and you'll slip out of the giant digits.

11 Enter either door and you're in the Ice Maze. Just keep moving and you eventually find a box of matches. Keep going to get out of the Ice Maze and you wind up in a room with the exit being blocked by an Ice Guard. Stand to the left of the pillar so that you're hidden from his view and he falls asleep. When he's definitely kipping, creep up to him and attach a match from the matchbox to his toes. Attack with the matchbox to set light to them and he'll disappear in a panic. Pick up the fire extinguisher – the second part of your quest is now complete. Then, rather surprisingly, Mr Benn arrives from nowhere to take you back to his shop.

12 Back in Mr Benn's shop, you need to make your way to the Mage again (go to the town centre and go north). Give the Mage some more money (he's doing well out of you, isn't he?) You'll be whisked away to... a grave? Yes you're in a grave. Pick up the bone and attack with bone to get out of the grave.

THE GRAVEYARD:

13 Not surprisingly you find yourself in a graveyard. Take the shovel from the grave you just came out of. A vampire emerges from the shadows and attacks you. Move to the left of the open grave as he runs towards you and he'll fall in. Look around the graveyard for a hoover, cross, tray and cymbals, but avoid all the open graves (the ones with the arms waving around in them). Another vampire blocks your way going up the steps. Get round the side of him and smack him round the head with the shovel.

14 Yet another vampire blocks your path, just get rid of him by pushing the gravestone in front of him. Go back to the grave you came out of and pick up the garlic bread. When a fourth vampire appears, eat the garlic bread and he'll scarp. A fifth vampire is vanquished by attacking him with the cross. The sixth vampire needs to be attacked from behind with the cymbals.

15 You're now free to leave via the gate at the back of the graveyard, which is opened for you by a departing vampire.

THE WITCH'S CASTLE:

16 Go straight through the copse – there's nothing at all there. You'll come to a gate which is crackling with some sort of mystical psychic energy (probably). Have no fear, just walk up to the gate and push it. Walk through quickly because the ground under your feet crumbles once you're past the gate.

17 You are now in the entrance hall of the castle where the final showdown is going to take place. Nervous? Good.

18 Go left to the study. Take the ring that's lying on the floor. Go back to the entrance hall and go right to the library.

19 In the second alcove you'll find a book which acts as a secret lever (don't they always?) Pull the book and you enter the Queen's chamber, the room of the final battle.

20 The first attack she launches at you is a spirit of some kind. Attack with the hoover to suck up the offending spook. On her second attack, push the fire extinguisher to retaliate. On the third attack, attack with the fan while she shoots (timing is important in all these attacks). Now she's down go up to her and attach the ring to her.

21 And then, before you know what's happening, you're whisked back to the playing field where you first lost your liberty (and probably the baseball match by now). At last it's all over and you're free – hurrah.

Time to have a decent meal, get some sleep, and give some of those friends you haven't spoken to in ages a call. ●

Still floundering? Rich Pelley's brother's friend from across the road picks up where he left off last issue to point you in the right direction.

1 By now you should have arrived in the nearest Nomad camp in your balloon. Show the Nomad the map, then head off for the village on the bearing that he gives you. Continue to follow the advice of every Nomad along the way, until one tells you that you are "very close". An X appears on the map indicating the spot where you should land.

Next, walk to the dig site and ignore Sophia as she falls down a small hole – you'll be reunited with her in the course of time. Take the ladder down the big hole and pick up all four objects.

Once in the light, the piece of tubing turns out, in fact, to be a hose – use it with the petrol cap on the truck, use the clay jar with the end of the hose and return to the hole. Locate the filler pipe on the 'metal thing' (ie the generator) and use gas-filled jar with filler pipe. Locate the 'little metal thing' (that's the button) on the 'metal thing', push it, and a little light should be thrown on the subject.

2 Walk to the right-hand side of room and use the ship rib with the crumbling wall to expose a large disc. Use the wooden peg with the large disc, the Sunstone with the peg, and take a look at what you've done. Check the dialogue to see where to set the Sunstone, then line it up accordingly (not forgetting that you're supposed to be looking from the point of the tall horns). A hidden door will appear, as will Sophia.

You'll be needing the spark plug from inside the generator, but you'll have to turn it off before you can pull it out. Pick up the Sunstone and the wooden peg and leave.

Back outside, walk to the broken truck, use both the distributor cap Sophia was holding and the spark plug in the engine, close the hood and away you go. To Crete, in fact.

3 On arrival, exit left and walk to the ruins of Knossos, taking the transit from the other side of the bridge on the way. Examine all the rooms until you find a mural, and see if you can work out what it's trying to tell you. Any ideas? Something about a bull's horns? Aren't there two bull's-horns-looking things somewhere in the ruins?

In case you hadn't realised, you'll be using the surveyor's instrument in conjunction with the horns in the centre of the ruins to mark out where something is buried. First, push all the stones on the small scale map until you unearthed the two statues. Use the surveyor's transit on top of either statue, and set it to the outside edge of the relevant horn (as shown on the mural) in the centre of the ruins.

Repeat the process from the other statue, and where the two lines of sight met, an X will appear (don't they always?). Walk to the X, use the ships rib and pick up the stone.

4 Leave the ruins, walk to the stone pedestal and put both the Sunstone and the Moonstone there. Set the contraption according to the dialogue and another secret door will appear.

A JONES OF ATLANTIS

5 Enter and once inside pick up two of the statue heads. Walk through the door and use your whip to pick up the third head.

6 Make your way up the stairs, take the left-hand door and then the door to your immediate left. Coax Sophia on to the lift – your combined weight is enough to send the lift downwards. Pick up the Worldstone and the staff, look at the waterfall, climb the chain and go through the left hand door. Next, put the three statues on the shelf, walk through the newly opened gateway, climb the stairs and continue until you reach an elevator shaft. Under the counterweight is a chock which you should push with the staff.

7 Return to the steps and take the door to the right. The large face on the wall will activate the lift when you stick the staff in its mouth. Pick up the gold box and return to the original elevator.

When you reach the Minotaur statue, walk up to it and use the whip with its head – as Sophia isn't with you, this will provide the weight necessary to activate the lift. Walk through the door at the back of the screen, and keep talking to Sophia until you finally succeed in persuading her to go through the hole above the gate.

8 Go through the door, talk to her again, convince her to put the necklace in the box and then wander around using the fish in each room until you locate a hidden door behind a wall. Use the ship rib on this wall, open the door and go through. Through the next door lies the map room. This is a Good Thing.

9 Place the Sunstone, Moonstone and Worldstone respectively on the spindle and set them according to the dialogue. Go through the door that opens (don't forget to pick up the stones) and Kerner will appear. Talk to him, but bear in mind that if you insult him too much he'll shoot you. He'll wind up with the stones anyway, so you may as well give them to him. Break through the wall with the ship rib and head for the sub.

10 Walk to the hatch and snatch a brief conversation with the captain in order to 'convince' him to allow you on board. Once under way use the intercom to order the crew to the bow. Wander around locating the controls to the ship and collect some battery acid in the porcelain mug from the galley. Pick up the cold cuts and the bread as well. Walk to the other side of the vent behind Sophia, tell her to distract the guard, creep up behind him and allow events to take their proper, and rather convenient, course. Take the plunger then use the acid on the strong box. Unlock the steering wheel by Sophia with the key and push it. Walk back up to the control room, use the lever, replace it with the plunger when it breaks and use it.

11 Finally Steer the sub into the entrance somewhere on the background. You may, by the way, need to reverse.

Coming next issue – such great quotes as: "Place the three stones on a spindle, set them to the opposite of last time and place a second bed in the statue's mouth.", "What ever you do, don't give in to the professor's demands." and "Take a look at Sophia's chest."

Tune in same time, same place, next month. ●

KYRANDIA

Kyrandia – not so much a legend, more a game in need

1 Last month saw Brandon entering the fearsome labyrinth. A few locations in and you'll find a door crashing shut behind you, and your first task is to open it again by collecting enough rocks to weigh the counter balance down. Suitable rocks are marked on the map along with the best route through these treacherous caverns. The key to surviving is never to be without a clump of fire berries, as the light keeps the darkness and associated nasties at bay. The berries burn out after being carried through three locations, but will stay lit if you drop them off in unlit caverns, so you can mark your return route with them.

You're going to need space to carry the rocks, so dump all your possessions somewhere near the entrance, but keep hold of the scroll as you'll need that later.

2 Follow the map to get all the rocks and on the way pick up the coin from the Cave of Twilight and an emerald from the Emerald Cave. It's obvious when you think about it.

3 Stacking the rocks onto the counter balance raises the portcullis and lets you get back to the wishing well that's near Darm's house. Throwing the coin into the well causes a moonstone to appear, which will fit into the pedestal base of the Pantheon of Moonlight. At this point it's worth picking a tulip and getting a ruby from the ruby tree if you haven't already got one, as it'll save you a lot of time later on.

4 Back at the Pantheon of Moonlight, the moonstone activates the purple gem on the Amulet. This turns you into a will o' the wisp and allows you to drift around lighting your own way. Pop down to the Volcanic River and then, to avoid embarrassing combustion, freeze the lava flow using Darm's scroll. Cross over and you'll find the key to the castle gate in a cave at the other side.

5 You're now ready to enter Faeriewood, which you do by wisping over the Chasm of Everfall. Out in the fresh air again, Brandon wanders through the woods until he's smashed on the head by a lump of falling timber.

6 You regain control (and consciousness) in the laboratory of Zanthia the Alchemist. She asks you to fill a flask with magic water from the fountain, but at the fountain you have another run-in with Malcolm, who trashes the place and takes off with one of the orbs. To recover the orb you need to find the burning tree and then extinguish the flames using Darm's scroll again. By of a solution. Here's Mark Winstanley with part two.

replacing the orb you repair the fountain and can drink from it. This activates the blue gem in the Amulet, which dispels certain magic. Taking the water back to Zanthia, you'll learn about Brandon's heritage and be sent off once more in the search for blueberries.

7 These are at the Sparkling Waterfall, which is past the flaming tree, but by the time you get back, Zanthia's gone off somewhere, leaving you a laboratory to play with. By dropping a plant and a gem into the cauldron you can create all different colours of potion depending on the colours used. You can fiddle around with this a lot, but to complete your quest you need two bottles of red potion, one yellow and one blue. The blue and the yellow you can probably manage already using a sapphire and the blueberries and then a topaz and a tulip, but the only red flowers to be found are in the Tropical Lagoon.

Lift the rug to reveal a trapdoor which lets you into another section of the woods. The lagoon is somewhere north of your starting point, and once you've snatched an orchid and mixed it with a ruby to form the red potion, explore south of the trapdoor to find the Crystals of Alchemy.

8 This is a kind of cocktail mixer that magically combines potions, so if you put in a red and a blue you'll get a purple potion out, and the other red combines with the yellow to produce an orange one.

9 Round about now a royal chalice would be nice, wouldn't it? As luck would have it there's one hanging around (literally) not a million miles away from the fountain, but by using your brand new blue gem you can break the levitation spell. Before you can pick it up some urchin-type leprechaun thing runs off with it. Follow it right and you'll see a tiny door in a tree. The faun will swap the chalice for a tasty red apple, so make sure that you have one and then drink the purple potion which will shrink you. Chat a bit, bung him the apple and voila, one chalice. Simple, isn't it.

10 Head back to the lagoon with the essentials – you'll need for your final bust up with Malcolm – the key, the chalice and a flower, and then drink the orange potion and watch the stunning results. Fly Air Brandon!

11 After landing on the island you'll soon find a grave. Placing the flowers on it causes the ghost of Brandon's mum to appear and bless him with a red gem on the Amulet, which gives him temporary invisibility. This is particularly handy for getting past those naughty gargoyles guarding the gate, opening it and getting into the castle.

12 Once past these and another brush with Malcolm, your ultimate goal is to get into the Royal Foyer, which is through the two large doors at the end of the Great Hall. Needless to say the doors are locked and the two keys are hidden.

13 The first key's in the catacombs which are entered through the revolving fireplace in the small study downstairs. Wander around a bit until you find the force field, then disarm it with the blue gem in the Amulet. The key is hidden under a stone floor slab in the room beyond.

14 The second is upstairs in the bedroom guarded by the zombie Herman, who can be put to sleep with the yellow healing gem. Find the right sequence of 'Do-Fa-Mi-Re' on the bells before picking up the little hammer and doing it for real. The picture rises and reveals the key.

Returning to the study, pull out the books in the order O-P-E-N, which will make the fireplace spin round. On the other side of the fireplace, you'll find the royal crown, and with the chalice and the sceptre you'll be ready to enter the final room.

15 The sceptre's in the kitchen being used as a spoon or something, so pick this up and then unlock the doors to the Royal Foyer. From left to right, put the sceptre, the crown and the chalice on the cushions to open the door to the Chamber of the Kryagem.

16 Malcolm will saunter out and give you so much grief that you'll punch him and then dash into the chamber. You've quickly got to stand in front of the mirror at the right of the room and then turn invisible before Malcolm comes in.

17 He's mightily dischuffed at being slapped around and fires a spell at you (they tend to do that sort of thing, these mighty magician-type chaps), but being invisible the spell will pass through you and reflect off the mirror back at him. He turns to stone and your troubles are all over. You've saved the kingdom, offed the tyrant and everything is wonderful and rosy.

I think that deserves a hot cup of tea and a few choccy biccies, don't you? ●

THE LAST RESORT

with Jonathan Davies

Hesitating uncertainly at the edge of Amiga Games Road? Let Jonathan Davies take your hand and lead you safely to the other side.

It's taut, it's anything but short, it's The Last Resort. And it's where you should write if you're stuck in a game, or if you can help out an AMIGA POWER reader who's failing where you've succeeded. So, without further ado, here are lots of questions and answers.

GOBLIINS

Q "I can't complete the 'skeleton/key/cage' level. I pick up the feather, tickle the skeleton's foot with it and a key drops out of his skull, but that's as far as I can get."

N Collier, Newcastle-upon-Tyne

A You mean level 12, I think. The next thing to do is cast a spell on the feather. Then use the cup and ball on the skeleton's hand, use the key on the cage, kill the bee with the fly swat, cast a spell on the dead bee, use the dart on the picture of the wizard, pick up the doll and pick up the elixir. That ought to do it.

OPERATION STEALTH

Q "I've swum shark-infested seas, escaped from piranhas, worked my way clear of the rat mazes, tied up the guard, cracked the fingerprint security lock and am now stuck in the room where the door is protected by some sort of force field which turns me to ash when I get near it."

Ken Kennedy, Lossiemouth

A Right, here's what to do. Use the electric cable on the socket and operate the electric razor. Then use the razor on the rubbish bin and walk to the right. The razor will give the message "Explode, one, two..." When it does, quickly use the red cigarette on the computer.

LOOSE ENDS

If I had a pound for every question I couldn't answer, I'd have £13 this month alone.

Q "I have recently bought THE ADDAMS FAMILY and have cleared the first boss and got a code. But I'm stuck. I can't open the door after I've killed the monster."

JB, Malta

Q "How do you kill the guitar boss on ZOOL?"

Nicholas Hall, Belbroughton

Q "I'm stuck on level eight of ALIEN BREED '92. I can't find duct three (the lift is broken) as the instructions say. There are several places where the passage is impassable because of things on the wall. Is there any way at all to get past them?"

M Landfield, Metferell

Q "On LEISURE SUIT LARRY II, I can't get into the elevator on top of the volcano on the tropical island."

James Taylor, Wareham

Q "On EYE OF THE BEHOLDER II, I've got to the green shield but I can't pass it."

Anon, Edgerton

Q "How do you get past the last level - 'Find transport home' - on MAGIC POCKETS?"

Anon

Q "I was wondering if anyone knew any cheats for FOOTBALL DIRECTOR 2, i.e. to get more money."

Roger Horne, Enfield

Q "How do I clean the water on the Water level of CAPTAIN PLANET? Every time I try I get killed when I drop the toxic waste can."

S Barnes, Preston

Q "In BATMAN - THE CAPED CRUSADER, I'm stuck on The Penguin's level. I just picked up the dart and the dagger, but now I'm stuck."

Edward Ames, Biggin Hill

Q "In ZAK McCRACKEN AND THE ALIEN MIND BENDERS, how do I open the floor boards in my bedroom?"

Haydn Mullineux, Manchester

Q "I'm stuck in CYBERCON III. I have all the sonic key codes but I can only find two of the sonic key sections and I can't find the final rooms in the complex. Some help would be very much appreciated!"

Chris Cormie, Armidale, Australia

Q "On BART VS THE SPACE MUTANTS, I'm completely stuck on level four. I can only find five exit signs in the museum."

David Amber, Ilford

Q "We're stuck on OBITUS. We've got two of the mystic gems, one from Falconwood and one from Burville, but we can't find the other two."

Fran and Lote, Leicester

If you're stuck, or you know how to help somebody else who is, here's the address to write to:

The Last Resort, AMIGA POWER, 30 Monmouth Street, Bath BA1 2BW.

Oh, and thanks to the reader in Southampton who sent me half a sheet of lined A4 paper, carefully folded but completely blank

WILLY BEAMISH

Q "I've got past the pickets outside the sludge works, and I've found a control panel above a sludge vat. It's clear I have to operate the panel in some way to make a bridge to cross the gap between it and the opposite exit. However, once I've switched it on, pressing the buttons doesn't seem to do anything except alert the guards. Neither can I move the joystick on the panel in any way."

N Brown, Norwich

A You've got to press the buttons in the right order. It tells you what this is on the map – Bottom, Top, Middle, Top. When the guards are on the bridge, push the lever to drop them into the sludge.

POLICE QUEST III

Q "What's the solution to day six? All I can do at the moment is wander around aimlessly."

David Rowbottom, Lincoln

A It might help to talk to the Captain at the Homicide Office. He'll tell you what to do. Before following his advice, though, try blocking the toilet with a toilet roll and, while the caretaker's distracted, checking out Morale's locker in the ladies.

ALIEN BREED: SPECIAL EDITION '92

Q "How do you get to Stage seven from Stage six? I can find both of the deck lifts but neither go anywhere."

James Odell, Bracknell

A Right, er, um...

Q "Hang on! I've just worked it out! I just collected all the credits and supplies, except the computer. The only problem was a self-destructing one-up near the second lift, through the doors to the right, which only gave me a few seconds to get out, so I had to collect it last. The lift went to the next level."

A I knew that.

THE MANAGER

Q "In the January issue of Amiga Format there was an AMIGA POWER 'taster' supplement, in which The Last Resort mentioned a cheat for THE MANAGER. Would you please explain how the whole cheat works?"

Brian Cook, Billericay

A For the benefit of Amiga Format readers who've only just joined us, here's how to cheat at THE MANAGER. After the game has loaded, go to the preferences menu and position the cursor on the arrow below where it says 'Main Menu' on the small square at the bottom right of the screen. Press D and then A. (Or something like that.) You'll then see a white line in the border of the screen, and if you go to the transfer market you'll discover lots of goodies.

CASES CLOSED

The following cases can be considered closed. Nice work, readers.

Q D Bowman of Darlington had reached an impasse on Taxing level seven.

A "Make the first lemming to appear a climber. Before he reaches the end of the barge, make him a builder so he turns around. Now he's turned, make him a basher so he goes through the arrowed block. (He'll go on to die later.) While he's bashing, increase the flow of lemmings to 99. The lemmings are now in pairs. Make the second lemming in the first pair a blocker and concentrate on the one who's gone through. On the edge of the large block, make him a builder twice. On the second (flatter) rock you must also make him a builder twice, but straight after you've clicked on him for the second time you must blow up your blocker. Go back to your builder lemming (remembering to click on the builder icon) and build one more bridge. And that's it. Watch all 98 go in with at least five seconds to spare."

Stewart Pitt, Stoke-on-Trent

DUNE

Q Jamie Whittaker of Rugby was, well, stuck. He couldn't get anywhere at all.

A "I find that time is always the major problem. The emperor wants the spice and you've got to go back to the palace to send it to him. This limits the number of long-distance trips you can make. So be sure you give yourself enough time to make the trips. Keep an eye on the spice density as well. Move your troops to a more economical location to keep the spice levels steady. When you've found the armoury, Gurney Hallek comes in to his best roll. (Role? – JD) He'll not take long to volunteer to train the Fremen troops to fight. When he does, take him to a Sitech somewhere near the palace and move all of the troops that can fit to the same location. This gets their training done quicker, but be careful – the Harkonnens will target that Sitech as a major threat, attack it and capture all of your troops. I would also suggest that you save the game every time the emperor calls for a shipment of spice, and always listen to Lady Jessica – she knows what she's talking about. Basically, DUNE is a game of time, and you just have to persevere."

Jason Redway, Basildon

LEISURE SUIT LARRY II

Q Eddie Mendoza of Holywell had found a couple of FBI agents blocking his path.

A "After getting your hair dyed, go back to the nudist beach and Look. You should then see a bikini bottom. Pick it up and go back to the rest room. Wear the bikini top (from the swimming pool on the boat section) and the bottom. Then stuff the money into the bikini to expand your chest. Return to the barber and he'll give you a body wax. Then you'll be able to get past the guards."

James Taylor, Wareham

ZORK I

Q Christopher Powell couldn't get into Hades.

A "At Hades' entrance, ring the bell, and then enter as one command: 'get candles, light match, light candles with match.' Then read the book."

James Hampson, London

CADAVER

Q Alison Knowles could only find two of the four gold keys.

A "Gold key one: In the kitchen, drop the oil flask on the flame. Gold key two: In the south chamber you must spell 'Dianos' horizontally. L means left, R means right, T means top, B means bottom. Move N to L, O to L, S to R, O to R, A to L, I to B, D to B, A to T, N to T, D to L, I to L, N to B, A to L, N to L, and go east. Gold keys three and four: In the upper room, search the lever, drop glowing planet in nearest hole to door, small planet in nearest hole to centre, symbols planet in furthest hole from door, moon planet in last hole, and then switch on globe."

James Hapson, London

FUTURE WARS

Q Colin Edwards couldn't even get out of the building at the start. Here's James again...

A "From when you put the bucket on your boss's door: Operate right side door, use key on second cupboard from left, examine typewriter, operate drawer, take paper, operate drawer, examine map, use flag on small hole near France on map, examine keypad in small room, operate 4, operate 0, operate 3, operate 1, operate 5, go through door, use paper on opening, operate green button, operate red button, get documents, walk into beam."

Q Graham Bond of Basingstoke was having all sorts of problems.

A "In the room with two doors and switches, just play around with the switches. Sooner or later a door will open. Inside is a wizard, and on the floor is a symbol. Stand in the middle of the symbol and it will transport you to another shop."

As for the six scrolls for the wizard... well, actually there are only four scrolls, so discard them. What you have to do is go back to the wizard and fight your way past. Then pick up the key from behind him."

Tony, Ipswich

A "And here's a cheat which might help. Save the position of your current team, and then kill yourself. Once you've done this, take a new team, quickly skimming the islands and collecting useful goodies. Then go straight to a shop and sell as much as possible. Then kill that team and load up your old one. Take them to the shop where the previous team sold all their stuff and you'll be able to buy back everything you need."

Simon Henzell-Thomas, Dalgety Bay

WIZKID

Q Oliver Smith couldn't find enough kittens on levels two and three.

A "On level two, buy some red shades and a fishbone key. With the shades on, select the ship's head (by hopping on the shield nearest the front of the ship) and then, before touching any other shields, hop along the three shields to the rear of the ship until a door appears. Use the fishbone key and exit the level. There's a kitten in the corridor behind the door. On level three, just play all the screens, pick up the kittens using the head, and that's it."

Jon Hare, Sensible Software

Q Faron Smith of Sunderland was having a great deal of trouble getting to level five.

A "Swap objects with Lain the Clown until he asks you for the can of spiked cola from the ladies loo. Give him the cola and he'll get drunk. Take the objects, including the shovel, and jump onto the lift to get sent down to the secret level. Jump off the lift and in the middle of the screen a clue icon will appear. Dig with the spade and you'll find a kitten submerged in the earth, taking you to level five."

Jon Hare, Sensible Software

DUNGEON QUEST

Q The (sort of) aptly named Darren Knight of Kettering couldn't get into the castle.

A "After crossing the river, search and you'll find a rock. Take the rock to the castle door, throw it at the lever and it'll miss. Go and get another rock and throw it at the drawbridge lever again and the door will open."

Matthew Kennedy (aged 12), Bridghouse

What do we mean, Amiga Format is going live? That the world's best-selling Amiga magazine is turning into some kind of Frankenstein's monster?

Well, no. What we mean is that we've arranged a very special event this Spring for all Amiga owners. It's going to be a computer show like no other, arranged exclusively for Amiga owners and inspired by the people who run Britain's favourite computer magazine.

What will be happening there? Well, first and foremost there will be stall overflowing with great Amiga bargains - games, hardware, serious software, the lot. Just like in Amiga Format.

Naturally, because it's a live event that also means you can get advice and see products demonstrated by the people who make and sell them. Which makes life an awful lot easier.

And that's as well as taking advantage of some very special prices.

So it's a great place to go shopping, but there's a lot more besides.

Commodore, the makers of the Amiga, are giving their full backing to the event and will be there in style.

What happens when the world's top magazine goes

The Amiga Format team will be there along with a host of other Amiga experts, to have a chat, answer your questions and help you out with any specific Amiga problems.

A special Sound and Vision area will concentrate on Amiga graphics and music, and how they can be used in making your own videos.

For gamers, there's the Amiga Power arcade where you can see - as well as play - all the latest top game releases. And you can experience virtual reality for yourself, too.

The venue has yet to be confirmed, though it's a prestige central London site, and much more has yet to be revealed about what new products will be launched at the show, and other special events, so keep an eye on the news pages of your favourite Amiga magazine.

But what's certain is that it's going to be quite an event. If you've got an Amiga, you really ought to be there. So make sure to get it arranged right now, and we'll see you there!

OH NO! LEMMINGS

Richard Bull put a seasonal slant on things with this little number. Nice try, but no cigar.

We dared you to, and by golly you did. The runner's up get copies of Lemmings 2, while the winner gets a fab satellite system.

We can tell that Duncan Saunders really (ahem) digs his outfit. One of the earthier entries, the work behind this one is obvious.

Stephen Johnson's Bono Lemming incarnation was sheer brilliance. This was so very nearly the winner.

This is Hilary Sandig and friends, with their cute little sign reading 'WE TRIED'. No, frankly, you didn't.

This is Joey Twitchen. Tell us Joey, do your friends know you dress up like this?

Roland & Antonia Pingree tried. They really did. But we're callous here at AP, so they didn't win. Life's like that.

YOU'RE AINGS

Aren't you a little too tall to be a Lemming?
Andrew Mackintosh nearly made the grade.

Is it Heidi Evans, or is it really a neat little Lemming? It's just so hard to tell. Another top quality runner-up.

OH NO!

Young Roger Blackmore got so excited about it all that his head exploded.

THE
IS...

Sheer brilliance from JT Sykes, this may have won if JT hadn't already won our Parasol Stars compo.

Thomas Saunders is the lucky winner of the satellite system, courtesy of Psygnosis. Thanks Thomas, we laughed lots.

3.12.92

After deciding that Spodland was to adopt a more cute, consolesque type of look, I set about playing large numbers of console games so I could get an overall impression of how the graphics are constructed, like which features are heavily exaggerated (big eyes, disproportionate head) and which ones aren't (torso, arms and legs). Why take this particular course of action? Well, playing Sonic and Mario all day certainly beats working.

Work on Spodland continues apace but Craig
Howard still has time to keep us informed.

DESIGN A GAME

Does anybody else call spitting 'flobbing'?

That's what we used to call it at school and you could use the phrase 'Spod flob'.

The Hidden come up with a fantastic new concept for the characters – 3D Spods, modelled in plasticine and then digitised.

before F1 Grand Prix was loaded into it, and after I picked myself off the floor, I could still hardly believe it. Needless to say, no work was done that day.

9.12.92

Disaster! Not one of our previous games works on the A1200. How can I cope without Puggles? After phoning Will and telling him of the problem, he decides that we'd better see if Dong, our new, soon to be released, stunning arcade platform game, £15.99 RRP (That's enough. – Ed) would work.

10.12.92

Silence fell. A faint whirr of a disk drive. Three pairs of eyes gaze into a cold black screen. Suddenly, the screen was aglow with strange, phosphorescent shapes. "Is it meant to do that?," Simon asked hesitantly. "Nope," said Will.

11.12.92

Will has now got the A1200 and is currently finding out what makes it tick. I spent what little spare time I had still sketching out some Spod designs, and trying to come up with the overall look of the game.

16.12.92

Will finally got to grips with the A1200's insides and presented us with a new, A1200 compatible Dong. Whilst hacking away at the machine, he found out that it could do some rather spiffy things and had produced a little demo of some super hi-res sprites whizzing in and out of a 256-colour, scrolling mountainscape. We all immediately love the A1200 and begin toying with the idea of some enhancements for A1200 Spodland.

18.12.92

Despite everything, I wasn't too happy with some aspects of making Spodland look like a console game (although I didn't want it to look computer-y either). When you look at a console game it usually consists of lots of primary colours, due mostly to the limited palette of the machine.

However, people usually warm to this type of look, probably because it looks bright and cartoon-like. On the other hand, most computer games go for a limited amount of primary colours but more shades of each colour (the Bitmap Brothers games are a very good example of this, very blue and metallic). I wanted to try for something totally different so I went away and thought and thought.

22.12.92

Finally, I have an idea – I'll make the game in Claymation! This would be a bit of a radical change, but as Spodland is a PD game we've got more room to experiment with different graphical styles. So out I went for some Plasticine and constructed a 3D Spod, then digitised it and realised that this was the way forward for the graphics. However, all work and no play makes Craig a very dull boy, so I decided it was time I started my Christmas holiday. Until next month, this is Craig saying 'Byeeee!' (Oh dear. Again. – Ed) ●

"I wanted to try for something totally

7.12.92

After looking at loads of console games I started sketching out some designs for the actual Spods (The characters in the game, if you haven't been watching. – Ed). Martin had already supplied some ideas for Spod designs, but like everything else I decided to tamper with them, so off I went, scribbling away again.

8.12.92

Christmas came early today when I received a brand new A1200. Cor! What an excellent piece of kit! It didn't take long

Or how about 'Flobbing in Spodland'?
Would we get some royalties for that?

SPACE CRUSADE- THE VOYAGE BEYOND

Beyond what, though? That's the thing.

Er... BANG! That about sums it up.

Publisher:

Gremlin

Authors: In house

Price: £24.99 (For the new missions plus the original game)

£14.99 (New missions only)

Release: Out now

Other information: Not A1200 compatible

the enemy and not each other through 10 new missions.

Space Crusade isn't everybody's plastic cup of freeze-dried, machine-vended beverage, it has to be admitted. A blast-em-up where you have to wait 10 minutes between each blast and where life and death decisions are reached with dice (ones with zeros on them, for heaven's sake!) does not have universal appeal. But the strategy and planning elements of the game have some people hooked; and the dice add a sense of, well, hope, when everything looks hopeless. Luck? Nah, it was a calculated risk.

The Vilous parasites who suck the life out of you. A bit like watching Eldorado.

Chainsaw massacre time! The Power Chainsaw replaces the Power Sword.

So if you did blast, grapple and slash your way bloodthirstily through the original there's more of the same in the Voyage Beyond.

Only it's not quite the same. There are some new weapons to let rip with, some new ranks to aspire to and some new monsters to reduce to green sploidy messes (or to reduce your men to red sploidy messes). You wait till you see the new Mark VII Dreadnought – you might have thought the old ones were mean mothers, but they're just slightly stingy maiden aunts compared to this.

"You can't just blast your way through and hope"

But that's not all. The missions in Voyage are more than just extra levels with monsters and rooms in different places. They are a logical progression from the ones in the original. A lot of them look deceptively simple, but require a great deal of thought (and pointless deaths) before you work out the best way to achieve your objectives. Some levels even have teleport pads just to complicate matters. Even more so than before you can't just blast your way through and hope the right numbers come up on the dice.

Some of the new levels also look great, especially in the 3D mode. Mission Three (Locate and Launch) has some effectively gooey walls which complement the introduction of one of the new nasties, the Vilous parasites. These live down holes and pop out to trap marines in adjacent squares and suck the life out of them.

The manual says the range of the Flamer looks like The Maltese Cross. Er, yes...

Uh-oh, I've just teleported straight into the path of a Dreadnought. I knew I should have gone by tube.

Okay, so the new missions aren't drastically different, but if you liked the original, they offer a worthwhile new set of challenges. But I reckon they just about stretch the concept to its limits. Any more expansions, unless Gremlin come up with something radically different, would be downright yawnsome.

● DAVE GOLDER

The Flamer replaces the Assault Cannon, and is handier for lighting cigarettes.

Oh no, it's a green blobby thing.

YOUR MISSION SHOULD YOU CHOOSE TO ACCEPT...

UPPERS Ten new levels that are a logical development from the ones in the original. They're more difficult, more perplexing but just as much fun. The new monsters and touches like the teleport pads also stop the levels from becoming too samey.

DOWNERS I think Gremlin have had just about all the mileage they can get out of this formula. There's nothing really startling or surprising in any of the levels.

THE BOTTOM LINE It's definitely quality stuff and well up to the original's standards. It's not really going to be to everyone's tastes but for anyone who likes to dip their toes into the strategy pool every now and then, this should do your bunions some good.

PIRACY

Ha-har, Jim lad, take this black spot to Blind Pugh, etc, etc.

Game: Piracy

Publisher: International Computer Entertainment

Authors: Steve Fabian, Francis Staengler, Sander Domokos, Leslie Vovardy, Joeseef Hevesi, Peter Tolnayz

Price: £29.99

Release: Out now

around a blue background trying to find the best price for cloth and cotton you begin to wonder what's so special about this piracy lark anyway.

It's basically a strategy-cum-adventure game with a few sub games thrown in. Your task is to recover the Golden Chalice and return it to the Hall of Balance, the loss of which has caused evil, and particularly piracy, to flourish all over the world. So you start the game with a ship, three men and 200 credits. You have to move around between all the islands buying from one and selling at a better price to another. The idea is that when you've got enough money, everyone starts talking to you and dropping hints about where you might find the chalice. You don't have to pay for this information, it seems that people are willing to tell you anything, presumably content with the knowledge that they've helped a rich person. I bet the unemployed have a terrible time round here.

You are, of course, not a pirate. You're a trader. The pirates are the nasty ones who try to mug you on your travels. This appears to happen at random – you'll be chugging along quite nicely with a ship full of baked beans and suddenly you're faced with the message "they want your gold". You can decide to either pay them or fight them – if you don't have enough money you have no choice but to fight. Then comes an outrageously amusing sub game where you choose one of your crew (who all look like they belong in Spinal Tap) to go out on to the ship and fight the pirates. One at a time. Not too smart, but it gives you a beat-em-up section of the naifest quality. Have hysterics as you watch your character shuffle ridiculously around with about three moves in your

An island, where you can go and sell rice. Rivetting.

You do get a welcome wherever you go.

The fight scenes are ridiculously unrealistic. Everyone shuffles sideways, it's hilarious.

By taking piracy as its theme, Monkey Island created an exciting, atmospheric and hugely enjoyable game. Which just goes to show what great potential piracy has for a game. But when you've got this game loaded and ten minutes later you're dragging a pathetic picture of a ship

"The strategy element is too limited"

You've got some hassle from pirates, and you're gonna have to fight them.

What exactly is this fascination that everyone seems to have with mazes?

Personally, I hate getting lost.

repertoire. It's embarrassing.

You can avoid this absurd combat by buying a cannon and cannon balls, which then gives you the option to have a cannon fight with the enemy ship. Another peril awaits in the form of a giant octopus.

There's also a dungeon to explore, in which you have to find 20 treasure chests by wandering around this dungeon maze.

You come across various dungeon inhabitants and zap them with your magic. It's tedious as well, I'm afraid.

So there you have it. The graphics are disappointing, going nowhere near what the Amiga can offer. The strategy element is too limited to offer any real challenge, and the adventure itself generates no interest. If you fancy a pirate adventure, go back to Monkey Island – it's far more rewarding.

● TIM TUCKER

UPPERS There's a number of different game styles in here, which makes for some variety.

DOWNERS Unfortunately, they're all crap. Nothing in here has anything to offer beyond the initial laughs at how badly it's done.

THE BOTTOM LINE

By trying to incorporate several different genres into one game, Piracy ends up having nothing to satisfy anyone. There's certainly the potential here for an interesting game – the strategy and adventure elements could be combined to create an interesting challenge. This doesn't, and the result is tedium.

Vector
Storm
Publisher:
Inova Games

Author: Carl W Moore
Price: £29.99
Release: Out now

Simplicity is everything. All that is great in this world can be attributed to the fact that it has intrinsic simplicity at its core. The second movement of Mozart's Piano Concerto Number 21 (in E flat) is a fantastically structured piece of elegant simplicity. The Japanese Haiku poems present beautiful miniatures of facile grace, and Amanda de Cadenet is a good example of a person who is both beautiful and extremely simple. We all harbour the optimistic, and possibly naive, view that the answer to the mysteries of life, the universe and everything will actually turn out to be a very simple equation, or perhaps a word, or syllable even. Whether it will or not, our love of the simple in art and science makes it the central objective of mankind in our time.

Which leads us nicely onto Vector Storm (It does? – Ed). Because here we have a game that is simple in its design, simple in its gameplay, simple in its graphics, and simply brilliant fun. Or it would be. No doubt you've already sneaked a look at the percentage at the end of this review, because I believe it's impossible to settle down to read a review without first sneaking a look at the percentage, just like it's impossible to eat only one cheesy biscuit snack. (For those very few who manage to retain enough self will to avoid looking at the score, I'm going to ruin it for you – it's 60%.) Having done so you will notice that there is a bit of a discrepancy between the description 'simply brilliant fun' and a score of 60%. I'll explain why.

This is one of those sad cases that occasionally slip through – a game that is essentially bloody good being let down by some niggly flaws.

But first a little about the game itself. It's a conversion of an excellent arcade game called Tempest. When I loaded it I was filled with dewy eyed nostalgia, and nearly wept all over my mouse mat as images of the arcade, school ties and early eighties pop music giants Haircut 100 came flooding back to me. Ah, those were the days when games were games, men were men and, er, second hand electric blankets were second hand electric blankets.

Anyway, that game was great. And It's simple to play. You're that boomerang at the edge of the vector and you have to shoot things coming towards you.

Complete a stage and you're whisked through the vortex.

Straight and squiggly lines – that's all there is to it.

"I nearly wept all over my mouse mat"

The vectors come in different shapes as you go through the game.

You can pick up power-ups in the form of letters. This one gives you triple fire power.

this would be too if it weren't for the dodgy control system. How did this happen? The graphics can hardly be said to be stretching the Amiga to its limits, there's no number crunching parallax scrolling for it to deal with, so why does it slow down in places? Why does it stick at the most awkward times? It's a disgrace – this should have been sorted out straight away. If this was any other game I'd give it some low score and forget about it, but I really want this to be perfect, and it's breaking my heart that it isn't. The graphics don't bother me – they're not state of the art by any means, but then they never were – they do the job and even add a little nostalgia to the thing. But the gameplay – that's what makes this game great, it's simple gameplay.

In fact it's not a complete disaster, because you can still have a good time on this game, you'll just find it infuriating when it does stick or slow down, but why waste this opportunity to create a dead-cert 90 percent? Oh well. That's life. Simple really, isn't it?

● TIM TUCKER

UPPERS Such a brilliant game. Exciting and highly addictive, pick it up and you won't want to put it down until sunrise. And very simple.

DOWNERS The control system's not totally smooth, there's some lagging on the joystick response and it's basically not the game it could have been. Disgracefully expensive too – at £30 Vector Storm ought to have been bloody perfect, not this half-baked.

THE BOTTOM LINE

A fantastic game that's flawed by some bad programming. Although an Amiga version of Tempest is a highly desirable artefact, this one can't be recommended with these faults. What a shame.

CRYSTAL KINGDOM DIZZY

The egg returns in his most expensive adventure.

Game: Crystal Kingdom Dizzy
Publisher: Code Masters
Authors: Andy Severn (programming and sound), Brian Hartley, Peter Austin, Damon Redmond (graphics), Gerard Gourley (music)
Price: £19.99
Release: Out now

No, we haven't made a mistake – this is a Dizzy game and it costs 20 quid. In a slightly puzzling marketing strategy scenario, the Codies have decided that, although at first glance (and indeed second, third and all subsequent glances, but we'll get to that in a moment) this looks exactly the same as all the first 16-bit Dizzy game (the £4.99 Treasure Island Dizzy), it's going to cost four times as much. Actually, maybe it isn't so strange – the Codies always insisted that their games were really all full-price products and that selling them for eight quid was always purely a marketing thing, so perhaps we shouldn't be raising any eyebrows. Yeah, right. In whichever case, though, one thing IS sure to raise eyebrows in connection with Crystal Kingdom Dizzy, and that's how crap it is.

Now, as I've already said, on first impressions this is Just Another Dizzy Game. But there's been a bit of fiddling around going on beneath the surface – this is a little bigger than the Diz epics we've been used to before, and it comes in four separate sections, each of which can be accessed with a password via a neat little spoof on Code Masters' Nintendo and Sega cheating device, the Game Genie. Well, that's the theory, but a bit of a cock-up on the production front meant that the final version of the game actually forgets to give you the level two "You'll get very angry with this very quickly"

password when you complete level one. (With that in mind, I'll break with tradition and give it now, as a reward for any of you who've struggled through the first section and can't be bothered to play it over and over again when you keep dying on level two, as well you might, for reasons I'll get to in another moment – it's G5J 73Q 8HK)

That's just one of the little buggy annoyances in the game, though – in the aforementioned level two, it's only too easy to get a ride across the sea from a dolphin, leap off its back, and find yourself falling through a solid-looking floor and getting stuck at the top of a different screen, from which there's no way back into the game. Couple that with the lack of a level two password, of course, and you'll get very angry with this very quickly.

Also, it could just be my imagination, but I'm sure the other Dizzy games didn't make you traipse backwards and forwards shuttling objects around tediously nearly as much as this does, especially in level three where it gets quite fantastically nasty-minded about things.

I've kind of run out of space here, and there's lots more I'd have liked to mention (like paying 20 quid for a game and still having to put up with flick screens and a choice between average music OR fearsomely crap sound effects), but let's just say I'm one of Dizzy's biggest fans, but I hate this game with all my heart.

● STUART CAMPBELL

UPPERS The odd nice joke ('Yo there, small dude! Surf's up!' says Fat Freddy. 'Up what?' says Dizzy). Um... cartoon graphics?

DOWNERS Migraine-inducingly convoluted paths to follow, no password for level two, some infuriatingly pixel-perfect jumping required, no simultaneous sound and music, no scrolling, endless loading times, crap front end, and lots more.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Almost certainly the worst Dizzy game so far, so a bit of a strange choice for a near-trebling of the price tag. Extraordinarily annoying and almost no fun at all.

I wish I could find a situation in which to say, "Yo, small dude! Surf's up!" It's sad to think that I probably never will.

Game: The Bard's Tale Construction Set
Publisher: Electronic Arts
Author: Interplay
Price: £29.99
Release: Out now

The great thing about construction sets is that they more or less review themselves. (I don't like the sound of this. — Ed) If the game they're based on is okay, then the construction set most likely will be too. But if the game was a bit naff, there won't be a lot of point in constructing your own versions of it. All you really need to know, then, is what the game's like and whether the construction side of things works as it should.

THE BARD'S TALE CONSTRUCTION SET

Let's start off with The Bard's Tale itself. It's something I felt I really ought to be familiar with, but, although the name rang all sorts of bells, I couldn't actually put a game to it. So I did a bit of background reading and discovered that there are actually three Bard's Tales: The Bard's Tale, The Bard's Tale II and The Bard's Tale III, the last of which (to my immense relief) was reviewed in issue 1 of AMIGA POWER. It scored 67 percent.

Although I probably should have guessed it, I also found out that the Bard's Tales are RPGs. They're rather primitive ones, too, with a token 3D display of the view ahead, an emphasis on fighting rather than puzzle-solving, and all the underlying dice throws and lists of numbers laid bare. But what they lack in presentation and atmosphere they make up for with lots of action and places to go.

They're ripe for the construction set treatment, then. And, yes, The Bard's Tale Construction Set gets the job done just fine. You can specify all the things you'd expect to be able to — monsters, items, spells and map layouts. You can import DPaint images to represent monsters. And you can define specials: lists of commands (i.e. programs) to be executed when certain points on the map are reached.

This isn't as bad as it sounds — the commands are simple things like 'Have monster named X leave party', 'Print "You are dead"' or 'Regenerate 25 spell points'. Using them you can build up the puzzle side of your game.

Trouble is, I found the whole business enormously tedious. I'm a borderline case RPG-wise at the best of times, and when I'm faced with one as crudely laid out as this I tend to balk. The construction set is even more basically-

"It gets the job done just fine" presented than the games, with page after page of text and no graphics beyond the title screen and those you draw yourself. Mainly for that reason, I never got as far as writing The Bard's Tale IV. (I just tweaked the supplied sample scenario a bit.)

But, although I'm probably in the overwhelming majority, that still leaves a small minority who'll be delighted to see this — RPG construction sets are pretty thin on the ground (in contrast to wargame construction sets, which are everywhere). If you're one of them, well, go for it, I say. As long as you know what to expect, you won't have the least cause for complaint.

● JONATHAN DAVIES

UPPERS Well, it works, and the guts of The Bard's Tale are a pretty good basis on which to build your own RPGs.

DOWNERS Only pretty good, mind. You won't be writing the next Legend, I'm afraid. Not with this. It's not cheap, either..

THE BOTTOM LINE
 Now you can buy a construction set for The Bard's Tale. That's all there is to it, really.

SACK OF CACK II - THIS TIME IT'S PERSONAL

WIN!

In February 1992, we ran our most popular competition to date. The prize wasn't anything special, all we were offering was a bin bag full of the things which we and our chums on our sister magazines didn't want any more. In short, a load of old tat.

Because we love you (and because the office is getting untidy) we're doing it again. We reckon that you know us well enough by now that you could answer a few personal questions about us. Just use your skill and judgement to answer them in a witty and original (or accurate) way.

Stuart's question: I'm thinking of a number between one and a billion. What is it?

Tim T's question: A famous pop star stole my girlfriend. What band does he play for?

Mark R's question: Which scores have never been given in AMIGA POWER game reviews?

Lisa's question: What character did I play in Grease?

Mark W's question: Did I ever tell you that I'd been to America?

Tim N's question: Where's my blue pen?

Kate Bush's song 'Suspended in Gaffa'?

A large bottle of champagne (empty), the Marie Claire predictions for '93 magazine, several joysticks of varying designs (broken), two baseball hats, a german language version of History Line (PC copy), half a large jar of revolting bubble gum, thousands (almost) of different badges, the AMIGA POWER Christmas dinner till receipt and bottle top collection, a hand scanner (broken), the Zoomer precision controller, a coffee filter, various cheap sunglasses, three plastic cups and a fork, a knitted emu marionette, a scary floating eyeball, a chunk of the Berlin Wall (thanks Dave), a dental brace, half of a Porsche model kit, a wooden puzzle game, a small boxing glove, an equally small life jacket, a poster-sized cover of AP issue 13, a Super Play T-shirt, pen, badge and examples of reader art (thanks Super Play), a broken clockwork mouse, a foam cricket on wheels, Tim N's rubber band ball, a squidgy American football, a 'free packet of Quavers' voucher, a packet of Snow Chocs, quite a few comics (some dating back to 1979), some tinsel, a Sony mini-disk, a digital watch (still working!), lots of little books from TOTAL!, a small football, picture of Madonna, several bits of soft toys (but not enough to make a whole one), the vital innards of a printer, an imitation leatherette folder marked 'Top Secret', some Christmas cards, 36 AMIGA POWER postcards, an AP advert cromalin, Motorhead's 'March or Die' on CD, Pit Fighter for the Spectrum, Night Breed for the Amiga, a table top croquet set, an Exeter City clubline card, Simon Champion's 'Campfires and Dreamtime' CD, a magic plastic balloon kit, a Beechams hot blackcurrant cold cure, a Slade flexi single, a book of HMV discount vouchers, a tube of Flamazine burn cream, a Comic Relief '93 car nose, an empty tube of Acnidazil spot cream, a clockwork Groucho Marx nose, glasses and moustache set, a cap gun, a Future Internal mail envelope, a David Essex single, an eraser with 'Eraserhead' written on it (hah, hah), a Street Fighter II frisbee, some chopsticks, some PC Format cover disks, a purple flossy business card book, a Your Sinclair cromalin featuring 'supercool' Des Lynam, a Gidea Park single, some old PC microchips, a laughing clown key ring, packet of diarrhoea relief tablets, a yo-yo that looks like a wheel, a stick of rock from Weston-Super-Mare, an eclectic collection of books - Buzz Aldrin's Personal Odyssey, PC Power Tips, Shakespeare Made Easy, A Good Spy Guide to Tracking & Trailing, Brookside - The Official Companion, Flight of the Old Dog, several games demos, a Cup-a-Soup (Veg and Beef), an Action Man boot, a set of plastic ears, several Kinder egg toys, the Street Fighter II music on CD and a fascinating range of small plastic figures.

It's kind of strange then to discover that this chess game (the 'BEST' just got even better!!! boasts the packaging) is a mixture of all the above descriptions, with plenty to please both chess purists as well

FANTASTIC WORLDS

Publisher: Ubi Soft

Price: £35.99

Release: Out Now

Stopwatch ready, and go! Now here's a challenge for an up-and-coming staff writer, I've got six hundred words to review five full length games. So donning my rollerskates and hooded lycra body stocking, I'm off.

Okay, you get 11 disks for your money, that's a mere £3.27 per disk, or £7.20 per game, which seems pretty good value. But space is pressing, so let's get onto the games.

Well, there are five of them, and they're all good, which is unusual for a compilation. They're all quite old though, but being quite new to this Amiga lark, I managed to miss most of them the first time around. Here's the run down, with my favourite first.

Populous is one that I've played before, till about five in the morning. I seem to remember. It's one of those all-time classic games that people go on about all the time. Considered obsolete and overshadowed by Populous 2, the original still offers plenty of scope for making life a complete misery for hordes of primitive folk by inflicting earthquakes on them when all they really want to do is build nice houses and have 2.3 kids.

Another classic god-game, and undeniably in the same vein, is Mega lo Mania, which is suitably similar to interest Populous players, but thankfully different enough to give you all sorts of new challenges. As a warring deity you have to force your followers through the historical pipeline from working out how to use a rock as an offensive weapon up to possessing nukes and SDI technology.

Realms puts you in control of an empire struggling against all manner of Orcs, Dwarves and Vikings. There are eight different scenarios, including a handy intro game, and where as the joy of the previous two games is that you can get straight on into them, the appeal of this one lies in it's potential complexity. As well as raping and pillaging, there's also the problem of paying for the slaughter, so you've got to ensure a steady flow of cash into your coffers. The graphics are fantastic and the tactics challenging, making it an ideal game for all you Tolkien types who fancy a bit of conquest as a break from exploring dungeon.

After three games set in fantasy, it comes as quite a surprise that next up is Pirates, a simulation set in the 17th century Caribbean. With masses of grog swiggin' and yo-ho-ho-ing, you either start out as a young adventurer or choose to follow in the footsteps of historical plunderers. The game takes the form of a series of sub-games (ship-to-ship combat, duelling, navigation, etc.) linked by a role-playing story line. I turned out to be a pathetic swordsman and a total loss as a ruthless cut-throat, and consequently ended my days as a beggar, but apparently you can sail your way to riches and fame. Yeah, right.

And finally there's Wonderland, which is a no-holds-barred adventure game. Adapted from the Lewis Carroll book with you in the role of Alice, it's a highly polished affair using windows, so you have a text window, a map window, a graphics window and so on, and although the game is strictly word-based, the pictures add quite a lot of atmosphere. Text adventures seem a bit old hat now, but this is fine example of what may be a dying game form.

So there you have it, five good but old games. Whether they're worth 36 quid depends on how many of them you've already got. They're all good games though, and I seem to have done this in less than 620 words. Can I go home now?

● MARK WINSTANLEY

THE BOTTOM LINE

In terms of hours of playability per pound, Fantastic Worlds represents a great deal, but is there anyone still out there who still doesn't own either Populous or Mega lo Mania? If I'd just bought an Amiga then I'd definitely get this, but I think it's probably too late for you long-term users.

80 PERCENT

Despite being eclipsed by its sequel, Populous is still fab.

can do that too. There's even the slightly worrying option of playing blind chess, where you play against the computer with the added hindrance of not being able to see his pieces. There are some very strange people out there.

There's room in this review for a paragraph on how well the computer can play, but seeing that the last time I was victorious, I was nine and my opponent was an Action-Man called Mike, I'm not really the one to comment on this. What I can say is that even on the more challenging modes the computer thinks quickly, and even on the hardest level you can interrupt its chain of thought when the waiting starts to get tedious. We'll have to take the programmers' word for it that it's very, good, and personally I believe them.

● MARK WINSTANLEY

THE BOTTOM LINE

It depends whether you like chess or not really. This is a fast, no-frills version, and if you're more concerned about the game rather than fancy animated sprites like in Battlechess then this is a must, and being under fifteen quid makes it a 'get to the shops right now.' To non-chess players, well you won't like it then, will you?

THE POWER

Publisher: DMI

Price: £7.99

Release: Out now

When you load this game you get an options screen with Snap's hit single 'The Power' kicking away in the background, complete with vocals and everything. Which is fantastic, but why? I could understand if this was a storming shoot-'em-up or something, but it's a puzzle game for heaven's sake. As you try to reunite the two cute and romantic blobs, Max and Mini, you wonder how on earth the word 'Power' sprang to anyone's mind. Something like 'Vaguely egg-shaped pathetic mutants get it on with a love thang' would have been my suggestion, but presumably the fact that Snap haven't done a hit single with that title would have caused it to be rejected immediately. I'm sure The Orb would have been interested though.

Some vaguely egg-shaped pathetic mutants doing their thing.

Anyway, when you've got over this anomaly you find yourself involved in a reunification exercise in a standard puzzle game set up.

There's this arrangement of blocks and hearts with an impressive scrolling background and a cute, er, chick called Mini stuck in the middle of it, and it's your job to guide another odd looking thing called Max to her.

You slide Max around the screen, and he only stops when he reaches a wall or another obstacle. You can only move in one direction at a time, and you have various helping stones which you slide around the screen also, and they're used to guide Max in the right direction. First you've got to collect all the hearts, then finish the level by sidling up to your loved one. Oh, and there's a time limit of course.

It's alright, you know. It's not the best puzzle game in the world, and it's not terrible. It's alright, and it's £7.99. If your puzzle collection isn't entirely complete, then – oh God, I hate all this crap, it's so wishy-washy. Let's just say this – I wouldn't buy it.

● TIM TUCKER

THE BOTTOM LINE

As mentioned in last issue's Clone feature, The Power is a sliding block puzzle game that's not a million miles from Atomix by Thalion. It's competent and cheap, it could well keep you amused for some time, but because I've already said I wouldn't buy it myself I'm going to give it...

GALACTIC WARRIOR RATS

Publisher: Summit

Software

Price: £9.99

Release: Out Now

When considering whether to get this one or not, don't let the name sway your decision in any way, shape or form. Understand this and understand it well, pally boy, this game has NOTHING to do with warriors or rats. Nope, nah, nada, niet, nul and lots of other negative terms, remove the word 'rat' and any other rodent-related term from your consciousness, because Galactic Warrior Rats has only one thing to do with rats, and that's nothing.

Okay, I'll admit you do see some particularly well drawn galactic rats in the opening screen, but things start to go horribly wrong when you get onto the equipment section, where the rat's sitting inside some kind of high-tech bathysphere. Using your credits you stick on guns, coolant and add drone robots, and then it's onto the game where you discover what I've been saying all along – there're no rats.

SPORTS MASTERS

Publisher: Empire Software

Price: £29.99

Release: Out now

There are plenty of sports games on the Amiga, but they tend to vary enormously between the classic and the abysmally dire. Happily, here is a compilation including some real corkers, covering four major sports sims.

Indianapolis 500 is a 3D racing simulation which at one time was the best available on the Amiga, but is starting to show its age a bit now. Competition from the likes of Formula One Grand Prix and Nigel Mansell's World Championship makes it no longer the first choice racing game, but it still has a lot going for it. The control system works very intuitively, more so than the fire to accelerate one sued by Mansell's. Despite the neat control method, the game's a bit difficult to get the hang of it at first, but it does play very well and should keep you satisfied for ages.

Indy racing seems to be Formula One without any of the restrictions. Hurray.

Advantage Tennis is a seriously smart 3D tennis game. Control is by joystick or keyboard, but if you don't move your man then the computer will take care of him for you, although he'll produce a non-effective shot. The animation is supremely gorgeous, smooth and enticing to watch, and although I actually prefer playing Pro Tennis Tour this is a game that will give tennis fans plenty to enjoy.

PGA Tour Golf has been at the top of the golf sims on the Amiga for ages, and only now are others catching up, with Nick Faldo's Golf (reviewed in AP22) improving on it slightly. Nevertheless it's still a very elegant game that will last you a long time, and anyone who's interested in golf can't afford to miss out on it. It's one of those games that hasn't suffered with age, and there's no reason why it should either.

European Championship 1992 is an arcade type football game. It's not Sensible Soccer, let's face it, but it's not a terribly bad game either, and coming along with the others in this package it doesn't disappoint too much. The gameplay is similar to Sensible but nowhere near as smooth, but then that's the best soccer game in the world so it's no surprise. Certainly worth loading up after you've checked out the others in the box.

So there you have it, three excellent games and one not so good filler. Whatever way you look at it it's a bargain, and if you have none of these in your collection it's a must buy.

● TIM TUCKER

THE BOTTOM LINE

A great collection of sports games, three of which are contenders for the best of their genre. There's loads of lastability here, and plenty of variation too. If you're into sports sims you can't go wrong.

82 PERCENT

Stripes, blobs, bombs and stuff. The rat's hiding in the purple ball.

blasting is to collect computer access cards so you can log into a terminal, find out where a reactor shield has been deactivated, and then spin over to the location and trash the reactor. You do this because, er, because it tells you to. Look, I just play the games, how am I supposed to know everything, I think it's something to do with the planet exploding. All right? Along the way, you're hampered by hosts of robots and locked doors and aided by keys, lifts to other levels, and Joe's Automatic Weapon Store, which allows you to buy bigger and meaner guns. You don't have three lives, but three different rats (perhaps in an attempt to avoid being done by the trades description act) and you power them up separately before heading back to the totally rodent-free game.

Technically, it's smooth, aesthetically the graphics are lovely, and there're some strange clanks and pings interspersed with all the usual explosions and gun noises. None of this is ground breaking stuff, but it's a thoroughly playable and enjoyable game for a tenner, so you can't complain. Pity about the rats though.

● MARK WINSTANLEY

THE BOTTOM LINE

I've no doubt that it's all been done before, but without such a daft and misleading name. It's a lot better than your average budget game, and besides, what do you expect for ten squid?

Virtual reality?

AMERICAN TAG-TEAM WRESTLING

Publisher: Zeppelin

Price: £7.99

Release: Out now

Is your idea of fun to waggle a joystick until your wrist is completely knackered in the hope that you might get the odd blow in to your opponent? Then this is just the game for you. Why is it that wrestling games are not cutting it on the Amiga? They seem to be immensely popular nonetheless, but I'm afraid this game does nothing to improve the situation.

It's a tag team contest, which means that when one of your team is getting the crap kicked out of him he can tag his team mate to take over for him. The control system is ridiculous, although there are a couple of moves which do work quite well - the rope to rope flying drop kick is a sure fire success if you've got the space to do it. Otherwise most of your time is spent grappling with your opponent in the middle of the ring. No fun, I'm afraid. Forget it.

● TIM TUCKER

THE BOTTOM LINE

A poor man's WWF Rampage, and we gave that 18 percent. The only good thing you can say is that (while WWF IS marginally better) you'd only be wasting eight quid if you bought this one.

STRATEGY MASTERS

Publisher: Ubi Soft

Price: £35.99

Release: Out now

Strategy games don't have to be dull and boring. You wouldn't believe it to look at some of the drivel that's been produced over the years, but thankfully this compilation manages to pluck out five games which show, albeit to a limited extent, the better looking side of brain-bending gaming. Without further ado, let's see what these self-styled masters of strategy have to offer.

Hunter is something of an underrated and oft-forgotten classic. It puts you in a 3D polygon world with a series of missions which you have to complete in order to recapture an archipelago (group of islands to you and me). There are plenty of weapons and vehicles to collect and control, and it's not long before you're engrossed in the subtle blend of action and strategy. A bit of a gem if ever there was one.

There's a large body of opinion that rates Populous as a classic game - a landmark in the development of god games. But for me, it's a tedious affair, with too much clicking and not enough excitement - the gameplay soon gets very repetitive. If you've never played it, you should, but don't be surprised if you soon get bored, that's all. Good, but (in my most utterly humblest opinion) not as great as many would lead you to believe.

So you wanna be a god? Here's your chance in Populous, and old-but-gold god game that is something of a landmark.

Explore a vast 3D world and blow up lots of things in Hunter. It's like Midwinter, only with something to do.

Chessplayer 2150 is a competent, but not particularly sophisticated, chess game (no shocks there I suppose) from Oxford Softworks. It's a decent enough rendition of the mother-of-all-strategy-games (it dates from along time ago, before many of us were even born), but it has been out-dated by the likes of Oxford Softworks' own Chess Champion 2175. OK, but nothing special.

On to Battle Masters, which is a pleasing blend of strategy and RPG. It does its best to combine the genres in an addictive concoction, but unfortunately, you're left thinking whether the game would have been better off plumping for one game style or the other, rather than a mixture of the two.

Spirit of Excalibur is a pile of tosh that should have been left where it started in Arthurian Britain, and impaled on a lance of colossal proportions. It's a laborious mixture of strategy and adventuring that takes the worst of both worlds, and in a form of negative synergy, creates a real bleb of a game.

The only game in this compilation to feature in AP 20's Definition of Sound God Games is Populous, and even that's been out-dated by Populous II. So the games appearing here are not so much masters of strategy as veteran crones. They are the fore-runners of some excellent strategy games, but they are all too old and too tired. If you hanker for some brain-testing strategy, you'd be far better off going for a more recent game such as Mega lo Mania or Civilization.

But if you're new to the world of Amiga games, and haven't experienced the delights of Hunter or Populous, then it's worth considering this as a cheap way to expand your collection. Chessplayer 2150 plays a mean game of, er, chess, but Spirit of Excalibur is best forgotten.

● RICHARD LONGHURST

THE BOTTOM LINE

Two classics, a couple of so-so games and one dud. Not the most thrilling combination around, but there's plenty of fun to be had. Only worth considering if you haven't already got Populous or Hunter.

Dave Golder, top computer journo and renowned cheapskate, returns to check out all that's free in the world of Amiga games. Apparently, it is possible to get something for nothing and here, for your edification and entertainment, is a small selection.

MEGATRIS

Fortiss PD
A600/A1200 only

Yep, it's another Tetris clone. The prefix is a bit hyperbolic — Not-At-All-Bad-Tris might have been a bit nearer the truth, because, while there's nothing radically new about the gameplay, it looks great.

The graphics are sleek and stylish and the blocks make a pleasingly metallic clang when they touch. There is an interesting, if pretty irrelevant, statistics table that tells you how many blocks of each type you've used. All the while pounding music blares from your speakers — methinks we have a demo coder with musical aspirations here.

There is one oddity about the game, though. It doesn't get progressively faster, but just has sudden spurts when things get all frenetic for a few seconds. Whether there's any logic to these bursts I couldn't figure out, and the lack of doc files was no help.

But it does give the game an interesting edge, 'cos you might think you're doing well, then suddenly things speed up, you can't fit the pieces in the right places, and the whole screen looks a complete mess that you have to sort out when the game slows down again.

VERDICT: If you haven't got Tetris already this excellent-looking rip-off (or homage as they say in the film business) is well worth nabbing.

RATING: ★★★

ONE ON ONE

Fortiss PD

Not 600/1200 compatible

A bit of a minimalist game, this one. A two-player duel between a couple of tanks in which the arenas are mazes comprising blocks of one colour against a different-coloured background.

You whiz about the mazes — it's pretty nifty as these sort of games go — firing at your opponent and trying to avoid getting hit back. You know the score.

It's a-maze-ing! (The Job Centre's round the corner near the freezer shop. — Ed)

Unfortunately the game doesn't, and at the end of each bout it tells you, erm, nothing at all.

The mazes seem to randomly generated, which keeps things relatively fresh, and it runs smoothly. But the almost puritanical lack of any frills makes it a pretty dull experience.

VERDICT: Okay, so we're always saying that the gameplay is the most important thing, but some kind of effort in the presentation does help make things a bit more bearable.

RATING: ★★

FLAG CATCHER

Telescan Shareware

The aim of the game here is to find the flag on each level. It's hidden under one of 63 tiles and you've got 25 attempts to lift up the right one. The fewer goes you take the more points you get.

To help there are clues under certain tiles, such as arrows and numbers saying how many tiles you are away from the flag. There are also bonuses which give you extra points or replace used moves.

Unfortunately, bombs lurk under some of the tiles as well. Find one of these and all the tiles you've turned over and replaced, and you have to try to remember what was where. On the early levels there are more helpful things under the tiles than bombs but this situation reverses as you progress.

(Unfortunately, the person responsible for writing captions has been fired. — Ed)

Not that it makes things much more difficult. I romped through this first time.

VERDICT: Nice idea. One problem. It's too darned easy.

RATING: ★★

Q-BIC Telescan

have moved on so quickly (do we really want to be reminded of Ramparts?) but at others times they remind you that great games are based on ideas, not flashy graphics.

Q-Bic, a straight update of Q-Bert, is a brilliant example. The gameplay is completely faithful to the original. There's a pyramid suspended in space that has a number of coloured tiles. You control a Zebedee-like alien who bounces around the pyramid. As he touches each tile it changes colour, your goal being to change the whole lot.

Things are made more difficult by lethal blobby wotsits that also leap about the platforms. The first few wotsits are pretty thick, but if you take your time on a level larger blobs appear that mutate into nasties that follow you around. Life is made tougher on later levels by tiles you need to leap on twice.

The only enhancements that have been made are aesthetic. The graphics are a lot bolder, the characters cuter and there's some great use of sound effects. If you know the game already refresh your memory and wallow in nostalgia. If it's new to you, get it and discover one of the best cutesy puzzley type things around.

VERDICT: Nil points for originality, loads of points for style and presentation. Simple? Sure, but then the best ideas always are.

RATING: ★★★★★

Taking classic early '80s games that only ever saw the light of day on 8-bits as far home computers were concerned ('cos the 16-bits hadn't even been thought of then) and giving them a new lease of life is a favourite hobby of Amiga PD coders. Sometimes the results just make you thankful that computer games

FOOTBALL TACTICIAN 2

We set the standards We break the records.

Widely accepted as the most accurate football simulation available, FOOTBALL TACTICIAN 2 has taken the strategy scene by storm. Record after record is being broken:

- * Biggest ever multi-user system: up to 46 users! (who said four was the limit?) Now with new rating system reflecting managers' ability and achievements.
- * First ever fully interactive management game: intervene at any time during a match to change tactics, make substitutions, adjust formation or mark players.
- * Most accurate player definition: 30 parameters including real ages, aptitudes, skills, caps, playing positions, fitness, morale and market valuation.
- * Most accurate teams: 20-player squads updated EVERY WEEK! If your game still lists Des Walker at Forest or Eric Cantona at Leeds, then it isn't Football Tactician!
- * Largest results database: 21290 match results and league positions going back 20 seasons all instantly retrievable. All of which may be printed out.
- * Largest ever recording options: 36 matches always recorded IN FULL for instant full-scale replay, plus selected REAL matches that actually took place in real life.
- * First ever referee involvement: true to life behaviour. Beware of adopting 'rough tactics' when Jim Parker is in charge! The message is clear: know your refs.
- * Fastest ever setting-up time: initial start-up in less than two seconds, thanks to 900K of super-fast machine code. Smoothness of action is FT2's hallmark.
- * Most accurate editor: built-in intuitive editor capable of entering new players and fine-tuning all parameters. Essential for the serious user.
- * First ever simulation capable of replaying REAL matches (ex: the Leeds- Rangers clash in the European Cup)
- * First ever Scottish only simulation: FT2 Scotland now available separately.

FOOTBALL TACTICIAN is the first ever management game that includes strategy as an integral part of a successful campaign. Team selection, needless to say, remains a critical element. But the BIG innovation is your involvement during the match: for the first time ever, you will, as a manager, be able to alter your strategy: choose a defensive or offensive system, mark certain opponents, drop back some of your players if the pressure is tough, decide exactly when substitutions should be made, play the off-side trap, go for quick counters, etc... With full on-screen commentary and minute-by-minute feed-back, you're as involved in the match as any of your players! You will soon realise that this is no ordinary soccer manager. THIS is the REAL THING. You're in charge. You manage your side before and during the match. Nothing is left to chance. Can you rise to the challenge? Try FOOTBALL TACTICIAN and prepare yourself for the ultimate football experience.

New features include:

- * FA Premier League and Division One permanently in memory with full interaction, promotions, transfers, play-offs, local and European Cups.
- * 900 players accurately and meticulously named, plus accurate European players
- * Unique database-type search facility plus comprehensive data link giving access to additional, accurate, historical information on selected players. This feature may be further enhanced by the user himself.
- * Intelligent behaviour of computer sides capable of changing tactics to respond to situation on the field or making substitutions based on fitness and fatigue.
- * Three levels of commentary, from highlights only to ball by ball reporting. Plus mid-week transfer and fitness news.
- * Friendlies, top scorers charts, precise transfer markets, club history, financial position and much much more!

No known football game is more accurate! FT2 is updated weekly: transfers, bids, injuries are recorded as they happen, not a year later. Users ALWAYS receive the very latest version.

And now FT2 SCOTLAND! With the Premier AND First Divisions and of course all the unique characteristics and playability of the original Football Tactician 2.

At last, after a month of patient waiting, here's part two of our complete and utter round-up of Amiga arcade conversions. In this final part, Stuart Campbell takes you from N to Z... well actually, at the risk of being hauled up for infringement of the Trade Descriptions Act, he only goes to W, but that's not actually his fault.

THE AMIGA POWER ARCADE

PUZZNIC

RAINBOW ISLANDS

R-TYPE II

SUPER MONACO GP

NARC (The Hit Squad)

Really nasty port of a decent coin-op, with deeply unpleasant controls to go with the deeply unpleasant plot.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 3
AMIGA GAME RATING: 2

NEW ZEALAND STORY (The Hit Squad)

This doesn't look as nice as the NES version (!), but apart from a few missing secret warps it's a near-flawless conversion of one of the most lovable coin-op platformers of all time. Firmly ensconced at No. 69 in both the AMIGA POWER and Readers' All-Time Top 100s.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 9
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 8
AMIGA GAME RATING: 8

NINJA SPIRIT (Activision)

Crap platform game with a token bit of katana-wielding thrown in for laughs, except it's not funny.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 5
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 6
AMIGA GAME RATING: 3

NINJA WARRIORS (Virgin)

Bizarre Cinemascope effect (to replicate the look of the two-screen coin-op), some stylish graphics and a ton of wacky special effects hidden away to stretch the lifespan of what's actually a pretty repetitive and limited chop-'em-up. Fun all the same.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 6
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 7

OPERATION THUNDERBOLT (The Hit Squad)

The arcade follow-up to Operation Wolf, and the programmers of the Amiga version learned from the mistakes made in converting the earlier title. This is a technically great conversion, but more importantly the flow is interrupted much less often by faffing around with disks and the game's consequently lots more fun to play.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 7

OPERATION WOLF (The Hit Squad)

The daddy of all the duck-shoot mass-murderama arcade games, but unfortunately one that was licensed before anyone worked out how to do conversions of games that needed more than one disk. This looks an absolute treat, but with about three disk swaps after every level and interminable accessing, you'll be fighting a war against screaming tedium before you've got through half the camouflaged bad dudes the game throws at you.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 8
AMIGA GAME RATING: 4

OUT RUN (Kixx)

This didn't look too bad at the time, but beside the likes of Crazy Cars 3, the crude graphics, jerky movement and huge loading pauses between stages make it seem really primitive. It's a halfway reasonable driving game if you make allowances, but why bother when you could just buy Lotus 1 instead?

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 3
AMIGA GAME RATING: 4

P-47 THUNDERBOLT (MicroProse)

Unusually stylish horizontal scrolling blaster, excellently ported. In the unlikely event of being able to find it anywhere, you'll probably like this one.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 8

PAC-LAND (Grandslam)

A very strange game to play, but that's not for want of any conversion accuracy. Cute, original, fun.

A-Z OF GAMES

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 7

PAC-MANIA (Grandslam)

It's only Pac-Man with jumping, fancy graphics and some different mazes, but you'd be surprised how much fun that turns out to be. Another sterling Pac-conversion.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 8

PANG (The Hit Squad)

A brilliant arcade game in your home.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 9
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 10
AMIGA GAME RATING: 9

PIT FIGHTER (Domark)

A brilliant arcade game in, er, an arcade. Except, um, it's not actually all that good, even then.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 6
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 6
AMIGA GAME RATING: 3

POWER DRIFT (The Hit Squad)

There's a very strong Power Drift feel about this conversion, which is odd as technically it's not even slightly close. Don't play it if you're prone to motion sickness, though – the fearsome way the screen leaps around will have you revisiting your lunch in no time.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 4
AMIGA GAME RATING: 6

PLOTTING (Ocean)

Weird puzzle game, practically flawless port.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 8

PUZZNIC (The Hit Squad)

In gameplay terms this is an almost-perfect copy of arcade Puzznic, but there's one glaring omission – in the coin-op, successful completion of a level was rewarded with the gradual, er, unveiling of several cutesy Japanese babes in a kit-free scenario, but this feature somehow didn't make it to the conversions. Still, a corking puzzler, and a very faithful port.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 7
AMIGA GAME RATING: 8

RACE DRIVIN' (Domark)

A much better conversion than Hard Drivin', but still a bit slow and impossible to control.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 8
AMIGA GAME RATING: 6

RAINBOW ISLANDS (The Hit Squad)

Curiously, for some reason, the coin-op version of our current favourite Amiga game of all time isn't really all that entertaining. Whether it's the unsatisfactory joystick control (Rainbow Islands is definitely a keyboard game), or the reduced movement space afforded by the bigger graphics, or the off-putting difficulty level, it's just not as much fun as the home version. Along with Rodland, this is one of the best illustrations of a game actually being improved on through the conversion process, and you shouldn't be without it.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 7
AMIGA GAME RATING: 10

RAMPAGE (Activision)

One of not very many Amiga games that more than two players can play at once without buying a special interface, Rampage is a brilliantly entertaining giant-dinosaurs-destroy-skyscrapers-'em-up which suffers from the same gets-a-bit-repetitive-and-boring-after-half-an-hour problem as the arcade game.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 6
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 6

RENEGADE (The Hit Squad)

A great arcade beat-'em-up (a rarity in itself, that), eye-wateringly brutal but still with tongue firmly in cheek, brilliantly converted to the Spectrum, then absolutely destroyed by some of the most inept Amiga programming seen in living memory. Sub-8-bit graphics, fearsomely bad control responses and much, much less conspire to make this one of the most dreadful Amiga games ever, full stop.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 2
AMIGA GAME RATING: 1

RETURN OF THE JEDI (Domark)

The third in the Star Wars series isn't quite up to the standards of the other two, having those difficult-to-convert sprite graphics rather than good old simple vectors, but the gameplay is more or less all there. Sadly, without the big cinematic feel of the lovely-looking arcade game to hide behind, the gameplay is revealed as not really being all that good.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 6
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 4
AMIGA GAME RATING: 5

ROAD BLASTERS (Kixx)

The mouse control is a surprisingly workable replacement for the arcade's steering column in this Out Run-with-machine-guns driving game. So much so, in fact, that it makes what was a pretty challenging coin-op ridiculously easy on the Amiga, to the point where you won't much want to bother playing it after the first 20 identical levels.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 5

RODLAND (Storm)

The original arcade game of this ultra-cute platformer was hindered by some ugly bugs and a couple of fundamental design flaws, but to the everlasting credit of the Sales Curve programming crew, almost all of the game's niggles and drawbacks were eliminated by a conversion which didn't so much convert the game as write it the way it should have been written in the first place. Excellent stuff.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 6
AMIGA GAME RATING: 9

ROLLING THUNDER (US Gold)

Slow-moving, sticky to control, graphically a bit rough, but most of the charm of a strangely endearing arcade game remains intact. I can see you all salivating from here.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 6
AMIGA GAME RATING: 6

R-TYPE (The Hit Squad)

Plays a little bit fast and loose with exact accuracy in a number of places (especially the third level), but → captures the feel of the seminal shoot-'em-up superbly. At budget price, no game collection should be without it.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 9
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 7
AMIGA GAME RATING: 8

R-TYPE II (Activision)

Embarrass your Super Nintendo-owning chums with a pixel-perfect conversion of a great coin-op blaster which actually manages to run at more or less the same speed all the way through. It's not actually all that fast a speed, but it's so excellent you won't notice.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 9

SCRAMBLE SPIRITS (Activision)

Mind-numbingly horrible vertically-scrolling shoot-'em-up that's obviously a product of the 'infinite number of monkeys and an assembler' school of programming.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 6
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 4
AMIGA GAME RATING: 2

SHADOW DANCER (US Gold)

Scrolling ninja beat-'em-ups are usually the most horrible of creations, but this one's big and bold and sharp and pretty and it's even got a few neat and innovative touches. You might even say it's 'quite good fun'. Blimey.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 8
AMIGA GAME RATING: 7

SHADOW WARRIORS (The Hit Squad)

This, however, makes most other scrolling ninja beat-'em-ups look like complete works of genius. Ridiculous movement, wildly (no, really, it's spectacular) inaccurate collision detection, and a heap of disk swapping on top for good measure. Totally hateful.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 4
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 8
AMIGA GAME RATING: 2

SHINOBI (Mastertronic)

This is rougher than a bowl of Kellogg's Nut Clusters that's just been covered in sand and broken glass, but it actually plays a lot like the real thing despite looking like all the graphics were drawn with blunt crayons. Twice as good as it looks, which isn't saying all that much really.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 5
AMIGA GAME RATING: 7

SILKWORM (Mastertronic)

Very similar to, not as good as, but lots more popular (for some reason) than, P-47 Thunderbolt. Nifty two-player mode, though (conceptually, at least), and a pretty top-notch replication of the original.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 8
AMIGA GAME RATING: 8

SKULL AND CROSSBONES (Domark)

For reasons which escape us, this one appears to have been released halfway through development. The appalling control is a nightmare to overcome, and the game underneath is so pedestrian that there's no point in bothering anyway. The original was crap, but this is a whole new world of dreadfulness.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 3
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 5
AMIGA GAME RATING: 2

SPACE GUN (Ocean)

Very much like Line Of Fire, this is another Operation Wolf clone with graphics that're just too much for the Amiga to handle. It plays reasonably well, and it's quite good fun with the Trojan Light Phaser, but you'll tire of it in less time than it took you to read this review.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 6
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 4
AMIGA GAME RATING: 5

SMASH TV (Ocean)

There're two distinct camps in AMIGA POWER over this one, but since I'm writing this feature I'm going to say that it's a completely hopeless effort which is a pain to play and doesn't feel anything like the game it purports to be a conversion of. The difficulty level is all over the place, the collision detection is worse, the graphics are shoddy and the control mechanism with one joystick is all but unusable. I love Smash TV, but I hate this.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 10
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 4
AMIGA GAME RATING: 5

SONIC BOOM (Activision)

Another average run-of-the-mill vertically-scrolling zzzz - oops, sorry. It's not very interesting, this one.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 4
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 5
AMIGA GAME RATING: 5

STARGATE (Arc)

See Defender.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 10
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 6
AMIGA GAME RATING: 5

ST DRAGON (Kixx)

Scaled down (Ho ho. - Ed) quite a bit from the original, but still a brilliant shoot-'em-up in its own right, with one of the most challenging difficulty curves in the genre. One of the best horizontally-scrolling shoot-'em-ups around.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 6
AMIGA GAME RATING: 8

STAR WARS (Domark)

One of the grooviest coin-ops of all time, but the conversion is a little on the crude side, with very slippery controls and some graphic sloppiness. Never gets you ducking up and down in your seat as you fly down the trench, and hence completely fails to recreate the feel that made the arcade game so great.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 9
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 6
AMIGA GAME RATING: 5

STREET FIGHTER (Kixx)

The programmers were on a loser from the start in trying to recreate the coin-op's force-sensitive controls, but that's no excuse for not being able to write a decent scroll routine, or for any of the other displays of ineptitude apparent in this completely laughable pile of old cack. As far behind Street Fighter II as Crazy Cars is behind Crazy Cars 3, and that's a very long way indeed.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 6
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 2
AMIGA GAME RATING: 1

STRIDER (US Gold)

Compared to the original's breathtaking loveliness, this looks really tacky, and since the coin-op's good looks were there mostly to cover up the lack of any half-decent gameplay, judging this particular book by its cover is by far the wisest move.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 6
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 4
AMIGA GAME RATING: 4

STUN RUNNER (Domark)

A sharp reminder that there are some things an Amiga just can't be expected to do. Even so, you wouldn't be unreasonable to expect a slightly better effort at converting Tengen's brilliant Roadblasters-in-a-big-tunnel arcade game than this travesty. No thrills whatsoever.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 9
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 2
AMIGA GAME RATING: 1

SUPER HANG-ON (The Hit Squad)

Brilliant conversion of the original, helped immensely by the fact that you didn't have to fling yourself around energetically while sitting astride a huge and ridiculous plastic motorbike like you did in the arcades. Still one of the Amiga's very best racing games.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 9

SUPER MONACO GP (US Gold)

Things Amiga Super Monaco GP Has In Common With The Arcade Super Monaco GP: The name, plus it's got cars in it.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 3
AMIGA GAME RATING: 7

SUPER OFF ROAD RACER (Respray)

Programmed by top do-the-job-properly converters Graftgold, this is – well, a job done properly. Love it.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 8

SUPER SPACE INVADERS (Domark)

This coin-op update of the most famous arcade game of all time was an excellent, fast, frantic, pretty and varied blasting epic. The conversion, er, had a nice intro.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 9
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 1
AMIGA GAME RATING: 2

THE EMPIRE STRIKES BACK (Domark)

The follow-up to Star Wars wasn't quite such a good arcade game, but the quality of the conversion was on a whole different planet of grooviness to its predecessor. It's a bit repetitive, and the kind of thing that works better as the odd 20p zap than a £25 investment, but extremely well done all the same.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 7

THUNDERBLADE (Kixx)

A glorious, epic coin-op (if not really all that exciting to play), but it looks, frankly, a bit pathetic on the Amiga. The control aims for authentic helicopter-type authenticity, but succeeds only in feeling sluggish and fantastically annoying, and what gameplay there was is lost in a welter of collision-detection bugs and graphical glitches.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 8
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 3
AMIGA GAME RATING: 3

THUNDERJAWS (Domark)

Aieee! A poor arcade follow-up to Rolling Thunder, converted to the technical standards of about 1981. Best for all concerned if we just try to pretend it never happened at all, I think.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 5
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 4
AMIGA GAME RATING: 2

TIGER ROAD (US Gold)

Lifeless platform hack-'em-up with very little going for it, certainly not this workmanlike conversion job.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 5
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 5
AMIGA GAME RATING: 4

TIME SCANNER (Activision)

'Pinball doesn't work as a video game', goes the conventional wisdom on the matter. Time Scanner proved conventional wisdom totally and utterly wrong with a great game that captured the feel of pinball as well as making use of the possibilities of the medium with multiple tables and the like, but the Amiga conversion completely lost the crucially-important realistic ball movement, and hence became a complete pain in the bum to play. Ah well.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 9
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 3
AMIGA GAME RATING: 4

TIME SOLDIER (Electrocoin)

Dull kind of Ikari Warriors derivative, sloppily written and fortunately almost totally unavailable, so you shouldn't have to worry about being tempted by it.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 5
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 5
AMIGA GAME RATING: 3

TOKI (Ocean)

The Ocean France team have proved themselves to be absolute stars of the arcade conversion (like, whatever happened to Snow Bros anyway?), and they didn't do their reputation any harm with this superb Amiga reproduction of a cute but insubstantial coin-op platformer. Monkeys in American football helmets? We got 'em.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 10
AMIGA GAME RATING: 8

TOOBIN' (Respray)

Dodgy, upside-down controls and unrewarding gameplay conspire to wreck a pretty and potentially neat ride-a-tyre-down-a-raging-river sort of affair. Original, but crap.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 5
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 6
AMIGA GAME RATING: 4

TURBO OUT RUN (US Gold)

A much better job than the first Out Run conversion (although still not that close), but the interminable stop-dead loading gaps between the levels really spoil the flow of the game. Flawed but bearable.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 6
AMIGA GAME RATING: 5

UN SQUADRON (US Gold)

Extremely console-esque both in looks and presentation, this corking shoot-'em-up simplifies the coin-op original just a tiny little bit, but not to any noticeably adverse effect. A great conversion and a great game.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 9
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 8
AMIGA GAME RATING: 9

VIGILANTE (Kixx)

Really horrible clone of Kung Fu Master (the original arcade progressive beat-'em-up), made even worse by being dramatically slowed down for its Amiga incarnation. Dismal.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 4
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 4
AMIGA GAME RATING: 2

VOLFIED (Empire)

A souped-up version of the brilliantly weird and original coin-op Qix, Volfied adds power-ups and aliens and all sorts of bits and bobs, but only really succeeds in detracting from the classically simple and addictive Etch-A-Sketch gameplay. Still, the conversion replicates the coin-op perfectly, so if you can't find a Qix machine anywhere (and let's face it, you won't), this is a pretty damn good alternative.

ORIGINAL COIN-OP RATING: 7
CLOSENESS OF CONVERSION: 9
AMIGA GAME RATING: 7

WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP SOCCER (Elite)

Sluggish, unrewarding overhead-view footy game that's just been voted one of the 10 worst games ever by a Sega Mega Drive magazine. The Amiga version is almost indistinguishable from the Mega Drive one, so draw your own conclusions.

DO THE write THING

Grump, grump, grumpety grump. That's all we get. We open the mail, full of hope and excitement, and then have to spend ages reading grumpy letters from people moaning on about new machines, J R R Tolkien and the word 'crap'. Cheer up, why doncha?

● Address your letters to: AMIGA POWER, 30 Monmouth Street, Bath, Avon, BA1 2BW.

'I AM CURRENTLY SITTING'

Dear AMIGA POWER,

I am currently sitting my A-Level mock exams and after labouring through three hours of Physical Geography I came home and read through my December issue of AMIGA POWER and, horrors, what should I find but 13 unlucky things to write about in a letter to you. 13! Now I'm not saying I'm a superstitious person but I have been entering my exams like a witch doctor with the amount of lucky charms I've got about my person. I even did a lucky rain dance before yesterday's exam and when I get home I saw that SW England was flooded. I'm sorry, I didn't realise.

I must be terminally unlucky. I'm the person who had to get a job to be able afford computer software. I'm the person who had to restart Legend four times because when I reached the puzzle on Treihadwyl level two I found I didn't have enough spell components for the solution. I'm the person who was just about to save my English essay onto a disk when the electricity went off. I'm the person who squeezed a package from the Post Office to try to determine what it was, only to find it was my free copy of Mega lo Mania for subscribing to you and I had crushed the box. Well, at least I'm not as accident prone as my sister. (Do tell. - Ed)

Anyway, to rectify the situation, Point 14: Don't write in merely to ask for a free game, earn one. I had to get a Saturday job, why shouldn't anyone else? (Too right. Kids today, I don't know... - Ed)

I feel happier now, maybe I will do enough to be entered for my exams next June after all. Please wish me luck, I'll need it.

Yours terminally luckless, Anthony Hall

Good luck, Anthony. Hope this helps.

'LET ME BORE YOU'

Dear AMIGA POWER,

I have an idea. For the first time since I left school I, Joyce 'De Ace' Robinson have had an idea. Now then, wouldn't you lucky people like to know what this idea actually is? No, I didn't think you would, so let me bore you with something else. I read that Indy 500 authors, Papyrus, are working on a Formula One simulator type game. What I would like to know is why? To me it seems a bad idea to write an F1 based game while MicroProse's Grand Prix and Nigel Mansell's World Championship are selling strong. Not even I, the greatest motor sport fan ever, have room for three F1 games. A bit like Shredded Wheat really. No, much better to write a game about banger racing, super Skoda racing or similar would certainly have novelty value, something authors seem intent on forgetting about these days. Throw in some smoothly animated in-car graphics and you have a winner. A much better tactic than just doing an improved version of an old game. Anyway, enough of that except to wish good luck to Papyrus because there's some stiff competition out there (stiff as in good, not dead).

Have you ever received a letter

'THERE IS ALREADY EVIDENCE'

Dear AMIGA POWER,

A year ago my parents bought me an A500P. I was very proud of my new machine and thought 'ah, now I have the ultimate home computer'. Then four months later Commodore had a little one, the A600. And now Commodore have brought out yet another computer, the A1200, saying that it is 'the Amiga of the '90s'. So what's my humble A500P, 'the Vic-20 of the '90s'. I know that Commodore have to keep up with new technology but surely bringing out three new computers in one year is going a little too far.

It is inevitable now that computer programmers will make games with the A1200 more in mind, so these same games will run slower and hence be more unplayable on less powerful machines. There is already evidence of this. To play Links properly you need a £300 hard drive and a £200 accelerator. Who can afford £500 to play a game properly when the thing only costs £37.99? This is a game only really meant for computers like the A3000. Another example of this is Monkey Island 2 - imagine playing a game with ELEVEN disks on a single drive system. On the subject of games, what is the point of Commodore producing computers which are incompatible with most software produced six months before? Surely they should consult games manufacturers and say that they are producing a new computer so they can program games that will work on the new machine.

Another new Amiga which has "popped up" in the last year is CDTV (or for present Amiga owners the CD-ROM drive). Most games programmers are saying that 'in four years all Amiga games will be on CD'. So yet again Amiga owners are going to have to shell out another £300 to keep up with 'new technology'.

The solution to all these inflated prices would be to produce an Amiga with the same power as the A1200, but with a CD ROM drive, a credit card slot and a floppy disk drive all built in. The price would have to be around £250 to be competitive, but the most important thing would be to keep the same computer for a few years instead of a few months. I know I certainly would buy a computer like the one I've described.

If Commodore don't do this soon, Britain's homes will all have ugly grey and black consoles instead of nice white Amigas. Consoles will take over, just like in America, leaving the Amiga sadly lagging behind.

Thanks for listening, Graeme Fyfe

What, you want ANOTHER new Amiga? Lord save us...

'IT MAY SEEM SOMEWHAT PICKY'

Dear AMIGA POWER,

This is the first time that I've written to a computer magazine, so I hope my inexperience doesn't show. Due to your favourable review of possibly the greatest game ever, Sensible Soccer, I duly purchased it. 'What's the problem?' I hear you cry. Well, although it may seem somewhat picky I feel that I may have been somewhat misled into buying it. I also read the review of the game in a copy of my friend's 'The One' magazine and one of the features that caught my eye was the unique method of being able to call upon the services of the physio on the bench during the game. This feature in my mind made Sensible Soccer the complete game and a week later I went out and bought it, carefully checking the box to make sure everything that I expected of the game was there, in black and yellow. It was. 'Subs bench with manager and physio' it stated. So, you can imagine my surprise when I discovered that no Physio was on the bench in the game. Admittedly

'DRIVE NOT READY'

Dear AMIGA POWER,

On seeing reviews and reports on the 'FAB AMIGA 1200', I hurriedly gathered my wads of cash together and headed for the high street. On managing to find a machine I quickly 'did the deal' and rushed home to try it. On unpacking and setting up I was totally delighted with the all new Workbench 3.0 and the thought of all the machine's possibilities.

But (here it comes) apparently (and I have this info from a good source) Commodore has fitted two different drives (in terms of the supplier) to the A1200, and, you've guessed it, problems are apparent. Apart from some programs loading on one machine and not the other (same boot options etc) there seems to be an even worse fault - on using Workbench and some PD utilities/graphics packages I keep getting "Drive not ready error" when everything is in order, ie the disk is in the drive etc. Even worse, on loading original games software (not all I may add) I get a "software failure of 0000...08A".

I tested other software and I find it seems to happen when the system has to access the drive, ie after title pages, loading next levels etc - hence it looks like this 08A error is a drive problem.

Could you please look into this as I've three friends all experiencing similar problems and Commodore technical staff say they won't talk to me unless I'm a dealer. So I go to my dealer (Comet) and try to get them to phone, but they don't understand my problem, so how are they supposed to tell Commodore? I'm at my wits' end trying to get somewhere. Please can you help?

Yours hopefully, Steve Heath

As you may have noticed before, Steve, we don't tend to have much success getting technical info out of Commodore, but if any vaguely intelligent readers out there can help...

'ONLY A PAPER BOY'

Dear AMIGA POWER,

"Bing a bang a jelly, Up pong will die," said John. See! I didn't start with "I am writing to you," although I am. But really, what I would like to say is this – I am fed up with it. "Fed up with what?" you may be asking yourself, and very rightly so. Well I'll tell you. Buying a game and finishing it within a week. It's never been this bad in all my years. Never have I seen so little challenge from the games that I buy. Every month I read your mag to make sure I don't buy a duff game, and what do I get? Putty! Bloody finished it the same day I got it. Pang – about four days play there. First Samurai – only about a week once you get the hang of it. Hey! But don't get me wrong, these are all great games. But not once in any review I saw did you say how easy they were. I'm only a paper boy and if I pay three or four weeks pay for a game I expect to be playing it for just as long.

So on to my next point. I have recently purchased a copy of Zool, but to my dismay I hated it. The music is so bad your Ninja will be impaled upon the spikes so you don't have to hear it anymore. The scrolling is crap and the end of level baddies are impossibly difficult. Basically it's Sonic without all the good graphics, speed, scrolling and everything else and I'm sure you don't think that was the best platform game out. So my idea is that at the end of a review have a little box saying what similar games you could get instead, but better. This way, if you have just read a bad review of a game you were going to buy, all you have to do is look in the box and see what game you could get instead. This would be good for people on low incomes (like me) who only want the best of a particular game type and don't want to faff about with second rate games which have raked in more percentage than they should have.

Yours sincerely, Tom Exley

PS Do you know where I can get a copy of R-Type II because it's not available in the shops any more?

Um, no we don't, unfortunately. Does anyone have a spare one they'd like to sell Tom? Write to Exchange And Mart (One-Off Special), AMIGA POWER, 30 Monmouth Street etc. As for the idea of an alternatives box, we already do comparisons when games appear to be very similar to existing titles, but really you're still going to have the same problem. If, for example, a Zool-like platform game comes out, we might say 'This is really good but it's not as good as Zool', which puts you back to square one, because the reasons we prefer Zool might be the same ones that make you think Zool's rubbish. Really, it's all down to that old 'personal opinion' warhorse again.

I still find Sensible Soccer the best quality game of its genre on sale at present, but the point I'm trying to emphasise is – do software companies make a habit doing this, ie tempt prospective buyers of their game with lies to ensure that it has more chance of becoming successful? As far as I know there was no attempt to inform people that the physio would be removed from the game. It has not detracted from my enjoyment of the game, but how can we punters trust what we hear about games if companies are liable to provide the magazines we read with false information to make the game look more appealing? I don't know if there have been any other similar cases, or if this was just an innocent mistake, but it will not do! (Cor, I'm starting to sound like Gran).

Finally could you tell me a bit about the game International Rugby Challenge, as I am thinking about acquiring it. I was impressed by its predecessor, Rugby The World Cup, and I haven't had a sniff of a review or preview anywhere.

Thanks for listening, Alan Smith

don't contain unplayable demos (Sim Brick excluded). It really curls my hair when some other nameless magazines advertise that the following month they will have a certain demo on a cover disk, so after a month of wet nights waiting in anticipation the magazine comes and you can't play the bloody thing. Do the software companies not have any confidence in their games?

Secondly, I've noticed that yours and other magazines usually have some lifeless soul telling you that the score for their fave game was 3% too low. I've got an idea on how to solve this and give my fellow readers a wider viewpoint on the games you review before they rush out and buy. My idea is to have a page solely for readers to give their own scores and mini review of a game. To narrow down the games available you could make it just the last two magazines releases. This would put your mag at an advantage as you only review released games.

Lastly I would like to thank the people responsible for Sensible Soccer for making the upgrade available cheaply to those of us lucky enough to have the original game. If only other companies would follow suit – just think, we could have Pinball Fantasies 2 for only a fiver, the mind boggles.

Thanks for reading, David Niblett

We tried offering up a forum for readers' mini reviews before, a long time ago, but the response was so pitiful it wouldn't have filled a column, never mind a page. Seems most people would rather just whinge than actually try to do the difficult stuff and write a useful or entertaining review.

'DEAR MARK, WHAT HAPPENED'

Dear Mark,
What happened? Before you became editor you looked, well, cool-looking. Now you look, well, goofy-looking. Now I believe I have the answer. (Hurrah. – Ed)

I figure it's got something to do with becoming editor, there's just something about this post that makes people look goofy. I mean, you want examples, just look at Damien Noonan, Matt Bielby or David Upchurch, it's something about the position that's unnatural. When you became editor in issue 16 and I saw that picture of you, I thought 'Whoa, what happened to the hair, the smile, the clothes?' So I double checked, maybe I'd remembered your picture wrong. I checked issue 15, all fine, then I backtracked to issue 1, hunky dory all the way.

Geez, you looked so cool before but now, I just dunno. I thought at first that it would pass, like bad gas, but I look at issue 21 and yikes! With the greasy hair, black boots and pants and flannel shirt, you look like some kind of punk skateboarder. Sorry, but I calls it likes I see it. (Hey – I'd washed my hair! – Ed)

But fear not once mighty Mark, I have the solution. Seeing as you became goofy by becoming editor, all you've got to do is resign and return to being deputy editor, then let Stuart become editor as he's already goofy enough.

Hope this insight helps and here's hoping for your return to normalcy.

Yours concerned,
Dallas James Parker, Winnipeg, Canada

'CRAP'

Dear AMIGA POWER,
I am jolly annoyed! I myself read your mag and always see the word 'crap'. I am eight and hate people that use foul language. →

International Rugby Challenge isn't finished yet, keep watching the pages of AMIGA POWER for full progress reports. As for the physio in Sensible Soccer, it was something that the boys just couldn't fit in time. Unfortunately the boxes were printed before the game was finished, so they went out with the mistake on them. It is, as they say, just one of those things. Rest assured, no smart software house would mislead the public like this on purpose – it'd be more trouble than they'd ever hope to gain from it.

Congratulations on yet another fantastic magazine and cover disk, which is the first reason why I'm writing to you. I'm all in favour of the little blighters as long as they

OLD A500 GAME winner

'A DEAD DINOSAUR'

Dear AMIGA POWER,

I'd like to voice my concern now that Commodore have added the A1200 to their range. So with the A1200 comes better graphics, better sound and better chips and the programmers will use this to improve their games. So what happens to the older A500 – with these new improved games the poor old A500 won't be able to handle it? Will the A500 simply fade away due to lack of games, never to be seen again, or will the A500 owners have to upgrade their computers with new chips which cost lots of money that most owners don't have?

I heard on the grapevine that Commodore may be re-introducing the A500 but that sounds like it could be a load of crap. Games are getting better and better and I would like to carry on playing games for as long as possible, but I don't think I could afford to swap or upgrade and besides, I like my trusty old A500. What do you reckon – will the A500 become a dead dinosaur?

Yours slightly-concerned-but not -that-worried-yet
Robert Penn

There are far too many A500s and A500Ps out there for it to make any kind of economic sense for software companies to abandon the machine. Commodore have said that they expect the A600 to become the standard entry-level machine for the next few years, and since most A600 stuff is made to run on the older models, I shouldn't think you'll have anything to get worried about.

DO THE write THING

I'm steamed. Stop printing the word 'crap.' If you do not I WILL NEVER READ AMIGA POWER AGAIN!!!!

Yours angrily, James Burton.

'I WAS THICK'

Dear AMIGA POWER,
Right, this is it, I've had enough! This is the last straw!

You may ask what I'm talking about, I'm on about you calling us readers kids. You go on and on about the wide readership, and how grannies play games, professionals play games, everyone plays games. Then you go and call us kids. Okay, so a lot of the readership is young. I voted in the last election, good clue, and secondly, when I was a kid I hated being called kid, as if I was thick.

Deirdre Keelan thought you had to be over fifty to own an Amiga, but the people I know with Amigas range from 18 to 29. People I know with consoles are either in their twenties or at school.

You're not the only mag I buy (Amiga Format being my favourite), so I'm no complete game junky, but I find your mag informative and amusing. But do not call me a kid!

Also any more pokes at people who read Tolkien will get you in serious trouble. JRR Tolkien wrote books, that was all. Dungeons and Dragons was developed in America, inspired by Tolkien and (unfortunately) RE Howard's Conan books. Stop giving fantasy a bad name, as though we were all trainspotters. I mean, if even the illustrious Andrew Braybrook reads the riotously funny Discworld books, fantasy can't be that bad.

Finally, here's a suggestion - try putting games in classes for your next top 100, so you'll have best platform, best flight sim and best odd-thing-no-one-is-sure-of. This way you wouldn't get any more comments about how stupid Rainbow Islands was as number one. Right, that's it then, I'm off down the pub.

Yours needing-a-pintly Ben Nichols, Taunton.

'MATT BIELBY 'GOLDEN AGE''

Dear AP,
Issue 21 proves me right about CDTV, which has done my self esteem no end of good. So much so, in fact, that I thought I'd have another go at this industry guru-type thing:

Commodore won't be able to sustain the Amiga at its current heights, not for any technical or marketing reason, but because the computer doesn't have a soul. It's an efficient and unlovable machine without the endearing naughtiness of the 8-bits and the cunningly constructed personae of the consoles, which have only sold hugely in the last few years when for ages the Speccy and C64 beat them into the dirt, because people find the thought of owning an Amiga deeply unexciting.

And another thing... AP won't remain the 'World's best selling Amiga games magazine' for much longer, despite its obvious superiority, because:

1. The price rise (three times the rate of inflation, in the middle of a recession/slump???) Do you at the mega-successful Future Publishing know what's happening in the real world? (Don't ask us, we only work here. - Ed)

2. Familiarity breeds contempt. Complaints are up, compliments down and already everyone looks back to the Matt Bielby 'Golden age' with dewy-eyed nostalgia. (Sorry, don't understand that one, how about some examples. - Ed)

3. Peter Cushing and Christopher Lee have yet to make an appearance (CU Amiga have stuck the latter on a recent cover, then saw sales rise 100,000% and grateful readers sending them extra money because they felt they weren't paying enough.) Sort this out or your days are numbered! (No, don't understand that one either. Is it me, perhaps? - Ed)

Oh, and finally, Patrick McGeehan is in my view, Britain's third finest ever genre star. (A-ha, I see. - Ed)

Be seeing you,

'THE GREAT AMIGA CD-ROM SCAM'

Picture the scene 12 months from now where the CD-ROM revolution has well and truly taken off. All of the major software houses have numerous releases already out, with plenty planned for the near future. The new CD driven Amiga, the ACD 200, has quickly become the best selling computer since its release in Nov '93. The rival Sega and Nintendo CD systems have been struggling due to the ever increasing prices. It seems that people are finally coming to their senses, with the greedy Japanese business men who've squeezed the punters for the past 18 months feeling bitter towards Commodore. They now feel that the days of overpriced game carts is over at last. Quality will now be the name of the game.

Please step forward the saviours of this once great industry - all the leading software houses, please take your marks. STOP PRESS.....STOP PRESS..... Urgent News just in! Dark secrets of Software Houses revealed! Read all about it!

In the basement of a darkened car park, several black limos pull up together. Out steps the bosses of the software industry. They are Mr X, Mr Y and Mr Z. MR X: Listen, we've gone far too long withstanding the costs of piracy on the Amiga. It's time we did something to recoup our losses.

MR Y: Yes, with the prospects of a CD monopoly similar to the cartridge stranglehold of '92-'93, it could be a highly prosperous new year. After all, we can subject the consumer to any price we wish, and still be guaranteed phenomenal sales figures.

MR Z: Isn't that a little dangerous, after all these are probably people who've supported us and the Amiga for years. Can we afford to betray their trust?

MR Y: We're in a competitive market after all, so the prices of our product should reflect what the consumer is willing to pay. We've seen that they're willing to pay over £60 for a single hyped cart game, and that was 12 months ago.

MR Z: I know we're a profit-making business, but we should make consumer confidence one of our main objectives.

MR X: The bottom line is that as long as we control a monopoly and pirating is at a minimum, we should be able to charge what ever prices we see as appropriate.

The conclusion to this meeting is that the companies decide to charge between £40 and £65 for each CD-ROM title. Everybody buys the software as there's no alternative. Profits for '94 are an all time high. The punters suffer.

Be seeing you, The Prisoner.

How long have you been having these paranoid delusions? And have you met number 123 yet?

KNOWLEDGE IS POWER...

SO BECOME POWERFUL

The first week of March 1993 sees something very, very special coming from the makers of Amiga Format the world's best-selling magazine for the Amiga... The Encyclopaedia of the Amiga is jam-packed with facts, details and inside info about your machine. We will tell you about the history of the Amiga, about the companies that support the machine, and about the software and hardware that makes the Amiga the best home computer ever. And we'll tell you much more than that too. It all comes down to more power to you, so don't miss it...

THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA OF THE AMIGA WILL BE ON SALE FROM THURSDAY MARCH 4 PRICED AT £3.95

It's the original and best. If you want to know which of the many recent games can make the best claim on your hard-earned, this is the place to look. Oh, and to forestall any dumb letters, the blue entries are the new ones.

THE BOTTOM LINE

(AND HOW TO UNDERSTAND IT)

★★★★★ Excellent ★★★★★ Nearly there ★★★★ Very good

★★★ Has its moments ★★ Flawed ★ Dire

The whole point of the Bottom Line is to cram as much information as possible into this small space. Here's how it works...

The top bit is easy:

GAME NAME
Publisher Price

Then we get (just for your information really) the issue of AMIGA POWER in which the game was originally reviewed, the mark it got at the time and the reviewer's initials. If the game appeared in our new, updated All-time Top 100 Games, its position comes next, followed by the mini-review and a rating out of five stars (with red ones for real 'must buys'). And there you have it - all you could ever possibly need to know about just about every full price game you're even slightly likely to think about buying.

THE ADDAMS FAMILY

Ocean £25.99

AP14 88% MB

Highly simplified Mario clone, but no less playable for all that. Huge and tough, and while it looks a bit bare in places, there's no shortage of things going on. A goody for sure. ★★★★★

ADVANTAGE TENNIS

Infogrames £25.99

AP12 69% DG

We're still waiting for the definitive Amiga tennis game. This is up there with the best of the contenders, but poor controls let it down. ★★

THE ADVENTURES OF WILLY BEAMISH

Sierra £34.99

AP12 69% MR

Great plot with some genuinely funny touches of humour, but the game itself is straightforward and linear. For £35, it's a bit short on depth to justify buying. ★★

AGONY

Psygnosis £25.99

AP13 78% SC

The mellowest shoot-'em-up around, with stunning graphics, beautiful animation and relaxed, blissed-out gameplay (but utterly tragic music). The six levels won't take you all that long to get through, though, so think carefully if you're after a real challenge. ★★★★★

AIR BUCKS

Impressions £29.99

AP17 70% MR

Fighting for supremacy of the skies can be a messy business, especially when it's peacetime and you run a commercial airline. This is an intriguing and engrossing business sim but you need to make too many allowances for sloppy programming for it to be 'fun'. ★★

AIR SUPPORT

Psygnosis £25.99

AP19 55% RL

Uninspired and a chore to play, Air Support misses the mark as a strategy game and a 3D blaster. It's a nice idea to combine two genres but it falls short when all the good bits are missed out. It's a sad, bad game, which is a pity. ★★

ALCATRAZ

Infogrames £25.99

AP13 73% NW

A bit of a pain in one-player mode (you have to play two characters simultaneously), but much more fun with a chum around, this maze game/shoot-'em-up is atmospheric and addictive, if not the biggest thing you'll ever see. Not bad. ★★

ALIEN³

Acclaim £25.99

AP22 85% GP

Not a totally accurate representation of the third in the Alien saga, but it does capture the feel of the Alien films in general and, more importantly, it's a great game. A platform blast-'em-up that's not particularly original but provides loads of fun and atmosphere. Good stuff. ★★★★★

AMERICAN FOOTBALL COACH

Composer Software £14.95

AP14 21% NW

John Madden Football without the groovy graphics, exciting strategy/arcade blend, competent programming and pretty much everything else. ★

APIDYA

Play Byte £25.99

AP13 89% MR T100 No.25

We can't agree whether this is the best Amiga horizontally-scrolling shoot-'em-up ever or only the second-best (its rival is the terminally cool R-Type 2), but it's definitely completely excellent, so why are you reading this instead of going out to the shops to buy it right now? Eh? ★★★★★

AQUATIC GAMES

Millennium £25.99

AP19 60% SC

James Pond's latest adventure sees him competing in the underwater Olympics. It's one of those joystick waggler games that gets horribly boring and repetitive very quickly. It does look very cute but we think we'll wait for James Pond³. ★★

AQUAVENTURA

Psygnosis £25.99

AP16 38% AP

Over-hyped, nice-looking but repetitive and shallow 3D shoot-'em-up. Okay as an ambient relaxation tool but if that's what you're after, try fitting a coloured light bulb. ★★

ASHES OF EMPIRE

Mirage £34.99

AP16 80% RL

Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to bring peace and stability to the Confederation of Syndicalist Republics (a not very well disguised USSR/CIS sort of place). Ashes is one of those strategy role-playing games that people tend to be scared of, but despite being vast and complicated, it's surprisingly easy to get into and curiously addictive. ★★★★★

ASSASSIN

AP19 89% MS

Overall a great game. Nothing really to drag it down except perhaps a lack of originality. It looks great, it's chock-full of features and entertaining baddies and it's fairly simple to control. This is how most arcade conversions should look, but don't. ★★★★★

A320 AIRBUS

AP13 66% DG

You know how people say that if you want to play arcade games, you must have a console? Horrific image-wrecking trainspotter guff like this is the reason why. If you want to fly, go in a plane, don't buy an Amiga. 'Realistic'? Well maybe, but who cares? ★

AV-8B HARRIER

Domark £39.99

AP22 47% JD

A Harrier sim that's so accurate it's a chore. For anyone without an A1200, forget it, it's too slow. Even on the A1200 it's on the dull side, with uninspired graphics and very little entertainment value. Could be the most accurate Harrier sim available (on the A1200 that is), but not a game to get excited about. ★★ (★★★ for A1200)

BACKGAMMON ROYALE

Oxford Softworks £19.99

AP12 45% JD

Too thin a game to justify this price, and no use as a learning tool thanks to the horrible, confusing instruction manual. Buy a real Backgammon set and a decent book on the subject, it's better and cheaper. ★

BATTLE ISLE SCENARIO DISK ONE

Ubi Soft £19.99

AP18 78% MR

As data disks go this one is good value for money. Battle Isle fans, this is the place to come for lots more scenarios and lots more playing time. ★★

BAT II

Ubi Soft £30.99

AP19 80% RL

With so many different styles of gameplay in here it could have been a real mess but the strategy and 3D elements combine really well with the adventure and RPG to give a cracking game. An unusual hybrid that works well. Nice one. ★★★★★

BC KID

Ubi Soft, £25.99

AP19 89% GP

Supercute platform beat-'em-up, brimming with style, character and humour. Very playable and very lovable. ★★★★★

BILL'S TOMATO GAME

Psygnosis £29.99

AP 21 81% TT

Bill wrote it, Terry and Tracy Tomato star in it and you play it. Totally bizarre and thoroughly original gameplay gets you to propel a tomato across the screen using fans, trampolines and jack-in-the-boxes. With a hundred levels involving all sorts of puzzles, this will keep you going for ages. ★★★★★

BOROBODUR

Thalamus £25.99

AP11 34% SC

Really awful platform game, tied onto reasonably neat driving section which isn't good enough to suffer the horrors before it for. Really badly programmed too. ★

BRIDES OF DRACULA

Gonzo Games £25.99

AP13 59% MS

Astoundingly crude technically, the execution and some elementary design flaws ruin what might have been some top Spy vs Spy-esque vampire antics. ★

BUG BOMBER

DMI £25.99

AP17 83% SC

Er, well basically it's Dyna Blaster with twiddly bits. It's slightly better than Dyna Blaster as a one-player game but DB beats it for multi-player fun and good looks. Overall, though, dead fab. ★★★★★

BUNNY BRICKS

Silmarils, £25.99

AP19 36% AP

Breakout meets baseball meets a bunny. Bad. ★

CAESAR

Impressions, £29.99

AP19 84% DG

Ruddy heck! At last, a halfway-decent wargame thing! Lots of strategy, good presentation, compelling gameplay. Generally, it's pretty good. Blimey. ★★★★★

CALIFORNIA GAMES II

US Gold £25.99

AP18 52% RR

This will receive a fair recommendation when it arrives in the budget bin where it belongs. The only truly surprising thing about California Games II is the price. £25.99? Get real, dudes. ★★

CAMPAIGN

Empire, £34.99

AP19 83% JD

And here's another decent wargame. Pacific Islands meets, um, some other good war-type game. Strategy-tastic, and probably still a bit much for zapping fiends, bit a lovely game for anyone with the slightest beam of light creeping through the closed door of their mind. ★★★★★

CARL LEWIS CHALLENGE

AP17 83% DG

These days, sports sims of all descriptions come with a management section. This one does but it isn't really worth playing. The sports bits are presented very well but are too easy. And there's no head-to-head option in multi-player mode. Okay, but flawed. ★★

THE CASTLE OF DOCTOR BRAIN

Sierra £34.99

AP18 61% DG
If you want to expand your kids' minds then this is no bad way to go about it. It's just a pity that it's so damned slow and difficult to control. Not a very large game. ★★

CASTLES

Interplay £29.99
AP13 58% KF
Could-have-been-fun attempt at a Sim City-style epic with castles (surprise!) in it, but it's all too painfully slow and it doesn't even balance the lack of speed with any real depth or realism. ★★

CATCH 'EM

DMI £25.99

AP18 69% RP
If you enjoyed the totally bizarre concepts of Lemmings or Goblins then perhaps you could make something of Catch 'Em too. Try it, you might like it. ★★

CHAMPIONSHIP MANAGER

Domark £24.99
AP15 38% JD
A very tedious and boring attempt at the football management genre. There's absolutely no football action, but there is a ridiculous amount of disk accessing. Don't waste your money, you'd get more satisfaction flushing it down the toilet. Try Krysalis' Graham Taylor Management game instead. ★

THE CHAOS ENGINE

Renegade £25.99

AP22 89% SC
The Bitmaps return with an absolute corker of a shoot-'em-up. A cross between Gauntlet and Speedball 2, this looks, feels and plays like a dream, with bundles of atmosphere and gorgeous graphics too. Most importantly it's great fun to play, and the two player mode is even more brilliant. Unmissable. ★★★★★

AP22 89% SC
The Bitmaps return with an absolute corker of a shoot-'em-up. A cross between Gauntlet and Speedball 2, this looks, feels and plays like a dream, with bundles of atmosphere and gorgeous graphics too. Most importantly it's great fun to play, and the two player mode is even more brilliant. Unmissable. ★★★★★

CHESS CHAMPION 2175

Oxford Softworks £19.99
AP12 80% KF
Millions of options, loads of difficulty settings, easy to get into, good-looking and instructive, this is almost certainly the best Amiga chess game yet. ★★★★★

CIVILIZATION

MicroProse £34.99

The Tenechutan Times
Aztec wise men discover the secret of Bronze Working!

AP16 80% GP
The idea of god-sims, and this one in particular, is very appealing. Few of them really hit the mark, though, and this is one of those that just misses. The interface is a living nightmare of hell, but inside that shoddy body there beats a heart of gold. It's dull and flat to look at but in the end it's such a good idea. Okay if you're patient, but why should you have to be? ★★

THE COOL CROC TWINS

Arcade Masters £25.99

AP16 65% MS
A mad and bizarre headbanging extravaganza of platforming crocodile antics. It's bright, colourful and arcadey, but there are too many levels and not enough gameplay variety to keep you entertained for very long. ★★

COOL WORLD

Ocean £25.99
AP 21 59% TT
Enjoyable platform game but flawed, clumsy character control being the main one. There's nothing special or original here, and the connection to the film is tenuous to say the least. ★★

COVER GIRL POKER

Emotional Pictures/Storm £25.99
AP13 6% MR
A completely amazing game. You'll be amazed at the poor-quality pictures, astounded by the tacky dialogue, and utterly staggered at how unbelievably bad it is at poker. If you own it, kill yourself. ★

CRAZY CARS 3

Titus £25.99

AP16 88% MR
Probably the best racing game yet – pure arcade fun. It succeeds. A great difficulty curve, excellent power-ups, wonderfully evocative graphics (Boston really looks like Boston) and great sounds. Let down slightly by the lack of a two-player option but otherwise fab. ★★★★★

CRAZY SEASONS

Idea £25.99

AP17 73% LB
Cutesy, platform puzzler featuring a pot-bellied penguin trying to save the universe. Not exceptionally original but very playable. ★★★★★

CURSE OF ENCHANTIA

Core Design £34.99
AP19 87% LE
A game that could well out-monkey Monkey Island. With such a high degree of humour this adventure is well on its way to becoming a classic. It's slightly overpriced and some of the puzzles are a little obscure but these are minor quibbles. Overall this a great game. ★★★★★

CYBERBLAST

Innerprise Software Inc £25.99
AP17 61% GP
Uninspired Gauntlet clone. Scroll, mazy, shooty thing that plays well but isn't overly interesting. ★★

CYTRON

Psygnosis £29.99
AP 21 61% SC
Paradroid 90 done again, only not as well. A robot slides uncontrollably about a maze shooting up other robots and splitting up into two little robots occasionally. Lots other other options liven things up, but only for a few minutes. ★★

DARK QUEEN OF KRYNN

SSI £32.99

AP19 67% JD
Yet another Krynn game, just the same as every other Krynn game you've ever seen. (And if you've never seen one, they're primitive RPGs with ridiculous price tags and as much user-friendliness as a pit bull terrier with its tail caught in a door.) The graphics are a bit better than usual, though. ★★

DARKSEED

Cyberdreams £34.95

AP 22 88% MW
Giger designed graphic adventure that oozes class and sophistication and creates a world all its own. A truly original game with masses of atmosphere and sick and sick action. Not for the faint of stomach. ★★★★★

DELIVERANCE

21st Century Entertainment £25.99
AP14 75% JD
Cruder, more colourful version of Gods, without the depth but with a bit more zing to it. ★★

D/GENERATION

Mindscape £19.95

AP16 88% JD
You wouldn't have thought you'd get much of a game out of being a dispatch rider in a genetic engineering lab, but Mindscape have managed it, and for only £19.95. It has elegant and perfectly balanced gameplay with just the right amount of puzzle-solving, shooting stuff, and leaping around. Not so hot in the sound effects or graphics departments but it packs an addictive punch that could easily knock a few teeth out. ★★★★★

DISCOVERY

AP15 75% JD
Ships, history, and the anniversary of Columbus' 'discovery' of America. It's a pretty strange subject for a game, but then the American people have become a very strange sort of race. "Celebrate Columbus' anniversary on the Amiga". Quite. ★★★★★

DOJO DAN

Europress Software £25.99

AP16 66% GP
A better than mediocre platform-romp-cum-beat-'em-up thang with some shoot-'em-up shenanigans thrown in for good measure. It can be frustrating to play at times but it can be moderately entertaining too. It's no classic but it has its moments and is quite pretty to look at. ★★

DOODLEBUG

Core Design £25.99
AP19 83% SC
Yet again the consoles are shown how cute platform games should be done. The controls are well thought out and even the pencil power-ups work really well. While it doesn't quite match up to Zool or the Addams Family it certainly gives them a run for their money. ★★★★★

DRAGON'S LAIR III: THE CURSE OF MORDREAD

Ready Soft £34.99

AP22 24% TT
The third instalment in the Dragon's Lair series has the usual mix of wonderful animation and design with doses of cartoon humour, but sadly no gameplay worth mentioning. Offers no lasting enjoyment. ★

DREADNOUGHTS

Turcan Research Systems £34.95
AP14 80% JD
A naval strategy wargame that Jonathan liked? Nurse! ★★★★★

DUNE

Virgin £30.99

AP15 81% DG
A highly polished adventure game which is more of a strategy game-cum-animated-book. It should appeal to adventure fans, and non-gaming fans of the book, alike. ★★★★★

DUNGEON MASTER/CHAOS STRIKES BACK

Psygnosis £25.99
AP 21 81% AP
Standard RPG stuff packaged in a thoroughly playable and atmospheric package of two games. Dungeon Master is the old one, Chaos Strikes Back the newie, and you'll either love them or hate them both depending on your views on RPGs. ★★

DYLAN DOG

Simulmondo £25.99
AP16 29% RP
There are loads of extras (graphics and sound) but there isn't really much of a game for them to be attached to. Weird, boring and expensive. Give it a miss. ★

DYNA BLASTER

Ubi Soft £30.99

AP12 83% MB T100 No.13
Good fun by itself, but play this in five-player mode (with the joystick adaptor included) and you'll find entire days disappearing from your life. If you've got any friends at all, this is an absolute must. ★★★★★

ELVIRA II: THE JAWS OF CEREBUS

Accolade £34.99
AP13 33% GP
Totally dull and unexciting (surely the very last thing a game about the larger-than-life Elvira should be) million-disk adventure, and shockingly priced. ★

EPIC

Ocean £30.99
AP15 34% KF
Put that wallet away. The only thing that's epic about this one is how long we've had to wait for it. It scores on the graphics, and can be fun, but really – it's no game. ★

ESPAÑA GAMES '92

Ocean £29.99
AP17 38% MS
Huge variety of events but getting to them is a real chore. And they don't look too hot when you manage it. Not really worth the bother. ★

EUROPEAN CHAMPIONS

Idea £25.99
AP17 4% SC
Our lowest ever mark. Nuff said? ★

EUROPEAN CHAMPIONSHIP

Elite £25.99
AP16 59% SC
Having secured the rights to name the game after a famous tournament, you'd have thought Elite would have tried to simulate same. It doesn't look as if they did. As a footy game it's OK, but not up to the standard set by Sensible Soccer and Striker. Quite fun in a shallow arcade sort of way but let down by poor graphics and slow play. ★★

EUROPEAN FOOTBALL CHAMP

Domark £24.99
AP15 64% NW
A bog standard footy game. There was little chance of recreating the fancy graphics of the coin-op, so instead Domark have concentrated on keeping what gameplay there is up to scratch. A nice try, but it won't win the cup. ★★

EURO SOCCER

Flair Software £25.99
AP22 39% JD
Yet another game which fails to challenge you-know-what as the greatest football game of all time. The goalkeepers are hopeless, the control system is seriously lacking, the scrolling's too slow... if you want to play computer football, look under S. ★★

EYE OF THE BEHOLDER II

SSI/US Gold £35.99

AP14 86% KF
Nothing here that wasn't in the first (classic) game, but generally done that little bit better. Think very carefully before buying both. ★★★★★

EXODUS

Demonware £29.99

AP22 58% DG
Very hard to get into, with no help from the manual. Loads to tackle if you can manage to break through, but not particularly rewarding unless you're prepared for months of space exploration and engine maintenance. ★★

FASCINATION

Tomahawk £29.99

AP17 67% JD
Moderately groovy French adventure with a female central character. Nice and straightforward but tends to be a bit too linear. It looks great, too, although some of the scenes might trouble the less liberal-minded. Sexy or sexist? You decide. ★★

FIRE AND ICE

Renegade £25.99

AP14 88% MR
Magic Pockets, but fast and good. ★★★★★

FIREFORCE ICE

£25.99

AP19 56% SC
Green Beret for the '90s. The 1890s, that is. ★★

FIRETEAM 2200

Internecine £29.99
AP13 31% DG
Quite breathtakingly horrid-looking, and seriously dull to boot. Just another wargame, really. ★

FLOOR 13

Virgin £30.99
AP14 75% MS
Tense and atmospheric sim of a covert department of the secret service. Plausible, and wonderfully gripping, if a bit expensive side for a game with no colour or moving graphics. ★★★★★

FOOTBALL CHAMP

Simulmondo £25.99
AP17 53% GP
Laudable effort, realism-wise. But if you want realism, what's wrong with real life? It's not very easy to get to grips with control-wise, and not particularly entertaining when you do. Football can be, and has been, done much better. ★★

GLOBAL EFFECT

Millennium £29.99
AP13 60% JD
Sim City goes Green, but doesn't quite cut it gameplay and control interface-wise. Some very poor design logic makes it a chore. ★★

G-LOC R360

US Gold £25.99
AP18 7% LE
Possibly the most distastefully programmed, boring and unimpressive piece of software we've ever seen. It's expensive, tacky, and rubbish. Nuff said. ★

GO

Oxford Softworks £19.99
AP12 80% SC
Unsophisticated but workable version of one of the true classics of boardgaming. 100 skill levels and a handicapping system gives everyone the chance to play this absorbing and challenging game. ★★★★★

GOBLIINS

Tomahawk £25.99
AP16 79% MR

Whatever it is they give those French game designers, we'll have doubles. Gobliins is a quirky, not to say utterly weird, puzzler in typical Gallic style. The characters are irredeemably stupid but you'll love them just the same. Not exactly Another World but better than Pushover. ★★★★★

GOBLIINS 2

Coktel Vision £29.99
AP 21 78% MW

It's more fun to watch than most cartoons on TV today, and scores highly in the fun and humour departments. The graphics and sound are wonderful too, but puzzles that are unbelievably contrived and a few annoying gameplay glitches can make this adventure tiresome at times. Well worth a go. ★★★★★

GRAHAM TAYLOR'S SOCCER CHALLENGE

Krisalis £25.99

AP16 82% AP
Poor old Graham gets a lot of stick these days and there are many that would say he deserves it. Apparently he was involved in the development of this football manager sim and, if that's the case, his detractors will have to give him some grudging credit for a job well done. It's a game stuffed full of features, with some quite entertaining action scenes thrown in. Some niggling flaws but overall quite satisfying. ★★★★★

GUY SPY

ReadySoft £29.99
AP17 33% AP

Oh dear, if only looks were everything. This is another one of those cartoony adventure things that looks fabulous but isn't actually much fun to play. It's a step in the right direction, just not a very big one. ★

HARE RAISING HAVOC

Disney £25.99
AP12 28%SC/68% MR

And those cartoon games just keep on coming. Hare Raising Havoc takes a more interactive route than most. It sure looks and sounds nice, but there's about as much gameplay in here as there is in a big empty box marked 'Gameplay-Free Zone'. It's quite funny but you'll never play it more than once. If you've got a hard drive (and you can't play this any other way), don't waste its memory space. ★

HISTORY LINE

Blue Byte £34.95
AP22 87% RL

Wargames don't come much better than this. A World War I strategy game that succeeds by having a wonderfully easy control system, graphics galore and tight gameplay which keeps you well involved in the action. An example of what a good wargame can do. ★★★★★

HOI

Hollyware £25.99

AP17 60% GP
Hoi, you see, is a dinosaur that looks like a fish on wheels. He's the star of a jolly platform romp that's funny in parts, but too difficult to really be 'fun'. There's better stuff around if you like this sort of thing. ★★

HOOK

Ocean £25.99

AP15 84% MR
The atmosphere of Spielberg's Hook movie is nicely captured, but there isn't really all that much to it. It's small and shallow, but still jolly nicely formed. ★★★★★

HOSTILE BREED

Palace £25.99
AP15 82% MR

Brave, different, and mostly successful attempt to add intelligence to the shoot-'em-up. Sadly it's the shoot-'em-up bit that lets the side down. A little more attention should have been given to the arcade side of things. ★★★★★

HOT RUBBER

Palace £25.99
AP14 50% GP

Take-it-or-leave-it motorbike racer that looks pretty sad next to Vroom and Super Hang-On. ★★

HUMANS

Mirage, £25.99

AP19 70% DG
Nice idea behind this puzzley thing, but it's too dull and slow to keep your interest for very long, and the horrible controls don't help. ★★

IAN BOTHAM'S CRICKET

Celebrity Software £25.99
AP16 41% AP

Even if you're a fan of cricket, you have to admit that it can sometimes be a bit boring. Ian Botham's Cricket is tedious no matter what you think of the real thing. Liven's up a bit as a two player game but overall it's a bit of a duffer. ★★

INDIANA JONES AND THE FATE OF ATLANTIS

LucasArts & US Gold £34.99
AP 21 90% GP
Graphic adventure in the same vein as Monkey Island, with depth and story surpassing even the films at times. Brilliant in every respect except one – the amount of disk swapping renders the game almost unplayable, but it's almost worth buying a hard disk just for this. ★★★★★

INDIANA JONES AND THE FATE OF ATLANTIS – THE ACTION GAME

US Gold £25.99
AP22 36% MW
Indy fans are well advised to avoid this tiresome and dull game and go for the adventure game with the same title. ★

INTERNATIONAL SPORTS CHALLENGE

AP16 78% MR
Being Olympics year, 1992 was bound to spawn a few sports sims. This one features swimming, diving, cycling, show jumping, skeet shooting, and a marathon. It has its fair share of joystick wagging (on the swimming and cycling) but the other events make up for it with fun gameplay and the graphics are decent enough. Not brilliant, but good enough if you have a few friends round on a rainy afternoon. ★★

ISHAR

Silmarils £29.99
AP15 78% KF
An atmospheric experience with a good many thoughtful and original touches to set it apart from the rest of the RPG field. The only problem is that it's possible to stumble around aimlessly for a fair old time before getting into the real meat of the action. ★★

JAGUAR XJ220

AP15 85% JD
Sadly this game hasn't improved on Lotus II, with a lack of driving excitement and cars on the road being two major problems. On the other hand it does have a lap rather than course structure, excellent weather effects and a track editor. Among the better of the sprite based driving games, but Crazy Cars III is now the firm office favourite. ★★

JIM POWER

Loricel £25.99
AP15 78% MR
No ground breaker, but a smooth and silky (if slightly gaudy) platform shoot-'em-up effort – what it lacks in originality it more than makes up for in evidence of sheer effort and good design. Not at all bad. ★★

JOE AND MAC CAVEMAN NINJA

Elite £25.99
AP22 22% SC
Horrible graphics, tragic control system and uninspiring gameplay contribute to make this a true turkey. Don't waste your cash. ★

JOHN BARNES EUROPEAN FOOTBALL

Krisalis £25.99
AP14 74% GP
A very similar game in play to Manchester United Europe, but the tiny area of pitch visible on screen cuts down the tactical scope dramatically, although it bumps the speed up significantly. Good fun, but shallow. ★★

KGB

Virgin £30.99
AP 21 87% TN
An adventure game that steers well clear of the well worn 'might and magic' themes, and instead goes with a well researched contemporary approach. The atmospheric graphics and numerous characters give it depth, but the linear story line leaves little scope for exploration. ★★★★★

KRUSTY'S SUPER FUN HOUSE

Acclaim £25.99
AP22 74% SC
Bright and colourful, this is a faithful conversion from the SNES. Platform fun with some brain tickling puzzles, it's only let down by the slightly repetitive gameplay. Also the passwords for accessing levels are pitched too far apart, making it difficult to dip into. A very good, but sadly flawed, platform/puzzler. ★★

LEEDS UNITED CHAMPIONS

CDS £25.99
AP 21 74% AP
No arcade action with this, it's a management sim all the way. It's easy to control, with loads of options, and although not the best football management game around, it's a lot better than the worst. It also suffers from being inextricably tied to Leeds United football team, which means that however good it is, there are some people who just aren't going to buy it. ★★

LEGEND

Mindscape £30.99

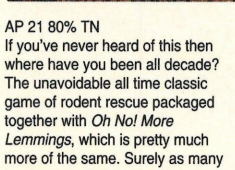

AP14 91% KF
An RPG that's got everyone in the AMIGA POWER office playing it has to be something pretty special, and that's just what this is. Well-balanced and easy to get into, we can't think of a single serious flaw. ★★★★★

LEGEND OF KYRANDIA

Virgin, £35.99
AP19 89% LE
Gorgeous adventure with an excellent difficulty curve, although the nine (count 'em!) disks are a bit of a bummer. ★★★★★

LEMMING DOUBLE PACK

Psygnosis £29.99

AP 21 80% TN
If you've never heard of this then where have you been all decade? The unavoidable all time classic game of rodent rescue packaged together with Oh No! More Lemmings, which is pretty much more of the same. Surely as many levels as you're ever going to want, but, given the age of these games, the high price seems a shame. ★★★★★

LINKS

AP16 70% MS
Links is easier to play than either MicroProse Golf or PGA Tour Golf. It looks absolutely fabulous and is an almost flawless golf sim. Its major fault (and it's a MAJOR fault) is that it's so slow that a three-toed sloth on mogadon would look like a champion sprinter by comparison. ★★

LIONHEART

Thalion £25.99
AP22 88% MR
The Amiga is pushed to its limits with the most amazing graphics and parallax scrolling yet seen. The game's not bad either, being a platform slasher, and it's probably the best of its genre on the Amiga. Large, dynamic and great to look at, it will keep you busy for some time. ★★★★★

LIVERPOOL THE COMPUTER GAME

Grandslam £25.99

AP16 65% SC
It's a football game and it's based on Liverpool FC. What more do you need to know? Oh alright then. It's easy to get into, but lacks any real depth. It looks Okay and has a lot of good ideas but overall it doesn't really make it. ★★

LOCOMOTION

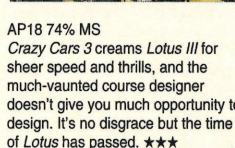

DMI £25.99
AP19 84 SC
It's so easy to grasp the basics and controls, the whole family will be able to join in. It's also a game that pushes your brain into overdrive. It's absorbing, addictive, admirable, and lots more besides. It's got a built in construction kit so you'll never get bored with it. What more could you want? ★★★★★

LORDS OF TIME

Hollyware, £25.99
AP19 53% JD
Lifeless, lacklustre FRPG that's not so much run-of-the-mill as aimless-kind-of-stroll-of-the-mill. Nothing very much of anything. A vacuum. ★★

LOTUS III

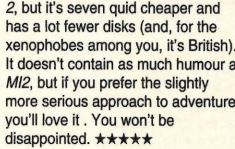

Gremlin Graphics £25.99

AP18 74% MS
Crazy Cars 3 creams Lotus III for sheer speed and thrills, and the much-vaunted course designer doesn't give you much opportunity to design. It's no disgrace but the time of Lotus has passed. ★★

LURE OF THE TEMPTRESS

Revolution £30.99

AP15 88% MS
Not nearly as big as Monkey Island 2, but it's seven quid cheaper and has a lot fewer disks (and, for the xenophobes among you, it's British). It doesn't contain as much humour as MI2, but if you prefer the slightly more serious approach to adventures you'll love it. You won't be disappointed. ★★★★★

MCDONALD LAND

Virgin, £25.99

AP19 67% JD
Uninspiring 8-bit NES-y formula platform thing that's not actually terrible or anything like that, just depressingly mediocre. ★★

MADDOG WILLIAMS

Game Crafters £30.99

AP12 47% JD
Stupendously run-of-the-mill Sierra-game clone that's more 'average' than actual 'crap' – but why not blow your £31 on something that's actually 'good'? ★★

THE MANAGER

US Gold £25.99
AP14 36% SC
Everything that's tedious and inept about football management games can be found in this hopeless pile of old crap. A million statistic screens and incomprehensible icons make The Manager knuckle-chewingly painful to play, with no redeeming features at all. Avoid desperately. ★

MATCH OF THE DAY

Zeppelin £25.99
AP19 51% AP
With a user interface that drives you nuts, Match comes in as a very bad management sim. It's too fiddly and lacking in action to match up to Graeme Taylor's and is mediocre at best. Everything about it says "Go for one of the other management sims". ★★

THE MED CONFLICT – BATTLESET 3

Electronic Arts £14.99
AP12 65% JD
Oh, please. This is such a specialist naval wargamer's thing that we seriously doubt a single one of our readers is in the slightest bit interested in it. Prove us wrong (all you Village People fans). ★★

MEGAFORTRESS

AP16 82% RL
Pull on that battered leather flying jacket, polish up your Ray-Ban Aviators and be the pilot of a B-52. At first glance it could be a bit of a techie nightmare, but it's surprisingly entertaining. The wide variety of tasks and enthralling atmosphere will keep you glued to the screen but the lack of ground detail loses the game a few marks. Atmospheric strategy flight-sim. ★★★★★

MEGATRAVELLER 2

AP16 60% AP
A positively massive sci-fi FRPG with everything including the kitchen sink. Great scope for independent exploration and 'doing your own thing'. Megatraveller was deep, the sequel is even deeper – it just doesn't have any water in it. There's a great game in there somewhere, but you're the one who has to hunt it out. For fans only. ★★

NIGHT & MAGIC III

New World Computing £35.99

AP16 87% RP
If you've always thought you might like to get into FRPGs then this is as good a place to start as any. It's got auto-mapping; effective combat; big, deep realistic gameplay; and almost everything else you could ever want. The sound and animation aren't up to much but they never are. M&M III is a real sweetie. ★★ ★★

MILLE MIGLIA

Sil Mulimondo £25.99

AP15 53% MB

A slow, vintage car-style driving game dressed up in authenticity and nostalgia. Great for fans of the classic car, of dubious worth for the rest of us. If you like fast driving games, go for Crazy Cars 3. ★★

MONKEY ISLAND 2

AP15 90% GP

A worthy sequel – and to be a worthy sequel to the excellent Monkey Island takes some doing. Despite a few flaws, it's essential if you enjoyed the first game, with enough in the way of improvements and changes to keep you entertained and on your toes. ★★ ★★ ★★

MOTORHEAD

Virgin £15.99

AP21 71% MW

Loads of hacking and slashing as you rock, roll and belch your way around the music biz. It's a horizontally scrolling beat-'em-up, and it's not particularly original, but it has a nice dose of humour and it's at a good price. Professional and fun, it's worth a look. ★★ ★★

MYTH

AP15 67% GP

System 3 get an 'A' for effort. Myth is a well-researched and, by and large, lively project with high-spots of gloss and variety. Unfortunately it lacks real depth, and some of the puzzle logic is crazy. ★★ ★★

NICK FALDO'S GOLF

Grandslam £34.99

AP22 88% TT

Fast, pretty and enormously satisfying to play, this is the best golf game for your Amiga, with only PGA Tour Golf to challenge it. There's a very accurate golf feel to it which will please fans of the game but not deter others, and Nick himself is on hand to give you handy advice if you need it. If you don't yet have a golf game, get this – you'll love it. ★★ ★★ ★★

NICKY BOOM

Microids £25.99

AP21 50% GP

A standard scrolling platform game with nothing new to add. Almost suitable for younger players, but the big monsters are too hard, and hardened gamers will be bored. ★★

NIGEL MANSELL'S WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP
Gremlin £29.99

AP 21 78% TT

It's a racing game, and no better or worse than many others on the market today. It's fun to play though, and the large number of courses and interesting background graphics should give it a long shelf life. The sound's a little weak, but it's a small complaint for such a good game. ★★ ★★

NODDY'S PLAYTIME

Jumping Bean Company £24.99

AP 21 75% RL

A children's game which parents will enjoy too, it's easy to play and gives lots of learning opportunities. Lots of disk swapping makes it hard for kids to play on their own, but it is professionally done, highly enjoyable and should succeed in appealing to the younger children it's aimed at. ★★ ★★

NO SECOND PRIZE

Thalion, £25.99

AP19 84% TN

Red Zone the way it should have been done – this is a corking motorbike racer with superfast and supersmooth vector graphics, and a great biking feel to boot. Very nice. ★★ ★★

OPERATION COM-BAT

Merit Software £25.99

AP16 39% RP

It's a wargame and it's not very good. Okay? ★

ORK

Psygnosis £25.99

AP12 66% NW

This isn't a more complicated and less zappy version of The Killing Game Show at all – not! ★★ ★★

PACIFIC ISLANDS

Empire £29.99

AP13 87% MR T100 No.63

Brilliantly exciting and tense tank sim that improves over its predecessor Team Yankee by a factor of four. A little complex for the arcade junkie, but fab all the same. ★★ ★★ ★★

PALADIN II

Impressions, £29.99

AP19 61% LE

A strategy/RPG that's reasonably playable, but when you get into it you discover it's got no real substance whatsoever. Still, the construction kit extends the life a little bit. ★★

PANZER BATTLES

Strategic Studies Group £25.99

AP12 62% JD

Quite bright and colourful, but suffers from Crap Indistinguishable Icon Disease. ★★

PAPERBOY 2

Mindscape £25.99

AP17 28% RP

If you want to be a paperboy, get a job delivering papers. ★

THE PERFECT GENERAL

Ubi Soft £34.99

AP16 75% RP

Just when you thought it was safe to generalise about war games being dull, Ubi Soft manage to come up with one that's fun to play. Pitched about right for experienced players and beginners alike, we're convinced that Perfect General is a major contribution to something or other. ★★ ★★

PINBALL DREAMS

21st Century Entertainment £25.99

AP12 87% SC T100 No.78

'But it's only a pinball game'. Yeah, and a Ferrari F40's only a car, but what the hell's that got to do with anything? Supremely gorgeous and it'll last you a lifetime – what more could you possibly ask for? ★★ ★★ ★★

PINBALL FANTASIES

AP19 89% SC

More brilliant pinballing action in the follow-up to the legendary Pinball Dreams, but it's a little less consistent than its predecessor and, scandalously, £5 more expensive. Still, the best table is astoundingly good, and practically worth the cash by itself. Pretty damn fab all round, but there's still enough room for improvement for someone to write the absolutely definitive Amiga pinball game. ★★ ★★ ★★

PLAN NINE FROM OUTER SPACE

Gremlin Graphics £34.99

AP18 36% RL

Reasonably entertaining idea for a game, but the gameplay is disjointed, the music and sound effects are abysmal and it's too short. There are plenty of other things to blow 35 quid on. And just why does a game which includes a 'free' video cost more than Gremlin's standard releases. ★★

POOL

Virgin £25.99

AP19 82% SC

The follow up to Snooker but with an improved control system and game engine. It's not all that different, but pool fans are bound to love it. It probably isn't worth buying if you already have Snooker, but if you don't then get this instead. ★★ ★★

POPULOUS II: THE CHALLENGE GAMES

Electronic Arts £14.99

AP 21 49% GP

Even at £15 this is too much to spend on what is basically an extras disk to the original game. 500 new worlds and 42 challenge games, but there's little that you couldn't do yourself with the custom game option. For Populous perverts only. ★★

POWERMONGER: WW1 EDITION

Electronic Arts £14.99

AP12 65% JD

Gives the original game a shot of much-needed character, but beyond that it doesn't really add anything to the original. ★★

PREMIERE

AP17 84% MR

At last, a cartoony action game that's fun to play. It's a little bit basic, gameplay-wise, and the six levels are pretty similar, but it does manage to capture something of the excitement of movie studios. If Bruce Willis were a computer game, he'd probably be Premiere. ★★ ★★

PREMIER MANAGER

Gremlin £25.99

AP22 80% TT

Excellent football management game from Gremlin that's not too complex and is enormously satisfying. Start as the manager of a Conference team and work your way up to the giddy heights of a Premier League club. And all without the threat of a nervous breakdown in the process. ★★ ★★

PROJECT X

AP13 78% SC T100 No.82

We thought this was going to be a contender for game of the year, but we were wrong. Slick and brash and arcadey, but also bugged and dramatically under-playtested. A crying shame. ★★

PROPHECY

Mirage £25.99

AP17 29% SC

Very, very like Super Wonder Boy only not as good. ★

PSYBORG

Loriciel £25.99

AP14 65% GP

Hyper-fast tunnel racer that's quite good fun when you get into it, but still miles too thin for a full-price product. ★★

PUSHOVER

Ocean £25.99

AP14 79% MR

Not-entirely-pleasant little puzzler, but relies rather more on trial-and-error than actually stretching your mental faculties to any serious degree. The best domino-topping game on the Amiga, though. ★★

PUTTY

System 3 £25.99

AP18 90% MR

One of the Amiga's finest and most utterly silly moments yet. The loading can be a bit of a pain but everything else (especially the sound and Uncle Ted) is wonderful. System 3 have pulled out all the stops on this one to give you more laughs for your money than any other game around. ★★ ★★ ★★

RACE DRIVIN'

Domark £25.99

AP13 72% NW

A better effort than Domark's original Hard Drivin' conversion, but still uncomfortably prone to wildly over-sensitive control. Still, if you liked the arcade game you'll etc. ★★ ★★

RAMPART

Domark £25.99

AP 21 66% SC

Great fun in the two player mode, but spoiled by sluggish controls. It's overpriced for a conversion that isn't as good as either the original or other format versions. ★★

RED BARON

Dynamix £34.99

AP12 19% GP

On a few thousand quid's worth of PC kit this is a reasonably exciting WW1 flight sim. On the Amiga it's one of the crappiest bits of crappy old crap there's ever been. Only for those of you who find snails thrillingly fast. ★

RED ZONE

Psygnosis £25.99

AP19 54% TN

The control on the bike is abysmal which doesn't help when you're careering round a track at 140mph. The graphics are not as smooth as they could be and combined with the controls make this a definite miss. ★★

RISKY WOODS

Electronic Arts £25.99

AP15 82% MS

Lacking variation and depth, Risky Woods does compensate with plenty of frenzied, and atmospheric platform action. On a par with Leander, it's a good buy for fans of the genre, but by no means a must. ★★ ★★

ROAD RASH

Electronic Arts, £25.99

AP19 70% SC

Brilliant conversion of the Mega Drive title, which unfortunately only serves to emphasise the thin-ness of the original game. Good fun, but very simplistic – you'd be a lot better off with Crazy Cars 3. ★★ ★★

ROBOSPORT

Ocean £29.99

AP 21 64% RL

Sophisticated strategy/action game of robo-warfare. Plenty of scope for tactics, weaponry and good old blasting, but the disjointed gameplay and dull graphics make it less impressive than the 'thinking man's blaster' it tries to be. ★★

ROME AD 92

Millennium £25.99

AP19 59% LE

It's quite fun at first as the story unfolds and your quests start. The statics are nice and the whole thing seems like a good idea until you've played it for a long time. If only a little more were happening it would be a cracking little adventure. ★★

RUBICON

21st Century Entertainment £25.99

AP13 74% RP

Bland horizontally-scrolling shoot-'em-up, too far behind the pack to be really worth buying at this price. Nice weapons, though. ★★

SABRE TEAM

Krisalis £25.99

AP19 68% LE

Suffers dreadfully from a lack of speed. The storyline is sound and everything about the game suggests that it could be really good. If only it wasn't for that damn lack of speed. ★★

SAMURAI: THE WAY OF THE WARRIOR

Impressions £29.99

AP14 55% AP

Good presentation, but when you get into the game proper it's just one more tacky and unfriendly wargame. One for ninja fetishists. ★★

SENSIBLE SOCCER

Renegade £25.99

AP15 93% SC

An unbelievably playable, fabulously realistic, and amazingly atmospheric football game. The best two player game available on the Amiga and probably one of the top two Amiga games of all time. Do yourself a favour – buy it! ★★ ★★ ★★

SENSIBLE SOCCER 92/93 SEASON

Renegade £25.99 stand alone/£3.95 upgrade

AP 21 94% SC

The original was voted the best Amiga game ever by you readers, and this is even better. It's more realistic, there are red and yellow cards now, the goal keepers are better and the teams' skill levels have been tweaked, making the game tougher. Just about the best game in the world for the Amiga, so if you haven't already got it – 1. Why not? and 2. Get this one instead. ★★ ★★ ★★

SHADOW OF THE BEAST III

Psygnosis £29.99

AP18 71% SC

A sweet game to play but you're not getting enough for your 30 quid. More fun than the other two Beast games and there's no free T-shirt (that's a very big plus, by the way). There's just not very much to it. ★★

SHADOWWORLDS

Krisalis £25.99

AP19 85% JD
Enormous fun to play, Shadowlands has all the good elements of an RPG with none of the complexities. The lighting effects create a great atmosphere but sometimes the action gets a little ahead of the control system. Otherwise one hell of a game. ★★★★★

SHUTTLE

Virgin £30.00

AP19 58% RL
It's taken two years to program, it's packed with detail, it's big and it's dull. It's no fun to play and the presentation is muddled. The constant disk accessing is a pain but fans of the genre will probably like it – but only because there is no other shuttle sim. ★★

SIM ANT

Ocean £34.99

AP14 59% MB
Some of the most appalling programming seen in a professional game in years ruins what could have been an interesting concept. Even if you've got a hard drive, forget it. ★

SIMEARTH

Ocean £34.99

AP17 41% JD
As a simulation of a living planet, it's spot on. The problem is that ecosystems are, by their very nature, slow, dull things and neither the presentation nor the interface do anything to make them more interesting. ★★

SPACE CRUSADE

Gremlin £25.99

AP12 85% KF T100 No.60
Excellent boardgame conversion which does away with all that faffing around with bits of plastic and dice, but doesn't lose any of the features of the original. Very classy. ★★★★★

SPACE GUN

Ocean £25.99

AP12 69% MR
Zappy Operation Thunderbolt clone, but nowhere near as good. Fun with a Trojan Light Phaser, but not much else. ★★

SPOILS OF WAR

Interneccine £29.99

AP14 45% JD
Tedious rubbish. There is no truth in the rumour that wargames have to be dull to be realistic. We've said it often enough by now, but just to reiterate – something being a wargame isn't an excuse for it being programmed to sub-1986 standards. ★

STARUSH

Ubi Soft £25.99

AP14 64% SC
Lots of nice touches in this zodiac-inspired blaster, but unfortunately they're not attached to a decent game. Not a rip-off, but not really worth buying either. ★★★

STREET FIGHTER II

US Gold £27.99

AP22 74% SC

The coin-op conversion that everyone was waiting for, SF II is without doubt the best beat-'em-up on the Amiga. The control method works, the graphics are fairly faithful to the arcade version (with a few less colours of course), and there's enough speed to give you a good game. A brilliant two player game, a little less fun for one. ★★★★★

STRIKER

Rage £25.99

AP15 76% SC

Fast moving and immediately playable, but it's just a bit too sophisticated for its own good, proving very frustrating unless you select one of the top sides. It's a good game but at the end of the day Striker lacks the necessary polish to make it stand up to the sheer class of the all-conquering Sensible Soccer. ★★

SUPER TETRIS

MicroProse £29.99

AP17 54% SC

Tetris with knobs on. But why? It's no better than Super Twintris and you can get that for nothing. ★★

SWORD OF HONOUR

DMI £25.99

AP18 28% LE

You spend longer waiting for the screens to load than you do playing them. Nothing original here, just a poor man's copy of The Last Ninja. Very slow and boring. ★

TEARAWAY THOMAS

Global Software £25.99

AP22 79% TT

A console beater in full glory, this is about the fastest you'll see your Amiga go – and boy is it fast. Good fun too, if in a rather simple platform way. Take Thomas tearing through the levels to collect gems and jump on bad guys heads – you know the score. A bit more depth would have made it an Amiga classic, but as it is it's a good romp and lots of fun. ★★★★★

TENNIS CUP 2

Loricel £25.99

AP17 72% MS

The control system is difficult to get to grips with at first, but, once mastered, it makes this one of the better tennis sims. Good looking with lots of options. All this and Inspector Clouseau announcing the scores, what more could you want? ★★★★★

3D CONSTRUCTION KIT II

Domark £49.99

AP 21 80% JD

This is a games creation utility which gives you the power to put together your own 3D environments and make games out of them. This version gives you extra features not found on the first, like the ability to add sound effects, support for spheres and a disk full of clip art. It's quite hard to get into the programming, but it's still a lot easier than other languages and a neat way to get into creating 3D games. ★★★★★

TINY SKWEES

Loricel, £25.99

AP19 68% RL

Previously previewed as The Brainies, this is a sweet little puzzler which'll get your mind turning somersaults, but won't really get you excited enough to want to plough through all 101 levels. One of the better games in the genre, though. ★★★★★

TITUS THE FOX

Titus £25.99

AP12 88% SC/MR T100 No.22

Hudson Hawk meets The Blues Brothers. Huge, wonderful platformer, dragged down a bit by huge amounts of disk accessing, but no less unmissable for all that. The cutest game hero in the known universe, too (nobody's based a game on Winona Ryder yet). ★★★★★

TOUCHDOWN

Strike Force £14.99

AP15 48% NW

Slick presentation keeps up the pace of a technically sound, if not particularly enthralling, coaching sim. All the basic features you'd expect, but gridiron fans deserve more action and a little more to excite the imagination. ★★

TREASURES OF THE SAVAGE FRONTIER

US Gold/SSI £32.99

AP19 34% LE

An out-of-date RPG when compared to the likes of EOTB and Storm Master. It's slow with a disgusting amount of disk accessing and no hard drive installation option. It shows how an old formula can go stale when pushed too far, and this has been pushed too far. ★★

TRODDLERS

Storm £25.99

AP18 89% AP

The best elements of some of the best styles of gameplay in history combined in one cute package, and it works. Two styles combine to make a classic game in its own right. It's better than Lemmings, allegedly. ★★★★★

TROLLS

Flair £25.99

AP 21 83% MW

If bright, cute and cheerful platform type games are your thing then this has to be the one for you. Everything about this is so fluffy and nice that you want to hurl, and there really isn't really anything bad to say about it. ★★★★★

TV SPORTS: BASEBALL

Mindscape £25.99

AP15 52% NW

Well put together, but very tedious after an hour or so. If you do want baseball on your Amiga then try the much better RBI Two Baseball instead. ★★

TV SPORTS BOXING

Mindscape, £14.99

AP19 56% AP

Well, it's the best job anyone's made of a boxing game so far. Sadly, it's still a boxing game, and it leaves a fair bit to be desired in the lasting-appeal department. ★★

UGH!

Play Byte £25.99

AP15 79% MR

A laugh and a half, Ugh! offers you excellent one or two player prehistoric fun, for a while at least. Not the sort of thing you'd be playing a year later, though, but worth a look. ★★★★★

ULTIMA VI

Mindscape £30.99

AP13 90% MR T100 No.17

Not the kind of thing for RPG virgins to start on, or for anyone without a hard drive even to consider, but this is currently pretty much the state of the art for Amiga role-playing. Enough to keep you going for months. ★★★★★

UTOPIA: THE NEW WORLDS

Gremlin £14.99

AP14 60% SC

Er, some new worlds for Utopia. They're okay, really. Is it just us or is £15 a lot of money for a data disk? ★★

VENGEANCE OF EXCALIBUR

Virgin £30.99

AP13 60% MS

Not 500+ compatible, which is outrageous. Otherwise, an attractive, but pretty average RPG romp which doesn't significantly improve on its unimpressive predecessor. ★★

VIKINGS

Krisalis £25.99

AP16 81% MR

A strategy wargame thing that doesn't look ugly or contain too many statistics. It also has an easy-to-use interface. It's a bit like Defender Of The Crown without the action sequences but with some kind of magical addictive ingredient thrown in instead. And you can compete against your friends. ★★★★★

VROOM

Ubi Soft £25.99

AP12 88% SC T100 No.35

The missing link between F1GP and Lotus 2, Vroom straddles two genres without falling between two stools. Great as a simple foot-down arcade game, but excellent fun as a serious tactical Formula One sim too. It's lovely and fast and you shouldn't be without it. ★★★★★

WAXWORKS

Accolade £34.99

AP22 70% JD

A horror game that fails to really frighten but does offer some good entertainment with macabre twists. There're maybe a bit too many mazes for its own good, but there're also some puzzles and some fighting to be done. Worth a look for horror fans. ★★

WEEN

Coktel Int'l, £29.99

AP19 81% LE

A bit on the overpriced side, and a bit titchy, but a nifty little puzzle-based adventure thing all the same. A brilliant control interface too, but the game needs a little more to it to qualify for classic status. ★★★★★

WING COMMANDER

Mindscape £34.99

AP 21 55% MR

Everything that was on the original PC version is replicated here, which means that the standard Amiga is so bogged down with data that it runs hopelessly slow, far too slow to make it playable. On the A1200 though, the 3D sequences run fast and smooth, making this the benchmark game for future A1200 shoot-'em-ups. ★★★★★ (for the ...A1200)

WINTER SUPERSPORTS 92

Flair £25.99

AP15 61% GP

A high price to pay for what boils down to four different events. None of them are particularly involving or compelling, but there's fun to be had when more than one player is involved. ★★

WIZKID

Ocean £25.99

AP15 91% MR

A refreshing game that mixes psychedelic arcade adventure, football, and bad jokes with arcade games like Breakout and Pengo. With its perfect control system it's as much fun to play as it obviously was to write. The best game ever (beginning with the letter W at least) if you don't buy Wizkid, your life really will be a lot poorer. ★★★★★

WORLD CLASS RUGBY – THE FIVE NATIONS

Audiogenic £25.99

AP14 86% MS

Dramatically-improved version of the earlier game, right up there with Rugby – The World Cup for playability and action. The 3D second-person perspective view (a la John Madden Football) is neat, too. ★★★★★

WWF EUROPEAN RAMPAGE

Ocean £25.99

AP22 18% JD

Minimal control system, inferior graphics and practically non-existent gameplay. Quite simply a completely crap beat-'em-up that vies for your dosh by cashing in on WWF mania. Don't bother. ★

ZOOL

Gremlin Graphics £25.99

AP18 90% LE

Rightly heralded as a Sonic beater. It's fast, tough and kicks the ass of certain other games featuring certain other characters. This is the yardstick by which other games will be measured. ★★★★★

ZYCONIX

Accolade, £24.99

AP19 63% LE

Decent mix of several puzzle-game standards (Tetris, Columns, Klax, you know the score), which doesn't really have enough character of its own to stand out from the crowd. All right, but unremarkable. ★★

PUTTY

PUTTY

1. 'A stiff paste made of whiting and linseed oil used to fix glass into frames and fill cracks in woodwork.'
2. 'One of the Amiga's most original and finest moments yet. Flexible and versatile, that's Putty.'

ASSASSIN

AP RATED 89%

Probably the most playable game of its genre. Take on mad pit bull terriers, evil hippies, rampaging robots and maniac chimps in this seriously excellent console-esque game. With five enormous levels, endless bonuses and collectables and a nasty dude called Midan, you've got your work cut out.

WIZKID

AP RATED 91%

A game with a bizarre, surreal sense of humour that can result in a serious scrambling of your brain. Wizkid is a psychedelic mix of arcade adventure, football, bad jokes and arcade classics like Breakout and Pengo. It's refreshingly original and more fun than a very amusing thing that's in an especially good mood.

THE RIGHT PROFILE

We've been doing a bit of delving and here's what we found lurking deep in the mind of celebrated god-sim author, Peter Molyneux:

What do you believe in?

I believe that you can do anything if you try, and that anybody can do anything to you if they try, and I believe Elvis Presley lives.

What was the first thing you said today?

It was the first thing I groaned actually. Unfortunately, all the electric is out at my house so I woke up freezing cold wishing I hadn't drunk so much last night. (We'd just like to point out that drinking lots isn't big or hard or clever, and we don't recommend that you try it at home. - Ed)

Who's your favourite historical figure?

Caligula. He must have been the most powerful man to ever live. He could do whatever he wanted to whoever he wanted.

What's your Number One object of desire?

My cheese plant. Her name is Hilda and she is very healthy and verdant.

"I believe Elvis Presley lives"

CURRICULUM VITAE

NAME: Peter Molyneux

ADDRESS: Enigma House, 30 Alan Turing Road, Surrey Research Park, Guildford, Surrey, GU2 5AA

DATE OF BIRTH: 5 May 1959

MARITAL STATUS: Pending

My parents were shipwrecked off the island of Bothmania, they were both aged 10 and I was conceived when they were aged 13 and a half. As it was a very primitive island, my early upbringing was rather unusual. (Oh dear. - Ed)

EDUCATION: In Bothmania, schools were considered to be against their religious philosophy. However, I did go to secret evening classes and covered such topics as Tree Felling, Sail Construction and How To Survive For Two Weeks On A Raft With Only A Colostomy Bag. This I passed with advanced merit with a distinction for my creative design of a 'Colostomy Bag Recipe Book'. (Oh dear oh dear. - Ed)

After passing my exams, I constructed a small but usable raft enabling me to escape from Bothmania to my final landfall of Grimsby.

Fortunately, after studying under the great guru of chamber pot manufacturers, Armitage Shanks, I was able to get a job as a chamber pot manufacturer's apprentice. However, I decided on a change of course for my career and went to the University Of London to study Applied Cryophysics. After three years, I finally understood what the word 'Cryophysics' meant and so obtained my first official qualifications, enabling me to apply for and obtain the job of trainee computer cleaner. My main responsibilities included hoovering of keyboards, sterilisation of mice balls and general upkeep of computer wires. This was where I first discovered my love for computer games. In the evenings, I was able to teach myself how to program in a language called I.L.I.E. and secretly created my first game, called Space Invaders. With this, I applied to several companies for a job including the renowned group, The Bitmat Brothers, where I was unfortunately turned down as I refused to wear dark glasses.

From this point, I inherited a small but flourishing sock company. I quickly changed the company round to producing computer games and since then I have been involved in producing the following titles: Fusion, Populous, Powermonger, Populous II, Syndicate and the little-known and rarely-acclaimed Me And My Toilet Problems.

LEISURE INTERESTS: Sheep farming, computerised cricket and unintelligent chess programs, and an avid interest in all aspects of dental hygiene. (Oh dear oh dear oh dear. - Ed)

What have you got in your pockets?

In my pockets I have one packet of cigarettes with only one cigarette in it. I only ever have one cigarette, that way I can always palm cigarettes off other people. In fact, I have had this cigarette in my pocket for the last five years, I've even gone to the extent of breaking it a little bit so when people get their cigarettes out they sympathise. (We'd just like to point out that smoking cigarettes isn't big or hard or clever, and we don't recommend that you try it at home. - Ed) I also have got a piece of string and chewing gum for old times' sake, and a marble.

How do you rate your/your team's importance in the software biz (1-50)?

Number one of course, but that's a personal opinion. Maybe you should fill in a figure for this yourself.

If you could be in a computer game, which one would it be?

This may seem a little bit immodest, but I think I'd like to be in Syndicate, our next game. You get to play a part of someone who takes over the whole world and that is a pretty cool thing to do.

Would you vote for the Maastricht treaty?

Yes, I think it's a great idea. We've got no chance unless we're part of Europe, unless we were to become the 53rd state of America, which is more likely.

Are video games killing pop music?

Definitely. I go home every night and turn on my computer game, turn off the screen and just listen to the music. In fact, I am going to a computer game music rave where the theme music from Bubble Bobble is played on 500 watt speakers.
